MACDONALD EXPLAINS ACTION IN RED 'PLOT'; BELIEVES IT GENUINE

British Premier Says Foreign Office Holds Proofs, Which Will Be Published if Necessary.

WON'T TOLERATE RED SPIES

He Promises Inquiry Into How Newspapers Got Document and Whether They Originated It.

MOSCOW SENDS A NEW NOTE

Repeats Forgery Charge and Demands an Apology—Straw Vote Favors Conservative Victory.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—Premier MacDonald asserted, in a political address in Cardiff today, that he believed the Zinoviev letter, urging sedition in Great Britain to be a genuine document and not a forgery; that Foreign Office officials believed they had absolute proofs of its authenticity, and that these proofs would be published if necessary.

At the same time the Prime Minister saw elements of a political plot on the part of his opponents, and he promised to get to the bottom of how the document came into the hands of Conservative newspapers.

Describing the affair as the "great Russian Red plot," he said the "election started in one mare's nest—the Campbell case—and is likely to finish in another."

It was a great chance for Tory propagandists, he said, and in taking up one of many partisan statements which have appeared in the Opposition press relative to the Zinoviev letter, he said the statement "was maliciously untrue, but if was expected to gain a few votes."

Tells Dates of Events.

"I challenge them all," he declared, "to produce evidence for such statements as to alleged Communist activity in this country, and while they are trying to concoct it I will give you a few dates.

"The Government was defeated on Oct. 8 on the Campbell case. This letter, this Red letter, did not find its way into the Foreign Office until Oct. 10, two days after our defeat on the Campbell case. It was not put into the Department until the 14th. It was sent to me in Manchester on the 15th. I received it on the 16th.

"On the morning of the 16th I minuted that the greatest care would have to be taken in discovering whether the letter was authentic or not. If it was authentic, it had to be published at once, and in the meantime, while investigations were going on to discover the authenticity of the letter, a draft letter to Rakovsky would be prepared, so that when authenticity was established, no time would be lost in making our protest to the Soviet Government.

"That minute of mine was received in the department on the 17th. On the 21st the trial draft was sent to me at Aberavon for my observation. I was away in my son's constituency at Bassetlaw, and I did not receive it until the 23d. On the morning of the 24th I looked at the draft; I altered it and sent it back in altered form, expecting it to come back to me again with the proofs of authenticity, but that night it was published."

Won't Tolerate Propaganda.

"I make no complaints; I will tell you why the Foreign Office and every official in it know my views about propaganda. The Foreign Office and every one of my colleagues in the Government know that I will not tolerate this propaganda [cheers]. They all know that as soon as I get anything that is authentic, anything that is trustworthy, I will communicate it to the public without delay, so that you may know. [Loud cheers.]

"On account of my known determination to stand firmly by agreements and to treat them as Holy Writ when my signature has been attached to them, they assumed they were carrying out my wishes in taking immediate steps to publish the whole affair. They honestly believe that the document was authentic, and upon that belief they acted.

"Although, my friends, I have not been one single hour in London since the letter came under my notice, only nine days have elapsed from the first registering of the letter and the publication of the dispatch last Friday. As a matter of fact, I make safe to say that had the Foreign Office been in either Tory or Liberal hands that letter would have taken weeks to go through the various sieves through which it had to go. Rapidity of action, a business-like way of handling things and determination on the part of the Government to stand no nonsense, if there is any nonsense, is a conspicuous example of the new way in which the foreign affairs are being conducted.

"If the Zinoviev letter is a forgery, it shows the amount of scoundrelness with which we are surrounded. I am bound to say my experience has made it impossible for me not to be suspicious. If it is genuine, then you can depend upon it—this nation can depend upon it. Liberals and Tories can depend upon it—that so long as there is a Labor Government in office, so long as I am responsible for that Government, it will handle with firmness and determination every attempt by an outside power to interfere in our internal affairs."

Loud and continued cheering followed this statement, and when the tumult

42 Wives Say Vienna Bigamist Averaged $80 a Marriage

VIENNA, Oct. 27.—Forty-two women, all asserting they were wives of Julius Gruenwald, appeared in court as witness against him today. Gruenwald was arrested just as he stepped from a tailor shop wearing a new suit of clothes purchased with money which, according to testimony, he had obtained from his forty-second bride.

The testimony of the women indicated that Gruenwald was in the habit of obtaining money from his brides and then deserting them. The evidence was that he averaged about $80 a bride.

BORAH GOES WEST TO QUESTION BUTLER

Starts With Shipstead and Untermyer to Investigate Mysterious Fund Clue in Chicago.

UNTERMYER IS REBUKED

Chairman Says He Is Running Inquiry—Guy Emerson Tells of Raising $900,000 in New York.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—Half of the Borah committee will go to Chicago tomorrow to hear testimony by Chairman Butler and Treasurer Hodges of the Republican National Committee on Wednesday regarding the mysterious reports which Samuel Untermyer recently told the Senate investigators would wreak serious harm to the Republicans if substantiated.

Mr. Butler and Mr. Hodges will also be called upon to give latest details concerning the "slush fund" which the La Follette counsel charge the Republicans are raising to force a Coolidge victory. Republican State Chairmen in Illinois and Ohio will be summoned to the witness stand.

While Senators Borah and Shipstead are conducting this examination in Chicago, Senators Caraway and Bayard will remain here and continue a search into other angles of the inquiry, beginning probably tomorrow with testimony outlined today in behalf of the Republican National Committee that the La Follette interests were using "enormous" sums not accounted for in the expense accounts they have filed.

"We have some matters we want to lay before the committee," said Weymouth Kirkland of Chicago, counsel for the Republican organization, to the Borah committee. "We want to show without fear of exaggeration that enormous sums are being used for the La Follette-Wheeler campaign and these are not passing through the regular channels and are not accounted for in the reports of Chairman Nelson. We have evidence showing the coercion of different members of labor unions as to how they shall vote on Nov. 4.

"I would be glad indeed to see any such thing brought out," answered Frank P. Walsh of the La Follette counsel.

Rumor of Wheeler Complaint.

Rumors were tonight that Senator Burton K. Wheeler, the Progressive Vice Presidential candidate, had sent a telegram to the committee criticizing it for not taking up lines and leads other than those already followed. Chairman Borah stated that there was nothing in this report, but it persisted.

Mr. Untermyer will go to Chicago with Senators Borah and Shipstead tomorrow afternoon, while Mr. Walsh will remain in Washington with the other two Senators.

Near the close of the three and one-half hour testimony by the only witness at the hearing this afternoon, Guy D. Emerson, head of the committee soliciting contributions in New York City, Senator Borah told Samuel Untermyer in plain language that the committee and not the attending lawyers would have charge of the examination.

Senator Borah had shown signs of suppressed irritation frequently during the cross-examination and came to the rescue of Mr. Emerson more than once while Mr. Untermyer and Mr. Walsh were driving questions at the witness.

The climax came when Mr. Untermyer asked Mr. Emerson if Henry Ford and his son would not greatly benefit by a lowering of the surtaxes. Senator Borah objected to the question as irrele-

LOUIS K. RITTENHOUSE FATALLY SHOT AS HE RESISTS HOLD-UP MEN

Attacked in Front of Home in Orange as He Steps Out to Mail Letter.

IDENTIFIES ONE ASSAILANT

DIES UNDER ANESTHETIC

Victim, Head of Newark Rubber Company, Was Relative of Philadelphia Family of Same Name.

Special to The New York Times.

ORANGE, N. J., Oct. 27.—Louis K. Rittenhouse, President of the Rittenhouse Rubber Company of Newark, was shot and fatally wounded tonight by two men who attempted to hold him up in front of his home at 300 Oakwood Avenue, directly opposite Orange Park. He was shot a few minutes after 10 o'clock and died in Orange Memorial Hospital at midnight while surgeons were probing for the bullet in his abdomen.

Within fifteen minutes after the shooting, a negro had been arrested as one of the assailants. He was identified at once by Mr. Rittenhouse, who then was conscious. The police said the prisoner later confessed.

Mr. Rittenhouse had left his home to walk to Central Avenue to mail some letters and was within a few hundred feet of his front door again when two armed men stepped out and ordered him to throw up his hands. Instead of obeying Mr. Rittenhouse defended himself. He grappled with one man while the other endeavored to hit him over the head with the butt of his revolver. Then the man with whom Mr. Rittenhouse had been grappling drew back and fired one shot. It struck Mr. Rittenhouse in the abdomen but before he fell unconscious to the sidewalk he launched another blow which caught his assailant in the face, breaking his nose. The robbers ran across the street and disappeared among the bushes of Orange Park. Mrs. Rittenhouse heard the shot and rushed out of the house in time to see the men running into the park. Her husband was stretched on the ground. She telephoned police headquarters and also sent for medical aid.

As soon as the call was received at Police Headquarters fifteen reserves hurried to the Rittenhouse home and the Essex County Park police who patrol Orange Park were notified. They were joined by Patrolman W. Fitzmaurice and Howard Merricle, who were off duty and on their way to a ball at Newark.

Mr. Rittenhouse was taken into the house and attended by Dr. Thomas W. Harvey. The police meanwhile searched the park, and seeing a movement in some underbrush Park Policeman John Gleason called on the prowler to come out. Instead his demand was answered by a shot. Then a man broke from the cover and fled across the park through the northeast entrance and out into Central Avenue. Gleason and the other policemen followed close in pursuit but were afraid to use their own weapons for fear of hitting the crowd which had gathered.

The man jumped over a fence in front of 229 Central Avenue and was found hiding under the stoop at the rear of the house.

He was taken back to the Rittenhouse home. Mr. Rittenhouse had been put to bed. As the man was brought into the bedroom, Mr. Rittenhouse recovered consciousness and said, "That's the scoundrel! Take him out of here. He can't stay in my house!"

The man was taken to Police Headquarters, where he described himself as Edward Drew, 19 years old, of 73 Hickory Street, Park policemen who searched the bushes where Drew had been hiding found a revolver with two discharged cartridges. They showed Drew the weapon and, according to the police, he said it was his, but declared that Mr. Rittenhouse had been shot by his companion.

According to the police, Drew said that the second man was an Italian who had

Albert Loeb, Father of Franks's Slayer, Dies In Chicago Home Where Crime Was Planned

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—Albert H. Loeb, father of Richard A. Loeb, who, with Nathan F. Leopold Jr., is serving a life sentence in Joliet Prison for the kidnapping and murder of Robert Franks, died tonight in his Chicago home, within a short distance of the residence which had housed the victim of the crime that shortened his life.

Mr. Loeb, Vice President of Sears, Roebuck & Co., was suffering from heart trouble when his son confessed his part in the crime. After Richard A. Loeb had been sentenced to life imprisonment his father's condition became worse. He was staying at his farm at Charlevoix, Mich., in hopes of regaining health. But he lost ground steadily. He returned to his Chicago home, near that of the senior Franks and Leopold two weeks ago.

"What is there in the future but grief and sorrow, darkness and despair?"

These were the words spoken by Jacob M. Loeb, uncle of Richard A. Loeb, when the sentence of Justice Caverly, sitting in the Chicago courtroom six weeks ago, sent the son of Albert H. Loeb and his companion, Nathan Leopold Jr., to prison for life.

The day of the sentence of his son Albert H. Loeb, already suffering from heart disease, was unable to be in court. In his sickroom in his large country place, at Charlevoix, Mich., emaciated and harried, he waited word from the courtroom. When it came he crumpled.

By a strange coincidence the father died in the house where the crime was planned, virtually within the scene of the killing. The home in which he died is but a few blocks from the home of Nathan Leopold Sr., father of Loeb's companion. It is scarcely that distance from the former home of Jacob Franks, father of the victim. Before the youthful criminals committed their "murder for sport," as it was called, the three families were more than neighbors—they had been friends for years.

Albert H. Loeb was born fifty-six years ago in Chicago, worked his way through college, became a lawyer of repute, then a business man. His hobby had always been his wife and his children. Of the children "Dickie", the murderer was his best beloved.

Before he collapsed under the knowledge that his favorite was a boy slayer Mr. Loeb, as Vice President of Sears, Roebuck & Co., the Chicago mail-order house, was rated as one of Chicago's keenest business men.

Ten Federal Attorneys Ousted by Stone After Charge of Lax Dry Law Enforcement

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—After a conference with President Coolidge today, Attorney General Stone declared that the resignations of ten United States Attorneys had been demanded and the resignations of six had been received. He declined to give the names of any of the ten.

Mr. Stone said while at the White House that dereliction in enforcement of the prohibition law was involved in all of the resignations.

The resignations are supposed to have resulted from the statements made by Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, Assistant Attorney General in charge of prohibition, in a letter to Joseph M. Steele, President of the Law Enforcement League of Philadelphia, early in July. That Mrs. Willebrandt had declared that several District Attorneys had hindered enforcement of the Volstead act was made known in a statement issued by Samuel Untermyer last week.

Mr. Untermyer, who is one of counsel for the Senate committee investigating campaign expenditures, issued a statement in which the charges of Mrs. Willebrandt were made public for the first time. Apparently the Department of Justice acted promptly upon the accusations of Mrs. Willebrandt some time before Mr. Untermyer gave out the communications which had passed between Mr. Steele and herself.

Mrs. Willebrandt in defending her attitude on the enforcement of prohibition informed Mr. Steele of the dereliction of nine or ten District Attorneys, in her letter to Mr. Steele, among other things, she said:

"In most States United States Attorneys are hard working and faithful officials, but as a matter of fact there are nine or ten of them whom, if I had the power, I would summarily remove because of the inactivity or political evasiveness in enforcing prohibition statutes.

"I have in no uncertain terms called these instances to the attention of the person who is delegated to act. In most cases I have been met with the information that a Senator of political situation prevented any change."

Attorney General Stone said that some changes and reforms were about to be made in the Department of Justice. He intimated that these dealt with the prohibition question, but declined to throw any further light on the matter.

ROOSEVELT SEES SMITH AS A CZAR

Declares Governor Seeks Great Power Under Proposed Budget Plan.

HE DENOUNCES THE KLAN

Mentions It by Name at Negro Gathering—Makes Addresses at Ten Rallies Here.

Colonel Theodore Roosevelt began his last week of campaigning by whirling through New York last night and making ten speeches in Manhattan and the Bronx. Aside from the first event of the evening, a dinner and reception at the Union League Club, all his meetings were held in auditoriums of fairly large dimensions and they were uniformly filled. In many cases there were street demonstrations when the candidate arrived and departed.

Colonel Roosevelt denounced the Ku Klux Klan by name when he spoke before a large audience of negroes in Mother Zion Church in Harlem.

"I never would stand," he told the audience at Mother Zion Church, "for any group, organization or individual which at any time endeavored to distinguish between American and American on any other ground except whether that man or woman was a good citizen. No race, no religion must ever be permitted to come up when American is meeting with American. The Ku Klux or any other organization which endeavors to do otherwise is committing an un-American act."

Colonel Roosevelt also renewed his attack on Governor Smith's budget plan and declared the plan, if adopted, would make the Governor a Czar in the State.

The Union League Club meeting, which opened the evening's campaigning, was the most formal of the night. On the platform there were with the candidate Elihu Root, United States Senator James W. Wadsworth Jr. and James M. Beck. Former Governor Benjamin B. Odell Jr. presided.

While the Republican candidate was received with enthusiasm, Mr. Root received great applause also. Before and after he spoke the entire gathering rose to its feet and cheered.

He attacked with vigor the proposal of Senator La Follette that Congress be given the power to override the decisions of the Supreme Court, and said that if a heavy vote was cast for the Third Party candidate it would be given by people who did not realize "the poison" that La Follette proposals contained for the country.

Only One Heckler.

With one exception the audience at the Union League Club listened with attention and in silence. But one man constantly interrupted the speakers. It was when Governor Odell remarked that members of the club believed they should vote for principles rather than for personalities, that a voice was heard to say "And so do most Democrats." The speaker ignored it and continued, but a moment later, when he went on to say that "time was when the vote of New York City was considered decisive for success," the voice was heard to remark, "And it still is."

Finally when after Governor Odell explained that Colonel Roosevelt had to make ten other speeches the man cried "Thank God you've got to stop," there were a few cries of "Put him out," but no action was taken and the man remained. The evidence of hostility to the interruptions was corrective, however, and the man was less intrusive thereafter.

"One of the main differences between the Republican Party and the Democratic Party is on the question of proper administration of public office," Colonel Roosevelt said. "In Washington we have given an example of what a proper administration is. We have handled ourselves with common sense. There, as you know, we have reorganized the Federal Government, cut the national debt by $2,750,000,000, cut the cost of running the National Government by 35 per cent. In this State our record has been the same. I would like to point out to you that during the last two Democratic Administration here, this one and the one preceding, the cost of the State Government was raised 100 per cent., just doubled. While that cost has been raised here in the last Democratic Administration in the State, we have been reducing the cost of Government nationally."

"I charge that the executive budget suggested in this State by our opponents is in no way the same as the executive budget under which we work in Washington.

"They are no more alike than day is

SMITH ASSAILS RIVAL ON ECONOMY PLEDGE

Says Roosevelt Would Destroy All Administration's Efforts to Humanize State.

LISTS MEASURES AFFECTED

Charges Republicans With Campaign of Deceit in Speech to 2,500 in Mount Vernon.

Governor Smith began the final week of his Gubernatorial campaign by invading Mount Vernon last night. Speaking to a crowd of about 1,500 persons in Turnverein Hall, all that it would hold, and to about a thousand more outside who heard him through radio amplifiers, the Governor warned the people against electing his Republican opponent and getting the kind of economy in State government that they received under former Governor Miller and which Colonel Roosevelt promised to give in a speech at Patchogue last Saturday night.

The Governor pointed out that, after trying it for two years the people overwhelmingly repudiated the Miller kind of economy and returned the Democrats to power. The Roosevelt kind of economy, the Governor said, would destroy every effort he had made to give a government of the human kind. He detailed the various measures enacted for the benefit of the public which, he said, would go to the scrap heap if Colonel Roosevelt were elected.

"There is an old saying that murder will out," said the Governor. "At Patchogue on Saturday night Colonel Roosevelt let the cat out of the bag when he said: 'During the last Republican Administration the cost of State government was cut 10 per cent. and with the next Republican Administration under me we will do the same thing.'

What Such Economy Means.

"When Mr. Roosevelt promises the same kind of economy that we received under the last Republican Administration he means that every human endeavor, everything calculated to promote the health and happiness of our people and to protect human life and lessen suffering is to be neglected and governmental activities are to be confined to a cold-blooded machine for the administration of routine affairs.

"In order that the people of the State may fully appreciate the significance of Mr. Roosevelt's declaration, it is necessary to recount at this time just what activities of the State would suffer if we are to have a repetition of the kind of economy that we had under the last Republican Administration, all of which had to be taken up and paid for afterward."

The Governor said it meant that the poor, the sick and the afflicted in the State institutions under this policy would again have to suffer. It meant, he said, more patients sleeping on floors and in passageways, and that repairs to buildings, fire prevention and necessary new construction again would have to be abandoned.

"The last Republican Administration," said the Governor, "cut down to a starvation point the appropriations required for their food and clothing and left them without proper medical attendance and supervision. It went so far as to compel the resignation of two members of the Hospital Commission, with a record of long and distinguished service, because they protested before the State Senate against such inhuman treatment of the mentally afflicted wards of the State.

Would Cripple Labor Department.

"The activities of the Labor Department will again be crippled. Again it will be rendered helpless to enforce the labor code for the protection of the health, comfort and safety of the men, women and children in industry.

"The last Republican Administration, whose methods Colonel Roosevelt says he will follow if elected to office, cut the appropriations in this department in half and paralyzed the administration of the Workmen's Compensation law.

"It is the kind of economy that means the neglect of measures to promote the public health. It means that we will again fail to make adequate provision for the killing of tubercular cattle and the consequent spread of disease.

"It is the kind of false economy that means a weakening of our efforts to preserve forests and streams, the great gifts of nature herself.

"It means a weakening of our great park program intended to provide places of fresh air and recreation, not only for our own people of today but for the generations to come.

"It means the continuance of the slaughter of human beings at dangerous

DAVIS ASKS COOLIDGE TO STATE POSITION ON CORRUPTION ISSUE

Also Demands to Know Where the President Stands on Other Public Matters.

MENTIONS TAX AND TARIFF

Says People Also Have Right to Know G. O. P. Attitude on Farms and Labor.

HE SPEAKS IN JERSEY CITY

Discusses Campaign Funds, Saying Democrats Give but Do Not Sell Service.

The position of President Coolidge and the Republican Party on official corruption, taxation, the tariff and other issues of the campaign was asked last night by John W. Davis, Democratic candidate for President, in a speech at the Fourth Regiment Armory in Jersey City.

Mr. Davis's assertion that the American people were entitled to know where his opponent stood on matters of interest to them came as the result of a question concerning the Ku Klux Klan which came from a man in the audience. Instead of asking the usual question about Mr. Davis's own attitude toward the Klan, the questioner asked what was the position of President Coolidge, whom the Democratic nominee had challenged on the issue early in the campaign.

"No reply has been received by me," Mr. Davis replied. "If the gentleman has received anything from that quarter he has more information than I have. That's one of the tabooed topics at Washington."

The Hudson County Democrats under Mayor Frank Hague turned out in force to give Mr. Davis an enthusiastic greeting. Senator Edward I. Edwards presided and Mayor Frederick W. Donnelly of Trenton, candidate for United States Senator, spoke briefly preceding Mr. Davis and denounced the members of the Ku Klux Klan as "snakes in the grass."

Senator Edge Attacked.

John Matthews of Newark attacked Senator Walter E. Edge, candidate for re-election on the Republican ticket for "pussy-footing" on prohibition and the Klan.

Mr. Davis warned his hearers indirectly against the use of money by the Republicans and characterized the Democratic Party as a "volunteer army" with no favors to sell.

In discussing President Coolidge's failure to discuss campaign issues, Mr. Davis read from an editorial in The New York World which declared facetiously that the President had expressed himself in the following topics during the campaign: "The Supreme Court, Mr. Roosevelt, Irrigation, Electric Railways, the ZR-3, Christopher Columbus, Forget-Me-Not Day, Hampton Institute, Henry Ford, Sam Lazarus, Charles Nagle, the Regulation of the Radio, Navy, the American Revolution, the Jewish New Year, Parking Space and the Smoki Indians.

It was at this point that Mr. Davis was interrupted by the Klan question. After answering this question the nominee said he believed that there were other topics which the American people were entitled to information.

"The first of those topics," he said, "is where the Republican nominee stands on the question of corruption in government. I make no charge against his personal honesty. I make no charge of official delinquency, but I have read—indeed, I have heard with dismay—the statement made by the President of the United States in April last that the wonder is, not that the corruption was so much or so many, but rather that it has been so little and so few, and I asked myself, and I asked the American people, if they are ready to accept in the conduct of their governmental affairs any other standard than that of absolute honesty.

"No!" shouted a voice from the floor.

"And where do we stand on taxation?" Mr. Davis continued. "It was the boast of the Administration that the Mellon plan was the highest system of tax reform that human wit could devise. And when it came to Congress, not even the followers of the President were ready to accept it. But Democratic brains and Democratic hands framed a bill more just and equal that rests upon the statute books today. And is it the purpose now, or is it not the purpose of the

Wants a Roosevelt Monument Alongside Balboa's in Panama

Copyright, 1924, by Chicago Tribune Co.

COLON, Oct. 27.—Dr. Arosemena, Governor of Colon, said today:

"Panama has her memorial to Balboa, Colonel Cervantes, the French Canal digger, and Major Gen. W. C. Gorgas, and the time is now ripe for a fitting monument to Theodore Roosevelt, which should be constructed of stone from Culebra and erected at the Atlantic terminal of the canal he brought into being. Colonel Roosevelt is beloved by Panama. His terms of office were always marked by justice to our country, and to him we owe our independence."

There is a strong feeling here among Panamans for a memorial to Colonel Roosevelt.

P. D. HAUGHTON DIES, STRICKEN SUDDENLY

Columbia Football Coach Suffers Heart Attack as He Prepares for Practice.

END COMES IN AN HOUR

Famous as Founder of the Harvard Football System—Was Noted Athlete in Youth.

Percy D. Haughton, head coach of football at Columbia, former Harvard athlete and coach and one of the great figures of the gridiron in the last twenty years, died suddenly of heart failure in St. Luke's Hospital yesterday afternoon. The end came at 5:10 o'clock, only forty minutes after he had entered the hospital and only forty-eight hours after his Columbia team, by a victory on Saturday, had reached its greatest heights in ten seasons.

Less than two hours before his death Mr. Haughton had started to don his uniform at Baker Field, preparatory to going out on the gridiron and sending his squad through the daily practice. At the last minute, yielding to the insistence of Dr. Paul C. Withington, medical director and line coach of the team, Mr. Haughton turned his task over to Withington and lay down in the coaches' room.

When Dr. Withington returned a few minutes later Haughton complained that the pain in his chest and shoulders was growing worse. He had difficulty in breathing and he was perspiring profusely. Dr. Withington, diagnosing it as acute indigestion, prevailed on Haughton to drive with him to St. Luke's in the former's car.

When they arrived at the hospital at 4:30 Mr. Haughton went to bed immediately. An examination by Dr. Everett W. Gould disclosed that his heart apparently was not affected. Following a hypodermic injection and other treatment, the famous coach said that he felt better.

"I feel better, but still I don't think much of your medicine," he said jokingly to Dr. Withington.

Then to Dr. Gould he remarked. "I feel so much better that I think I'll be back on the job in a day or so."

Within a minute he was dead. Dr. Gould, following Mr. Haughton's last remark, bent forward to make another test of the heart. As he applied the stethoscope, the physician began to assure his patient that his heart seemed to be normal. Before he could finish the sentence, Mr. Haughton was seized with a severe convulsion and passed away, with the doctor still bent over him.

The cause of death was angina pectoris, or neuralgia of the heart, caused by the failure of the blood to circulate through the heart muscles. Mr. Haughton had never been troubled before with this ailment, which usually is of a chronic nature, but it was disclosed that his mother and one of his brothers had died from a similar cause.

Columbia's big body of undergraduates and alumni were stunned by the suddenness of Haughton's death and shocked by the passing of the coach who after last Saturday's game had been acclaimed as the man who would lead the Blue and White out of the football wilderness.

"Haughton's real obituary was written in the Sunday papers," said one grief-stricken alumnus, referring to the glowing accounts of Columbia's victory over Williams and of Haughton's magic skill in developing the best team Columbia had seen since 1905.

When he died Haughton was on the threshold of perhaps his greatest achievement. As the founder of the famous Harvard system of fifteen years ago, Haughton became the great coaching genius of football, the most talked-about figure in the gridiron sport. He carried the scientific spirit into football and won through precision, exactness, system and discipline.

But when this great coach came to Columbia, it was conceded that he was

Forest Fires May End State Hunting Season; Connecticut Acts, Bay State May Follow

ALBANY, Oct. 27.—On receiving reports of eighteen forest fires today the Conservation Commission considered asking Governor Smith to issue a proclamation excluding all hunters from State forests.

William G. Howard, Assistant Superintendent of Lands and Forests, said that crews of from fifty to 100 men were fighting eight fires this morning, four in Warren County and one each in Hamilton, Fulton, Saratoga and Essex Counties.

Most of the fires are believed to have been started by careless hunters. At least 1,000 acres of forest had been burned over this morning.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Oct. 27. Forest fires in the northern part of Saratoga County today were being fought by volunteers, who reported they feared the flames would get beyond control.

DOVER, N. J., Oct. 27.—Arsenal artificers and soldiers are still fighting the forest fire that has been menacing the Picatinny Government arsenal reservation.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 27.—The Autumn drought in Connecticut forests has become so dangerous that Governor Templeton today suspended the hunting season and declared that all hunting laws of the closed season shall remain in force on game of all kinds until further notice.

CONCORD, N. H., Oct. 27.—Forest fires which have already destroyed thousands of acres of timberland were raging in many parts of New Hampshire today. Hunters and campers are held responsible for scores of fires along the Massachusetts-New Hampshire boundary. More than 500,000 feet of stacked lumber was destroyed yesterday in Raymond and Candia.

FITCHBURG, Mass., Oct. 27.—Mayor Fellows, in a letter today to Governor Cox, suggested that the open season on game be suspended in this State as one of the means to check forest fires.

Any One Desiring Information on Payments Must Submit Written Request to the Collector.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—The conflict which Treasury officials thought they saw in two sections of the Revenue act of 1924 respecting publicity of income taxes is believed by expert legal authorities here to be unfounded. They think the law as it stands speaks so clearly on the subject that redrafting of this part of the act by Congress will be unnecessary.

Attorney General Stone, who returned from Iowa yesterday, was prevented from formulating an official opinion today because of the funeral of Secretary Wallace. Last week the Department of Justice, following newspaper inquiries, prepared complete data of the law respecting the question in controversy. Mr. Stone had nothing to say in advance of examination of this data, and department officials declined to discuss the matter. It is the understanding, however, that the Attorney General will be able to give an opinion at a very early date. He wishes to do so, it is explained, because of the keen interest throughout the country in what he may determine.

Treasury officials maintained today the same attitude as last week when they threw open the tax lists to public inspection and three days later issued a warning intimating that Congress had put a ban on the publication of the information thus made public. They declared there was nothing further to be done until the Attorney General made known his interpretation of the law.

Whatever action the Treasury may then take will depend upon the nature of Mr. Stone's ruling. If he holds the law forbids publicity, it is likely they will stand pat on what has been done heretofore. If he holds that publicity of the material made public is clearly within the law, collectors may be so advised, in order that they may no longer feel it necessary to inform the newspapers of the risk attending publication.

Different Views of the Law.

Keen interest is found in a dissection of the two publicity sections of the law. While some lawyers hold with Treasury officials that Congress enacted a flat contradiction in the Revenue act of June 2, 1924, which carried Section 257 (B) instructing the Commissioner to throw open certain tax data, and Section 3167 of the Revised Statutes, limiting publication, a careful analysis that has been made of these provisions by other expert lawyers indicates that the sections are in harmony, and it will cause no surprise if the Attorney General should reach that conclusion.

Section 257 (b) is explicit in its direction that "the Commissioner shall as soon as practicable in each year cause to be prepared and made available to public inspection in such manner as he may determine a list showing the name and post office address of each person making an income-tax return in such district, together with the amount of the income tax paid by such person."

That part of Section 3167 of the Revised Statutes which Treasury officials said was apropos at this point reads:

"And it shall be unlawful for any person to print or publish in any manner whatever not provided by law any income return, or any part thereof, or source of income, profits, losses or expenditures appearing in any income return; and any offense against the foregoing provision shall be a misdemeanor and be punished by a fine not exceeding $1,000, or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both, at the discretion of the Court."

Four words in this provision are regarded as making it perfectly proper for newspapers to publish the information contained in the lists made public under Section 257 (b). These words are "not provided by law." It is contended that if these words had not been included the Commissioner of Internal Revenue's warning would have been well established; but that since they do appear, they make it proper for the information contained in the tax lists to be used by the press. Coupled with this is the evident intention of Congress that the amounts of taxes paid should become public.

Question Hangs on "Return."

The question hangs largely on whether the amount of the income tax, strictly speaking, is part of the "return" referred to in Section 3167 of the Revised Statutes. Discretion was given by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue in Section 257 (b) to make the lists available for public inspection "in such manner as he may determine," with the specific instruction that the list should contain the name of the individual making the return and the amount of tax paid.

It is contended that this action of Congress clearly removed the amount of tax and made it separate from the "return" as referred to in Section 3167. Once the Commissioner of Internal Revenue compiled with the

it is held, the information was open to the public and outside the ban applying to the body of the "return."

With regard to the argument that the publicity was not to be retroactive and therefore was not applicable to income tax returns for the calendar year 1923, it is held that the instruction to the Commissioner is clear in that he is directed to prepare the lists "as soon as practicable in each year." The law was enacted June 2, 1924.

Numerous protests against the publication of returns continue to be received by the Treasury, but no action upon them is being taken. All officials are awaiting the opinion of the Attorney General.

The question of whether the Treasury Department had the right under law to make the income of a taxpayer public until after Dec. 15, when the last instalment of the tax was due, was raised today.

The contention was made that, although the law states that the "tax paid" shall be made available to the public, the figures recently released could not be the actual tax paid, for two reasons. In the first place, it was argued, the last quarter of the tax had not yet been paid. In the second place, it was said, due to the delay in the Treasury Department incident to the enormous task of auditing the returns the taxpayer makes, the department could not yet have had an opportunity to examine the 1923 returns thoroughly, and thus the amounts given out must be, in the majority of cases, merely the taxpayer's calculation of what he should pay, a figure subject to further adjustment when his returns are looked into.

On these points Charles R. Nash, Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue, said tonight that it was technically true that the figures given out were not the amounts paid, and that in many cases the returns had not yet been audited, but that if an auditing showed any change in the tax this would also be made public.

The matter was highly complicated and technical, Mr. Nash said, but had been carefully considered by the Treasury Department and all the legal points involved had been examined. He held that the law contemplated that the amount submitted by the taxpayer should be made public. The figure on the books should be available, according to this interpretation. Mr. Nash added that any changes could also be made public up to the barrier imposed by the statute of limitations.

So far as making the amounts public, although the last quarter had not been paid, he said, it was necessary to make some arbitrary rule, for the reason that some persons paid quarterly instalments, some paid the tax in full, some paid it at other times, and, in fact, there were various ways of paying the amount due. After consideration, it was determined that the Treasury was within its right in releasing the "tax paid" after the third instalment had been handed in.

The statement made in some quarters that the law was intended to apply to taxes for 1924 and not those of 1923 was answered by Mr. Nash with the comment that this point had been carefully examined from a legal standpoint. At the Treasury it was pointed out that the commissioner was directed under the law to prepare the lists "as soon as practicable in each year," and that the law was enacted June 2, 1924.

NO ONE IS ALLOWED TO SEE TAX BOOKS

Collectors Here Require Persons Seeking Information on Payments to Write Requests.

Collectors of Internal Revenue in the metropolitan district continued yesterday to refuse to open to public inspection records of income tax payments, but supplied the information when individual names were presented. For the public, however, this was a tedious process as an average of fifteen minutes was taken for each name.

The collectors were awaiting instructions from Washington on what they should do, but no word had come when the offices closed at 5 o'clock last night. Until some interpretation of the law is given they said they would consider that publication was expressly forbidden by law and for that reason as well as the fact that it would hamper their work, they would not permit actual inspection of the books.

During the day individuals called at the three offices of the bureau here, but were not permitted to view the records. They were required to write out the name of the individual or corporation whose payment they wished to ascertain and when this was done the files were consulted by clerks of the bureau and the information extracted.

Two unusual requests were made at the Second District office in the Custom House. The first was from a large downtown bank, the name of which was not given out. This application was for the income tax payments of its depositors, and a list of 9,000 names was submitted. The officer of the bank who made the request was informed that it could not be complied with at this time. Officials also took under consideration the application of a woman who wanted to see all the payments under a certain name. Examination of the card index showed there were forty or fifty of them and the woman was told that she would have to give an address. She explained that she was trying to locate her father, whom she had not seen for twenty years. She will be helped if investigation shows her story to be true.

Frank K. Bowers, collector in the Second District, announced that in the future information would be given out only between the hours of 10 A. M. and noon. He has assigned one clerk to the task.

In the Third District, also, only one clerk was assigned to answer inquiries about tax payments, and in seven hours only twenty-two payments were made public. This worked out at about three an hour, but as thirty names came back as having filed no return, and little time was needed to ascertain that, the average was about fifteen minutes for each name. At this rate it would take ninety-one years to get the tax paid by those whose records are filed in that district.

Charles W. Anderson, collector in the Third District, declined at first to see reporters, but later changed his mind. He said, however, that he would not permit public inspection of the records, remarking that it reminded him of Goldsmith's verses to a Dog, which he recited. Nor would he be more specific. When asked if he would give his refusal in writing he declined. Nevertheless formal application in writing was made, but before it was submitted Collector Anderson issued the following statement:

"Assuming that the request is made for publication, this remains my reply:

"I hope you will not think me unnecessarily severe in declining to permit lists of income tax payments to be made for publication in the absence of specific instructions from the Internal Revenue Bureau and in advance of a ruling on the subject by the Attorney General.

"I feel that it is my official duty to take this position. This may seem severe, but questions of official duty are often unavoidably severe. Nothing will show that a public official is worth his salt but that which necessitates severity. The voice of duty within us is severe.

"Let us hope, however, that the matter will soon be simplified by an official opinion on the apparent conflict between the Revenue act of 1924 and Section 3167 of the Revised Statutes. Until then I shall continue to decline to authorize the preparation of lists of taxpayers intended for publication unless otherwise instructed by the bureau."

More protests against publication of the names and amounts paid by income taxpayers were received yesterday by John A. Rafferty, the Internal Revenue Collector in Brooklyn. While the number of protests appeared to be increasing, the number of inquirers for tax information who have been filing in and out of the office since the payments were made public record last week was noticeably less yesterday. Mr. Rafferty announced that, despite the protests, he would continue to give to those who signed information concerning specifically named taxpayers. Two clerks were assigned for that purpose.

While there had been talk of an injunction, no application to restrain the giving out of the payments was made to Judge Marcus B. Campbell in the Equity Term of the Federal court in Brooklyn. It was rumored Saturday that a political candidate contemplated such action.

Criticism of the publicity feature of the law continued yesterday.

"The opening of the list of income tax payers showing the amounts they paid," said Representative Loring M. Black of Brooklyn, "was entirely premature, because the law that opens the information to inspection calls for a list containing the amount of tax paid. These taxes will not be paid in many instances until the last quarterly instalment is due, next Dec. 15.

"It is quite evident that when the Treasury Department did this they did so in violation of the very law which they quoted as authority. Also, they violated a section of the law against publicity which was re-enacted into the new bill without change. This is Section 1018 of the Internal Revenue act of 1924 and it makes publication a crime."

The following correspondence of last June between the Rev. H. Percy Silver, rector of the Church of the Incarnation, Madison Avenue and Thirty-fifth Street, and Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, was given out:

June 13, 1924.

The Hon. Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, Treasury Department, Washington, D. C.

My Dear Mr. Mellon: Like a great many other American citizens, I have been very much distressed to note that a proposition made by Senator Norris of Nebraska was enacted into law and which made provision for any citizen of this country to go to the Post Office and gain access to the income tax returns of anybody. I appreciate that you consider this to have been as wild and unjust a piece of legislation as I do, and as I believe the great majority of Americans do. I am writing to make the following suggestion:

It will, of course, be necessary to provide some way in which an inquirer can see these tax returns. Some rules and regulations must be made about it. Probably some one in the Post Office might be designated to look the matter up and supply such information, and I am wondering why if there are any regulations made at all, it might not be possible to make the following provision:

Any one desiring information regarding the income tax returns of another shall fill out a blank form stating that he ..... hereby make application to inspect the income tax returns of ....."

to which request should be affixed their name and address. A copy of this request should be forwarded to the individual or corporation whose income tax returns are to be inspected.

My dear Mr. Secretary, it seems to me that this is only fair and right and would serve to stop mere idle curiosity seekers by exposing the fact that they are making this inquiry and would also serve to allow business men to know which of their competitors are moved with enough anxiety to inquire into their affairs.

I respectfully submit this suggestion. I believe it is in harmony with the spirit of America. Why should this Government provide shelter under which individuals may be protected by the Government to pry into the private affairs of any other citizen? If the tax returns are to be thrown open, everyone who inspects them should be made to do so in the open and not under cover.

I beg to assure you, Sir, of my high opinion and regard for you and for the splendid service you have rendered the nation. You should have the satisfaction of realizing that your great services are appreciated by the great majority of the people of this country.

With kindest personal regards and every good wish, I have the honor to be, respectfully yours,

H. PERCY SILVER.
Rector of the Church of the Incarnation.

The Secretary of the Treasury, Washington.

June 21, 1924.

Rev. H. Percy Silver, Rector, Church of the Incarnation, Madison Avenue, Thirty-fifth Street, New York City.

My dear Rev. Silver—I have your letter of June 13, 1924, containing several suggestions with reference to regulations for the inspection of income tax returns.

I believe that you have been misinformed as to the actual provision in this respect of the revenue act as adopted. There is no provision in the act for the inspection of taxpayers' returns in the various Post Offices. It is provided, however, that the amount of income tax paid by any person within the district shall be available to public inspection in the various collectors' offices, and that income tax returns shall be open for inspection to the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives, the Committee on Finance of the Senate, and to any special committee of either House.

I shall refer your letter to the committee in this department which is preparing the income tax regulations, for their careful consideration. I appreciate the interest you have shown in forwarding your suggestion. Respectfully, A. W. MELLON, Secretary of the Treasury.

COUZENS FAVORS PUBLICITY

Says Congress Wished Tax-Payment Lists to Be Available to All.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 27.—In the opinion of Senator James Couzens of Michigan it was the intention of Congress that income tax payments be made public and accessible for newspaper publication.

"Concerning the controversy that is going on relative to newspapers publishing income tax lists," he said, "and the suggestion made by Senator La Follette that the committee of the Senate investigating the Internal Revenue Bureau call before it Commissioner Blair and Secretary Mellon, the members of the committee are so scattered throughout the various States that it is impossible to have a meeting until after election.

"I would not want to say what the committee would do without consulting my colleagues. There seems to be some conflict in the law and I would want to hear both sides of the argument before expressing an opinion as to what the Treasury Department should do. For my part, however, I can see no objection to the newspapers printing the lists, particularly in view of the fact that they are posted for public observance in the offices of the collectors throughout the country.

"I think it was the intention of Congress that these lists be made public by whatever means the public wanted them, or whosoever of the public wanted them."

NEW HEAVENLY BODY MOVING NEAR EARTH

Discovery of Dr. Baade, German Astronomer, Confirmed Here—May Be Comet or an Asteroid.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—A telegram from Copenhagen to the Royal Observatory at Greenwich says Dr. Baade, German astronomer, has discovered an object of the tenth magnitude, and planetary in aspect, moving so rapidly that he suspects it is a comet. Should this prove to be true, the discovery would be of the greatest interest because of the proximity of the object's orbit to the earth.

Its position at 7 o'clock tonight is given as right ascension 31 hours 26 minutes, north declination 12 degrees 50 minutes. It is not far from the star Epsilon in the constellation Pegasus, which constellation can be seen any evening at 7 o'clock near the zenith.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 27.—Confirmation of the discovery by the German astronomer Baade of a celestial object that may be a comet or an asteroid was received at the Harvard College observatory today in a cablegram announcing that the object had been seen again by the Belgian, Delporte. His observation agreed with that of Baade that it was of the tenth magnitude and that he had characteristics not those of a fixed star. He was unable, however, to identify it more definitely.

REPUBLICANS FIGHT FOR SOUTH DAKOTA

PARTY SPLIT OVER SENATOR

Dissatisfaction With McMaster Gives Democrats Hope of Electing Cherry.

DAVIS BACKERS APATHETIC

Progressives Expect to Win With Support of Rail Men, Miners and German Farmers.

Special to The New York Times.

ABERDEEN, S. D., Oct. 27.—Like its neighbor further north, South Dakota will remain until the moment the polls open a hotly contested battleground for La Follette and Coolidge combatants. The State is in the doubtful column today, with only a week remaining before election.

Republicans are conducting an aggressive fight under the joint leadership of William E. Milligan, member from this State of the Republican National Committee, and State Chairman George W. Wright, who has established a well-equipped fighting base at Huron. The National Committee is giving strong support to the local leaders. For the final week of the campaign not fewer than 200 meetings have been arranged under State Committee direction, with another 200 to be held under the management of county committees throughout the State. This program in itself is a demonstration of the critical situation in which the Republicans of South Dakota find themselves with the election drawing near.

Republicans have been making gains recently, according to the result of canvasses in sections where the fighting has been hard. They profess now to hope that the five electoral votes of the State may be won for President Coolidge. As one prominent South Dakota Republican put it:

"We are hopeful but not optimistic. We have left the tall timbers behind, but we are not out of the woods."

Governor McMaster's Fight.

This statement has reference solely to the national ticket. South Dakota will elect a United States Senator next week. The Republican candidate is William H. McMaster, who is serving his second term as Governor and is unpopular with the "stalwart" wing of the party in his State. If Governor McMaster wins next Tuesday, it will be by La Follette votes.

Governor is conducting an active campaign. He is not mentioning President Coolidge in his speeches. He is attacking the protective tariff. He is openly flirting with the adherents of La Follette and bidding for their votes. He is doing the Republicans no good on the stump. Many Republicans of influence in the party organization, while giving their support to the Governor after a fashion, feel that his election would not be a Republican victory in the real sense of that term, because upon assuming his seat in the Senate he would join hands with the La Follette bloc.

That Governor McMaster will come in for wholesale knifing by Republicans at the polls appears inevitable. Many party men in South Dakota are making no secret that they are going to vote for U. S. G. Cherry, the Democratic nominee for the Senate, who will be the principal beneficiary from the unpopularity of McMaster within his own party. The Farmer-Labor Party has a candidate in the field, Tom Ayres, who was manager of the Non-Partisan League in this State for several years.

In the independent column on the ballot appear the names of five other candidates for the office which Governor McMaster seeks. Four of these are Republicans, one of whom withdrew today, urging his supporters to give their votes to the Democratic nominee. Should Governor McMaster be defeated, Mr. Cherry, the Democrat, most likely will be the winner.

Factional Troubles Disturbing.

Following twelve years of aggressive Non-Partisan League propaganda and some years of agricultural depression, which thoroughly prepared the way for the coming of La Follette, the factional troubles, fanned into flame by the candidacy of Governor McMaster, have greatly aggravated a situation already bad enough to give the Republican leaders days of worry and sleepless nights. Party affiliations are not ties that bind in South Dakota. The Non-Partisan League, which appears in the present campaign as the Farmer-Labor Party with La Follette as its standard bearer, had seen to it during its campaign of education extending over a dozen years or more that the idea of party loyalty should be uprooted. The Republican leaders conducting the Coolidge campaign in this State virtually have been put to the necessity of building up a new party organization.

Republicans opposed to Governor McMaster will give loyal support to President Coolidge, but the latter is apt to suffer in other ways from the McMaster-Stalwart feud. With the patronage which he has been in a position to dispense during his two years as Governor, Mr. McMaster has contrived to build up a pretty strong personal machine. Many of the officeholders and others whose votes they can influence, the Stalwart leaders fear, will be quite willing to vote for La Follette in return for support for the Governor.

For similar reasons, John W. Davis is likely to suffer from the improved prospects of Mr. Cherry as an aspirant for the Senatorship. With sufficient support from anti-McMaster Republicans who would be willing to sacrifice the Governor, Mr. Cherry can win, many Democrats believe. A great deal is heard here of bargains through which Davis votes are shifted to Coolidge in return for Republican support for Cherry.

Little Work for Davis.

The Democrats have made practically no campaign for their national ticket, feeling that it would be useless to send speakers into this State, where the fight is so clearly between Coolidge and La Follette. The only Davis campaign pictures in sight in this city, for instance, are at the headquarters of the Davis-Bryan Campaign Club, which is deserted most of the time and used chiefly as a centre for the storing of campaign literature sent in by the National Committee, but not distributed to any great extent.

In this State the Third Party—the Farmer-Laborite—has a full State and Congressional ticket in the field. Miss Alice Lorraine Daly, long an organizer for the Non-Partisan League, and in 1920 its candidate for Governor, is head of the Farmer-Labor State Committee and in charge of its campaign headquarters in Mitchell.

Senator Hiram Johnson was the choice of the South Dakota Republicans for the Presidency. His primary campaign for delegates in this State, in which Coolidge and his Administration were handled without gloves, was managed by Charles Norbeck, brother of Senator Peter Norbeck, who then probably was the strongest man in the Republican Party organization in the State. Senator Norbeck was one of the staunchest champions for Johnson. Until recently he has not taken an active part in the campaign. Now he is on the stump and making speeches which the Republican leaders pronounce very satisfactory from their point of view and helpful in their struggle to secure the electoral vote of the State for Coolidge.

Railroading, agriculture and, to a smaller extent, mining are the chief industries of South Dakota. The railroad vote, from the present outlook, will go almost undivided to La Follette, who will get a large percentage of the organized labor vote in other industries. Among the farmers, Germans and Scandinavians, in the main, he has a strong following. A Republican leader estimated that 80 per cent. of the German vote would be cast for the Third Party candidate, but there were indications of the Scandinavians returning to their original Republican affiliations.

BUTLER URGES VOTERS TO GO TO THE POLLS

Points to 55 Per Cent. Vote of 1920 as Alarming—Asks Final Drive for Coolidge.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—William M. Butler, Republican National Chairman, in a statement attacking "vote slackers" today, urged Republican workers to get out a full vote on Nov. 4 in order to insure the election of President Coolidge. He said:

"In years past stay-at-home voters, through negligence, have decided elections. It is important this year, more than ever before, that all of the men and women of America who have the right to vote go to the polls and exercise that privilege.

"If a full vote is cast there can be no question about the outcome. Calvin Coolidge will be elected President one week from tomorrow by an overwhelming majority. But it is highly important that during the next week every effort be made to impress upon every one the necessity of participating in the choice of a President.

"In 1920 the total vote for all Presidential candidates was 26,718,832, the largest vote ever cast. It is significant, however, that in the same year there were 25,705,063 persons having the right to vote who did not go to the polls. In other words, for every 100 votes cast for President in 1920 there were 96 stay-at-homes.

"In some States the number of stay-at-homes exceeded voters. The percentage of vote slackers has been growing.

"In 1896 it has been figured, 80 per cent. of the qualified citizens voted. In 1900 the percentage was 73 per cent. In 1912 it had dropped to 62 per cent. In 1920 it was about 55 per cent. This is enough to alarm every American who believes in our institutions.

"I make this appeal to every man and woman in the country who believes in Calvin Coolidge and in Republican principles to do everything in his or her power between now and election day to see that a full vote is cast. Registration in many of our large cities indicates a tremendous interest. But registration is only the first step."

SAYS NEGROES BACK DAVIS.

Leader Asserts They Will Fight Klan Thus in Indiana.

The assertion that the great majority of negro voters of Indiana would vote for John W. Davis, Democratic nominee for President, as a protest against what they considered domination of the Republican Party in that State by the Ku Klux Klan, was made yesterday by Robert W. Bagnall, Director of branches of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, on his return from a trip there.

"Negro organizations have been formed in ten of the Indiana cities for the purpose of defeating the Klan through voting the Democratic ticket," he said. "The general sentiment is in favor, not of splitting the ticket, but of voting the straight Democratic ticket, national as well as State."

MARTINE WON'T AID DAVIS.

Former Jersey Senator Opposed to League of Nations.

James E. Martine of Plainfield, N. J., former United States Senator from New Jersey, yesterday wrote an open letter to Harry Heher, Democratic State Chairman for New Jersey, in reply to a request for a campaign contribution.

Mr. Martine said he would contribute if he could be assured that his check would be used to elect the Democratic candidate for United States Senator, and Democratic members of the State Legislature, but that he was opposed to the election of John W. Davis as President. He explained that he was against "entangling alliances" and thought Mr. Davis was wrong in his advocacy of the League of Nations.

Dry Candidate Barred in Jersey.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 27.—In conformity with the ruling of Supreme Court Justice Minturn Saturday deciding that the name of the Rev. James K. Shields should not go on the ballot as an independent Senatorial candidate, the Supreme Court today dismissed actions brought in eleven counties to force County Clerks to add the name of the dry candidate to the official ballots to be voted next Tuesday.

FALL IS BIG ISSUE IN NEW MEXICO RACE

Bursum's Alleged Friendship for Him May Cost Him the Senatorship.

COOLIDGE MAY CARRY STATE

He Is Also Strong in Arizona—"Ma" Ferguson Has a Hard Fight in Texas.

Special to The New York Times.

EL PASO, Texas., Oct. 27.—Here in El Paso, the political clearing house of the border, everybody is talking politics, and in a day's visit to the various political headquarters one can get forecasts from the prediction that Coolidge has a chance to carry Texas to one seeing a smashing Democratic victory across the line in New Mexico.

However, one thing appears certain—that George C. Butte, the Republican candidate for Governor of Texas, is going to roll up the biggest Republican vote ever cast in the history of the Lone Star State. On the other hand, there appears to be no doubt that John W. Davis will win the State's 20 electoral votes by a majority which is expected to exceed 150,000 and which may be more than 200,000.

What New York City is to the Northeast, El Paso is to this part of the Southwest. It is the only big city between Los Angeles and San Antonio. It is the political centre of that part of the border country that lies between Yuma, Ariz., on the west and Del Rio on the east. To get a line on what is going on in New Mexico and Arizona it is only necessary to spend a day in this desert city, and the same is true of that part of Texas which lies to the west of Del Rio, the little Rio Grande city where the 5,000-foot climb to the Big Bend country begins.

As to New Mexico, it is conceded by all parties that the race for her three electoral votes is today a three-cornered affair, with Coolidge and Davis apparently neck and neck and La Follette a few lengths behind.

Albert Bacon Fall is a big issue in New Mexico. It is his home State and, despite his misfortunes, he still has a lot of friends who refuse to believe that he sold the Elk Hills Oil Reservation to Edward L. Doheny or the Teapot Dome to Harry F. Sinclair for a consideration. In their campaigns for the State's electoral votes and also for the Senate and the House the Democrats are playing the Elk Hills and Teapot Dome leases as their trump card. The Republicans are preaching Coolidge and good times, and, when necessary, pointing out that the leases were made while Mr. Harding was in the White House.

Unofficial polls from various parts of New Mexico show Coolidge running away from the field in one town, and another locality right next to it will be just as solid for Davis. Here and there are other places where the La Follette trend is apparent. Everywhere in the State there is a big Mexican vote, and if it swings to the Democrats Davis will have the best chance of carrying the State; the odds will be the other way if the Mexicans turn to Coolidge. La Follette's chance depend on his ability to hold intact the railroad, miner and trades union vote, and a fair proportion of the range and farm vote. The La Follette managers insist that he has a chance, but the surface indications do not appear to justify their optimism.

Senator Bursum Has Hard Fight.

The race for the Senate in New Mexico appears to be another neck-and-neck affair, and here again the Fall issue is paramount. Senator H. O. Bursum is again the Republican candidate, while the Democratic standard bearer is one of the ablest lawyers in the State, former Associate Justice Samuel G. Bratton of the New Mexico Supreme Court.

The Democrats charge that Bursum was a close friend of Mr. Fall's, and that his appointment as Mr. Fall's successor in the Senate was largely dictated by the ex-Secretary. Bursum's vote to exonerate Senator Newberry is another handicap he faces, while his vote to override the Coolidge vetoes of the bonus and pension bills has not helped him with the old-line Republicans. Where the race appears to be anybody's, with the odds probably favoring Judge Bratton.

In Arizona a similar situation exists, but the battle for her electoral votes is not complicated by a bitter contest for the Senate, as in New Mexico. The Third Party, on paper, appears to have made better headway in Arizona than in New Mexico, and La Follette seems to have a good outside chance to win the State. It looks now as if the President has the edge, with Mr. Davis and Senator La Follette battling for second honors. Arizona, however, went heavily Democratic two years ago, and re-elected Senator Ashurst by a landslide majority.

The Democrats say that vote is nearly intact. If that is so, Mr. Davis has better than an even chance to win the State. The cold facts, however, do not seem to justify these rose-tinted Democratic hopes, for in 1922 Ashurst polled the majority of the mine and labor vote, and there appears no doubt that La Follette will get a big part of it this year.

Now as to Texas. The Republicans admit that Coolidge cannot carry the State, but they do not concede the Governorship, and with an even break, they boast that they will overwhelm "Ma" Ferguson and elect George C. Butte, who is Dean of the University of Texas Law School. The total vote of the State may pass the 1,000,000 mark. The bigger the vote the better Mr. Butte's chances, is the Republican argument.

Klan is Supporting Butte.

That Mr. Butte is going to poll a great vote is frankly admitted by the Democrats, and they say it may be as high as 400,000, but that would still leave the little "Ma" of Temple a margin of 200,000, and old-time Texans say that is a handicap which no Republican can overcome. Mr. Butte is expected to get virtually the solid Ku Klux Klan vote. That is, the part which survived the Democratic primary, a large non-partisan business vote, and the regular Republican vote, the latter being approximately 125,000. A large number of Democratic newspapers, among them The Dallas Times-Herald, which supported the Klan in the primary, are urging the election of Mr. Butte. It looks like "Ma" now, but Mr. Butte is worth watching.

In the Presidential race the only contest appears to be between Coolidge and La Follette for second place, with the President in the best position. The President's Mexican policies have won him hosts of friends in El Paso, San Antonio and other border cities and towns. He will also get a considerable conservative Democratic vote. No one will be surprised if his vote turns out to be the largest ever given a Republican candidate for the Presidency since Texas entered the Union.

The President and Senator La Follette can, according to the way the situation lines up, poll between themselves a total of 300,000 votes, but even so, Mr. Davis would still have the State by from 150,000 to 200,000. The best guess appears to be that La Follette may get 100,000 and Coolidge probably 150,000 votes. If they do they will have broken the record for minority returns in Texas.

SPAIN QUITS SHESHUAN; MORE TRIBES HOSTILE

Two New Moroccan Groups Are Reported Joining Enemies of Spanish Occupation.

Copyright, 1924, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MADRID, Oct. 27.—The first stage in the operations for withdrawal from Sheshuan took place yesterday. A column under General Castro Girona protected the withdrawal of the garrison from Draa-el-Asef, ten miles southwest of Sheshuan. The retreating forces halted at Akarrat, four miles from Draa-el-Asef. The communiqué does not say what losses were incurred.

Several positions in the Larache zone were also evacuated, their garrisons retreating with their arms. The garrison of the blockhouse at Abada, which at the end of two months' defense was reduced from twenty-two persons to one Lieutenant and seven men, was rescued. The communiqué does not say whether this was done by force of arms or a payment of gold.

It has been found difficult to keep the Tetuan-Tangier road clear, though numerous new posts are being set up along it. Colonel Milian Astray, organizer of the Foreign Legion, and a very popular officer, who had just returned to active service after an enforced absence of many months owing to political reasons, was shot through the arm and an engineer accompanying him was killed while on the way to take up his command.

Tribesmen are reported to be returning in increasing numbers to till their fields, and the character of the fighting is no longer fierce. It would seem that isolated posts are being besieged with a view to ransom rather than capture.

TANGIER, Oct. 27.—There seems no doubt that the powerful tribe of Anjera, which hitherto had remained loyal to the Spaniards, is on the point of joining the rebel cause.

The Anjera territory extends from near Tetuan northward and westward to the vicinity of Cuta and the frontier of the Tangier zone, including the whole southern shore of the Straits of Gibraltar.

The smaller tribe of El Haus, dwelling immediately north of Tetuan, through whose territory the Tetuan-Ceuta road runs nearly the whole distance to Ceuta, it appears, will follow the example of the Anjera tribe. This new movement threatens the Tetuan-Ceuta communications. Already a Spanish convoy has been attacked in Anjera territory.

LA FOLLETTE RALLY HELD.

Speaker Says That Progressives Will Get Ohio and Michigan.

Speaking at Cooper Union last night William B. Rubin, La Follette campaigner, who has just returned from a tour of the West, predicted that Ohio and Michigan would go to the Progressives. He also said that La Follette would lead in Western Pennsylvania.

"Coolidge will not be the next President of the United States," said Mr. Rubin. "My trip through the West has made me certain of that. Neither will Davis be the winner. If Eastern States will do what the Western States are going to do Bob La Follette will walk into the White House."

Abraham Lefkowitz presided at the meeting and the other speakers included William H. Johnston, Joseph P. Coughlin, Morris Hillquit and Mrs. Maud Swarts.

LA FOLLETTE SEES SUGAR TRUST PLOT

Senator, in Baltimore, Says Delay by Coolidge Costs Housewives $1,000,000 a Week.

WIRE-PULLING IS CHARGED

Attempts Were Made to Coerce Culbertson to Hold Up Report, He Declares.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 27.—Attacking President Coolidge for his delay on the sugar tariff report, Senator La Follette in an address here tonight charged that sugar interests had attempted to coerce Vice Chairman William S. Culbertson to delay the Tariff Commission's report. That failing, Senator La Follette charged, attempts were made to induce Mr. Culbertson to resign from the board to accept other appointments and thus deadlock the board so that no report favoring a reduction in the tariff would be made.

According to Senator La Follette, every week that the President's decision on the sugar tariff is delayed costs American housewives $1,000,000, and twelve weeks have passed since the report was placed before him.

The Third Party nominee discussed the events preceding the resignation from the commission of Henry H. Glassie, whose wife was the owner of sugar stock. He criticised President Coolidge for remaining silent when other members of the commission protested against Mr. Glassie's participation in the hearing.

Declares Delay Was Sought.

"Every effort was made by the sugar interests to delay the report of the commission," Senator La Follette said. "There was a long controversy in the Tariff Commission as to whether the expert findings should be immediately considered so that an early report might be made to President Coolidge. Finally, on May 22, by a vote of 3 to 2, the commission decided to take up the report and press it to an early decision. If Commissioner Glassie had not been forced to withdraw, this report would still be hanging fire."

Senator La Follette said that two days later Senator Smoot called Mr. Culbertson to his offices. Mr. Culbertson was taken to an adjoining room, where some members of Congress "representing sugar interests," and lawyers and lobbyists for sugar interests were present. Senator La Follette continued:

"Thus the Vice Chairman of the Tariff Commission was subjected to a cross-fire of criticism from the sugar lawyers interested in the case then pending before the committee. This was after arguments had been made in this sugar case and while the case was under consideration by the Commissioner.

"Do you understand what this means? Here was the Vice Chairman of the Tariff Commission, sitting as a Judge in a case which was to be reported to the President as a basis for determining the President's decision on the sugar tariff, who, through the influence of one of the most powerful members of his own political party—the Republican Party—was brought into a private conference with the attorneys representing one side of the controversy then pending before him.

"It is fair to Commissioner Culbertson, Commissioner Costigan and Commissioner Lewis to say that this coarse proceeding on the part of these representatives of the sugar trust had no influence upon this action.

Says Justice Department Was Used.

"The system did not stop there. All through the Summer it kept up its pressure on this Commissioner in every conceivable way in an attempt to persuade him to delay submitting the report of the commission to President Coolidge until after the election.

"The Department of Justice was used. Appointments were offered Mr. Culbertson to induce the Commissioner to leave the Tariff Commission so that the commission would again be evenly divided and a deadlock would ensue. But all the pressure failed. The commissioner, like a splendid public servant, stood his ground and did his duty. On July 31, by a vote of three to two, the final report of the sugar investigation was submitted to President Coolidge. The majority report, signed by Vice Chairman Culbertson and Commissioners Costigan and Lewis, recommended that the President make a reduction in the sugar tariff.

"The amount of reduction is not known. For three months President Coolidge has had this report and recommendation of the Tariff Commission. He took it with him to Plymouth, Vermont. It was stated that he would make his decision immediately after his return. But he has not yet made it. He evidently does not intend to make it until after the 4th of November. That is what the Sugar Trust wants.

"Every week that President Coolidge's decision has been delayed costs American housewives $1,000,000. There have been twelve weeks since the report was first submitted. If after November 4 he fails to order a reduction and then holds the matter up until the 5th of March, when a new President will take his place, the total cost of the delay will amount to about $30,000,000."

Senator La Follette declared that William V. Hodges, Treasurer of the Republication Committee, William Wrigley Jr., the largest individual contributor to the Republican campaign fund, Charles S. Warren, Chairman of the Platform Committee of the Republican Convention, and Senator Smoot all had sugar interests. Former Senator McCumber, joint author of the present tariff, is now counsel for the American Cane Sugar League, he declared.

La Follette Here Today.

Senator Robert M. La Follette will arrive in New York today for conferences with his local campaign managers and for his final New York City speech of the campaign, which he will deliver tonight at the Clermont Avenue Rink in Brooklyn. The Progressive candidate for President will discuss his prospects in New York City and State with Gilbert E. Roe, his Northeastern campaign manager; Arthur Garfield Hays, State Chairman, and Mrs. La Follette, his wife, who has been here for some days studying the situation.

The Third Party leaders here plan an intensive last week drive to roll up an impressive La Follette vote in New York City. Although they claim publicly that they hope to carry the State, they really will be very much pleased if they succeed in getting out a big vote for La Follette in the Greater City and in the industrial cities up-State.

DAVIS ASKS COOLIDGE TO STATE POSITION

Republican Party if returned to power to repeal that measure and enact the Mellon bill in its place?

"And what is the purpose of the party on the great subject of the tariff that burdens every household in the land; that more than any other one cause is responsible for the high cost of living; that takes its toll from every pay envelope and waits its charge of every household budget?

"What is the attitude of the Republican party on that question? Nothing, if we may believe the declaration of its candidate, but a repetition of the old stand-pat attitude that brought that great party crumbling to defeat twelve years ago.

"What is the attitude toward the farmer? Nothing, thus far, but a promise to reinvestigate what had already been investigated, and to give to the farmer the way of relief for the disasters that have overtaken him simply a chance to tell his story over again to a new company of jurors.

"And what is promised for labor? I read nothing in any of the declarations of the Republican Party that hold out to labor that it again will be made, as it was in days gone by and not many years since, a part of the grand council of the nation and invited to state its own needs, and was listened to in reference to its own reforms.

"Are we not entitled to answers on these questions as well as an answer to the question the gentleman has suggested from the floor?"

Discusses Campaign Funds.

Near the end of his speech Mr. Davis brought up the alleged disparity between the Democratic and Republican campaign funds.

"My message tonight to the Democrats of New Jersey is not merely a message of confidence and of hope, but it is a message of admonition as well," he said. "We are a volunteer army, we Democrats. We always have been and I am soberly inclined to believe we always will be. I would not exchange our character in that respect or any army that ever marched under the banners of privilege, paid either at the time it left its camp or expecting loot before its return to it.

"Thanks to the activities of the Borah Committee, we know a little something about the relative sizes of campaign funds this year and thanks to the unexpected activities of the Internal Revenue Bureau, we know something about income taxes also.

"We are not a paid army. We have no sources on which we can draw for vast financial supplies. We have nothing to sell. And unless we are ready to give of our time and of our strength and our energy and our devotion, we have no right to hope for better things in this country."

Mr. Davis then read the following sentence from a letter which he said had been sent out by a Republican soliciting campaign funds, and which he declared to be typical of the view that privilege took of the Government and its functions:

"The prosperity of your own business is the most important thing you can vote for."

Calls Nation to High Ideals.

"Now, I don't sneer at prosperity," Mr. Davis said. "I know what it means to the individual citizen. No man can be thoroughly content who feels his energies are bringing him something less than an adquate support for himself and those loved ones dependent on him. But when I tell you there is nothing higher than that, that must be the very decisive factor in every vote. I ask myself where those great ideals are that have made this country what it is.

"Is there not an ideal of citizenship, of good government, of purity in which the ear of every man must be attuned? Is there nothing in the exaltation of one's country? Is there nothing in the preservation of those great guarantees of freedom which have made our country what it is, and without which prosperity itself would be but bitter fruit in the mouths of all of us?

"Is there nothing in justice, equity, fair dealing, equality before the law, and the stamping out of privilege and corruption?

"I do not believe that is the measure of Americanism. I do not believe that is the temper of the American people. I believe there are still ideals in this country that fire the hearts of men and women and that the great spirit of self-sacrifice and patriotic devotion, that flamed during the war still slumbers in the American heart, awaiting but the call that will summon it to battle once again.

"This election is such a battle. This occasion is such a call. And no American who loves his country and hopes that she may be preserved for future generations and that the blessings of liberty may endure, can be a laggard on this occasion or deaf to this call."

Mr. Davis will speak tonight at the Yorkville Casino and at a negro meeting in Liberty Hall in Harlem. He will continue his campaign tomorrow with a speech at the Brooklyn Academy of Music in the evening.

ROOSEVELT SEES SMITH AS A CZAR

like night. Fundamentally the executive budget as suggested in this State would make of the Governor of the State a Czar. There are three principal points in which these two budgets differ. First of all, the executive budget proposed in this State by the Democrats would not permit the legislative body to have access to the requests for appropriations and the reasons therefor; second, the executive budget proposed by the Democrats in this State would not permit the Legislature to add any item to the budget of the Governor; and third, it would not permit any bill carrying an appropriation to be passed by the State Legislature until after the Legislature had acted on the entire budget. The one exception to that last is that such a bill could be passed in case of a state of emergency here in the State, but who would be the judge of the existence of a state of emergency? The Governor. Everything, therefore, is tied up to the Governor. You install a budget of that sort in the State and you have given, as I have said, to the Governor the powers of a Czar; you have gone against one of the fundamental principles of the American Constitution by amputating from our Legislature certain of their very important fiscal powers."

Senator Root had considerable difficulty remembering that he should speak into the radio broadcasting transmitter on the table beside him. Intent upon delivering his message to the audience he could see he repeatedly forgot the audience he could not see. At such times he would walk out to the front of the platform with his back to the instrument. Then he would be reminded and would retrace his steps. Once he suddenly found himself far from the microphone and with a "Confound the thing" walked back to it, adding, "It looks like a Democrat and I think I can talk to it."

After discussing the Roosevelts father and son, and reading from one of the older Roosevelt's letters to the boy who now stood on the platform, a candidate for Governor, Mr. Root said he would like to see all the great offices of America filled with disciples of Theodore Roosevelt the elder.

"That is the school of patriotism from which I would like to see Governors and Senators and Presidents come," he continued. Then turning to an attack upon the Third Party he went on:

"The proposal of Mr. La Follette that the Congress shall have authority to override the decisions of the Supreme Court upon the constitutionality of its acts is a proposal not of the ordinary character, but a proposal which, if adopted, will completely change our whole American system of government. Completely! I don't like the way in which the Democratic campaign soft-pedals when it approaches that proposition. It is vital and fundamental. The essence of our governmental system is that we have created a government of limited powers. No king nor ruler rules over us, but public officers whose powers are limited by law, expressed in our Constitution.

GLASS CHALLENGES HUGHES'S SINCERITY

Dares Republicans to Attack Borah, Who Like La Follette, Questions Courts, He Says.

ISSUES DODGED, HE INSISTS

Virginia Senator Denounces Republican "Maladministration" and Praises Davis's Fitness.

Special to The New York Times.

WILMINGTON, Del., Oct. 27.—"There is less, infinitely less, of sincerity than guile in the persistent efforts of Secretary Hughes and other spokesmen of the Republican Administration to project an issue of 'constitutional security' in this campaign," declared Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, former Secretary of the Treasury, in an address here tonight.

Senator Glass declared that the test of the honesty of these professed fears would be whether the Republican Administration had the courage to attack Senator Borah and other Republican Senators who had advocated limitations of the Supreme Court's powers.

The "constitutional security" issue is a "red herring," Senator Glass said, and "is devoid of honest purpose and may easily be revealed as a feat of sheer hypocrisy." As to Senator La Follette, he said he had no agreement with anything that Senator La Follette advocates, "except honest government."

The motive in raising the issue, Senator Glass said, was "to divert attention from the shameful maladministration at Washington."

Senator Glass highly praised the capability of John W. Davis for the Presidency, and denounced the record of the Republican Administration on various other points.

He spoke in part as follows:

Cites Borah's Views on Court.

"In the first place there is no human probability of Mr. La Follette's election. In the next place, if elected President of the United States, La Follette would have no vote on a proposed amendment of the Federal Constitution altering the status of the Supreme Court or changing any of its processes. Mr. Coolidge, if elected President, would have no power of veto on the question of submission. La Follette's removal from the Senate would lose that proposition one vote.

"Hence the attempt of Secretary Hughes, as spokesman for the Administration, to frighten the people of the United States into the belief that Mr. La Follette's utterly futile candidacy for the Presidency 'menaces the security of the Supreme Court' falls little short of rank wickedness. While I want nothing to do with La Follette, candor compels me to say that the men who have sounded this false alarm simply presume upon the credulity of those they address. If they do not actually compromise their own intellectual integrity and raise a large question of their honesty.

"Let us put their honesty to the test. I have in my hands Senate bill 4483. It proposes to submit to the States the question of altering the processes of the Supreme Court of the United States by requiring the concurrence of seven members of the court before an act of Congress may be pronounced unconstitutional. This proposed amendment of the Constitution is, in a sense, more drastic than anything advocated in this campaign by Mr. La Follette. This was the Senate bill which precipitated the original discussion. It was characterized bitterly as 'destructive tampering with the Court of Last Resort.'

"The author of the bill is William E. Borah, senior Senator of Idaho. Mr. Borah is the Republican nominee for reelection to the Senate from Idaho. If re-elected he will naturally press for the passage of his bill to alter the processes of the Supreme Court, because he earnestly believes a change should be made. Re-elected, Mr. Borah in the Senate would be ten times more potential in advocacy of this proposed constitutional restriction on the powers of the Supreme Court than La Follette could be even in the White House, which he will never reach.

"As I recall, one of the fiercest critics of the prevailing method of deciding cases by the Supreme Court is Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, who believes, as I understand, in proposed constitutional limitations. Mr. Norris is the Republican nominee for re-election to the Senate from Nebraska. There are other Western Republican Senators who favor submission of the proposed amendment of the Constitution and are avowedly in accord with La Follette on other radical innovations.

Asks Why They Are Not Attacked.

"If President Coolidge and his Secretary of State mean what they say about the 'menace to constitutional government' involved in the La Follette candidacy, why do they omit to denounce Borah and Norris and other Republican candidates for re-election to the Senate who favor quite as startling a change in Supreme Court procedure as does La Follette?

"If the Republican Presidential candidate and his chief Cabinet Minister really think there is peril to personal liberty and property rights in the candidacy of La Follette, who in no event would have a vote on the problem, why do they not discover the same peril in the candidacy of these Republican nominees in the Senate who will have a vote and an effective influence in its decision?

"I should like to challenge President Coolidge to arraign as 'a revolutionist' and 'an enemy of constitutional government' the great Republican Senator whom he importunes to be his running mate on the national Republican ticket as candidate for Vice President, with the possibility of becoming President of the United States!

"And if Secretary Hughes and General Dawes honestly regard La Follette's vain Presidential ambition as a serious 'demonstration against representative government' and a 'Red menace' merely because of La Follette's suggested limitations of the powers of the Supreme Court, why do they not assail with equal vehemence the candidacies of Borah and Norris and other Republican nominees for the Senate?

"Will Secretary Hughes as spokesman for the Administration at Washington advise the people of Idaho to defeat William E. Borah for the Senate? Will he advise the Republicans of Nebraska to beat Norris for re-election, or the Republicans of Kansas to go against Capper? Will these responsible leaders urge defeat of any other Republican Senator who thinks as these Senators think about the Supreme Court?

"Neither the President nor his chief spokesman of the Cabinet has characterized these Republican Senatorial nominees as 'disturbers of the peace' or 'a menace to constitutional liberty.' Why? Do they fear it might prove politically inexpedient to extend the range of their condemnation? If that is the reason what becomes of the incessant clatter about the 'great courage' of the Administration? It is easy enough to denounce La Follette, who has left their party and burned his bridges, but they dare not denounce Republican Senators who agree with La Follette lest the latter turn upon the President, his Secretary of State and other official apologists of the Administration and sweep them from their places of power.

"The obvious truth of the business is that both the President and his Secretary of State know perfectly well that there is no imminent peril to constitutional government or to personal liberty or to property rights in this ineffective Third Party gesture. Each of them particularly knows perfectly well that not in half a century, nor a century either, could any such set of restless politicians succeed in invading the sanctity or impairing the constitutional integrity of the Supreme Court by the requires means of three-fourths of the States of this Union, and each of them likewise knows that there is not the remotest possibility of La Follette getting as many as one-half of the two hundred and sixty-six electoral votes essential to elect him President.

"How then may any degree of sincerity be attached to the calculated attempt of Secretary Hughes to make it appear that the existence of the nation is imperilled? I say the whole performance is utterly discreditable; it is a trick of politics. In the nomenclature of some politicians it may pass muster as 'common sense' to do this thing; but there should be no confusion of terms—it is not common honesty. It is an unworthy effort to produce an impression which has no justification in truth. The concealed purpose is to deceive and frighten credulous people, especially timid business men, into voting for Mr. Coolidge and against John W. Davis as a sure means of averting a disaster which does not threaten, and which those Republican speakers positively know can in no event occur.

"It is done for another cognate reason: It is done, plainly speaking, to divert attention from the shameful maladministration, the blighting inefficiency of government at Washington and to make real the immoral aspiration of Chairman Butler that the dreadful crimes and shocking derelictions in high places were mere episodes which the American people had ceased even to remember! Heaven help us! What a transition from eight years of enlightened idealism under Woodrow Wilson to the ignoble materialism and knavery only recently revealed! Truly, as Edmund Burke once said of France, in this change from one regime to the other this American Republic purchased its calamities at a greater price than any other nation ever paid for its blessings.

"Personally I have the highest regard for the President of the United States aside from my respect for his station. I have an abiding faith in his patriotism and confidence in his integrity. I believed, and still think, he was betrayed by evil council into sending that extraordinary protest to the Senate against legislative inquiry into the alleged and suspected knavery of departmental and bureau officials of the Federal Government.

"And since the Secretary of State, divesting himself if it may be done of the impartiality if not the dignity of his office, to engage in heated partisan animadversions has charged the Democratic leaders with conspiracy to thwart the Constitution and with intriguing with the apostles of disaster, I should like to ask him upon whose advice, if he has knowledge of the circumstances, the President sought to suppress Congressional investigation?

Asks Hughes Some Questions.

"Who prepared the legal brief which was the basis of that astounding message to the Senate? And how different was the text of the message and the strictly technical plea of the brief? Did the dismissed Attorney General prepare this remarkable paper, or was it the work of some Cabinet Minister who was retained? One may not catechize the King; but it is not amiss to question the Minister who assumed to speak for the Government.

"And I submit that if any Cabinet Minister in service holds the inadmissible doctrine that Congress may not assertain, for corrective purposes, whether or not the Federal laws are being enforced or are being openly or secretly defied with the acquiescence of the Government itself, the American people on election day have added incentive to drive the offending Administration from power.

"By the Senate inquiries Fall had been revealed as a felon and Denby as a dolt and Daugherty as a detestable character altogether. By these inquiries it became known that the nation had been pillaged of priceless property interests through the hateful processes of bribery and corruption. The thing amounted almost to treason. A state of affairs was revealed which had no parallel in the history of the Republic, not even in the shameless era of reconstruction.

"And right in the midst of these alarming disclosures, the Administration seeks immunity in a plea which does not differ in its essence from that set up by Doheny, the bribegiver, and Fall, the bribetaker, and the whole pack of Teapot Dome rascals, when they refused to answer for fear of self incrimination.

"The Secretary of State in this Administration rather deplores reference to these things. He calls it denunciation; he terms it abuse; he complacently suggests that no political party advocates dishonesty. Quite true. But some political officials practice dishonesty. And when this occurs, and is revealed, should we not have some little word of condemnation, some semblance of indignation, some symptom of resentment, that a party's administration thus was disgraced? Instead of this we had a message of defiance; an order to halt was given; enough, aye, too much, was discovered, and the power of Congress to uncover crime against the Government was testily challenged. Actually it was the Congress which was accused of instituting 'a state of lawlessness,' rather than the unspeakable scamps who sold concessions, engaged in bribery, betrayed the Government and were accused of protecting criminals for pay!

Praises Davis's Fitness.

"Mr. Davis was right at the outset of the campaign when he declared the paramount issue to be 'honest government.' The Administration in power seeks re-election and should be judged upon its record. Its advocates side-step every real issue. They will not discuss internal taxation except to pervert the facts. They manifest no eagerness to justify a tariff that robs every home except those of the class to which has been delegated the power of taxation.

"In the foreign field they claim praise for things they previously disavowed. In the sum of it, their candidates and Cabinet spokesmen raised a purely imaginary issue of 'constitutional government,' which, as men of ordinary sense, they know is not involved and which, as men of common honesty, they should be ashamed to invent.

"Afraid of any but this fictitious issue, Secretary Hughes says it is a question of a man. Very well. I like and respect Calvin Coolidge. But I speak for the man of my party. There stands John W. Davis—a man with a character without blemish. He has vision. He has an intellect keenly capable of wise convictions and courage always to speak. There is no mystery, no concealment about him. In a superb campaign he has laid his mind and meaning bare so that the American people know precisely what he thinks and would do on every problem which is their immediate concern.

"In private life and public; in professional life and political; in legislative and executive accomplishments and in diplomatic experience he towers. No man was better entitled to receive a Presidential nomination; no man ever better merited a triumphant election. And, with a single exception, it may temperately be said that no man was ever nominated by any party or elected President of the United States who was better fitted for the grave responsibilities of government or better qualified to administer it with wisdom and endurance and courage. As a human figure in the public life of America, in the field of choice from which the people are to select, John W. Davis is simply incomparable.

"If the Secretary of State can allege any points of disparity between his man and mine to the advantage of Mr. Coolidge and the dispraise of Mr. Davis, the country would be interested in the recital. I can imagine nothing that could better afford an exact appraisal of Mr. Hughes's discriminating judgment of men."

American Reparation Expert Says Democrats Should Be Proud to Support Ticket.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—Owen D. Young, who is in Europe overseeing the organization of the machinery of the reparations agreement, has come out in support of John W. Davis for President, declaring that with such a candidate every Democrat should be proud to support his ticket.

Mr. Young stated his attitude in a radiogram to Norman H. Davis of New York, who sent a copy of it to the headquarters of the Democratic National Committee, where it was made public today.

"I should be glad to do anything that would help John W. Davis, for whom I have the greatest admiration," Mr. Young's message said. "I am a Democrat and in my opinion, with such a candidate as John W. Davis, every Democrat should be proud to support his ticket."

WILBUR PREDICTS ARMS CONFERENCE

Republican Party Committed to It, Says Navy Secretary in Radio Speech.

SAYS DAVIS MISREPRESENTS

Admits Navy Is Below 5-5-3 Ratio, but Puts Blame on Democratic Filibuster.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—The intention of President Coolidge to call another arms conference for dealing particularly with limiting the construction of submarines, aircraft and surface craft of 10,000 tons displacement and under, was reiterated tonight by Secretary Wilbur in a Navy Day speech broadcast by radio from Washington by WCAP, in whose studio he spoke.

"The President has announced his intention to call such a conference," said Mr. Wilbur, "and the Republican Party is committed to it."

Coming from the official head of the Navy Department, the statement aroused interest as to when, if he had not already done so, the President would set the diplomatic machinery of the Government in motion with a view to holding such a conference. So far as could be ascertained, however, no step has been taken by the State Department to sound out other nations on the subject. Nor could it be learned just when the President will act.

The intention of the President to call such a conference was set forth in his speech accepting the Republican nomination for President. After stating his belief that the substance of the Dawes reparations plan ought to be adopted by the powers, President Coolidge declared: "When the reparation plan (the Dawes plan) is in operation, I shall deem it an appropriate time to approach the great powers with a proposal for another conference for a further limitation of armaments and for devising plans for a codification of international law."

So far as could be learned tonight, the President does not feel he should call the conference now.

In his speech Secretary Wilbur said:

Mr. Wilbur admitted that the American Navy is not now measuring up to the 5-5-3 ratio of strength fixed by the first Arms Conference. He stated that Congress had been informed that, "as a whole," our navy is "only 80 per cent. as powerful as that of Great Britain's," that we have not fallen behind the treaty ratio in aircraft carriers but have not yet built up to it; that we are behind England in scout cruisers and that funds are needed to modernise our battleships, according to the treaty and to increase the number of submarines and scout cruisers.

"The navy asked Congress, at its last session, for funds for this purpose, Mr. Wilbur asserted, but bills which passed the House and Senate were defeated by a filibuster conductor by Senator Pittman of Nevada, after Senator King of Utah, had called them up for reconsideration in the Senate.

"President Coolidge was in the Capitol ready to sign the bills in the closing hours of the session," Mr. Wilbur stated, "but the filibuster prevented the bills from reaching him."

While Mr. Wilbur did not put on the Democratic Party responsibility for the defeat of the legislation needed to put these things in condition, he did say "it does not lie in the mouth of John W. Davis, Democratic candidate for President, to charge the Administration with dereliction concerning the navy when the needed legislation proposed by the Administration was defeated by two Democratic Senators."

"A naval board," he added, "appointed by the Secretary of the Navy at the direction of the President, is now investigating the whole question of an adequate air service and receiving the testimony of experts, but it will be found that the navy has been fully alive to the new problems involved in aviation and that Congress has made large annual appropriations for that service. Planes for scouting, for bombing, for torpedo attack and for fighting have been developed and some are already installed aboard ship."

Mr. Wilbur asserted that the surface fleet of the American Navy has "a horsepower over four times as great as the fleet at the beginning of the World War and nearly twenty-seven times as great as in the war with Spain," and that "our horsepower in 1898 was 'a little over a third of a million, and today it is nearly ten and two-thirds millions."

He continued:

"We have asked Congress to appropriate more money for our aircraft carriers to complete them and to authorize needed repairs to our battleships, to modernise these ships in accordance with the treaty and to authorise an increase in the number of submarines and scout cruisers. The Budget Bureau and the President authorized most of our requests.

"The House of Representatives passed the necessary bills. These also passed the Senate, but Senator King of Utah, a Democrat, moved to reconsider the bills, and when they came up for consideration Senator Pittman of Nevada, a Democrat, began a filibuster which he continued until the Congress adjourned, and thus, although the President was in the Capitol ready to sign the bills, we were left until the next session of Congress, starting this December, for the needed legislation to put our battleships in condition.

"I do not charge the Democratic Party with defeating this legislation, because both Republicans and Democrats practically unanimously voted for the needed legislation. I do say, however, that it does not lie in the mouth of the nominee of the Democratic candidate for the Presidency to charge the Administration with dereliction concerning the navy when the needed legislation proposed by the Administration was defeated by two Democratic Senators.

"We are going ahead with out navy plans. If we and the other powers conform to the agreed ratio, not only in battleships but also in other surface and subsurface and aircraft, successful aggressive warfare between the signatory powers across the oceans which border our shores will be an impossibility."

"The race between gun and armor has now definitely ended in favor of the gun," he continued. "Modern battleships could not carry armor sufficiently thick and strong to resist modern, high powered, large calibre gun fire at ranges less than 14,000 yards—approximately ten miles. Consequently modern battles would be fought at ranges in excess of 14,000 yards, where this was possible."

OFFER 8 TO 5 ON SMITH, 6½ TO 1 ON COOLIDGE

Betting on Election Reported Light—Brokers' Uptown Offices Open Night of Nov. 4.

Wall Street brokers said, yesterday they were making plans to keep their uptown offices open on election night. Bulletins of the returns will be flashed to their clients and sent on out-of-town wires to their correspondents. The Wall Street news tickers also will carry election returns.

An official of J. S. Fried & Co., betting commissioners of 20 Broad Street, said that "never in the history of Wall Street betting on a Presidential election has speculation been so light a week prior to the event."

G. B. De Chadenedes & Co., 20 Broad Street, expect the heaviest betting this week. The bulk of the betting, it was stated, would be on freak wagers, one being on the States La Follette will carry and the size of his popular vote. W. L. Darnell & Co., 44 Broad Street, had money to wager on the number of electoral votes Coolidge will get.

Odds lengthened further on Coolidge yesterday. De Chadenedes & Co. placed one wager on him at $13,000 against $2,000, or 6½ to 1, and similar odds were quoted by Fried & Co.

Heavier betting was reported on the Gubernatorial race. Darnell & Co. reported odds of 3 to 1 on Smith, with $30,000 available to bet that way. Fried & Co. said it had $7,000 on Smith to wager against $5,000 Roosevelt money. De Chadenedes & Co. offered 8 to 5 on Smith.

Among other offers were $20,000 that Coolidge would receive in excess of 300 votes in the Electoral College, offered on an even-money basis; $10,000 against $20,000 that Coolidge would receive 325 electoral votes, and $10,000 against $30,000 that he would receive 340 electoral votes. La Follette was still reported at the tail end of the betting list with odds against him of 12 to 1.

'COFFEE-POT SCANDAL NEXT'

Ex-Vice President Marshall Assails Republicans.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Oct. 27.—Thomas R. Marshall, Vice President under Woodrow Wilson, addressed 1,500 persons assembled at Liberty Hall tonight under the auspices of the New Rochelle Democratic Club. Augustus Thomas, the playwright, was Chairman, and among the speakers was Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

"The Teapot Dome scandal is a stench in the nostrils of the American people," said Mr. Marshall. "I believe that President Coolidge had nothing to do with it, but he represents the Republican Party, and if elected for another term the American people will have lost their sense of common decency. Elect Coolidge and within four years you will have a Coffee Pot Dome."

Women's Wilson League Reception.

The Women's National Wilson League will hold a reception for Democratic candidates at the home of the Misses Gaffney, 371 Park Avenue, tomorrow evening. Among the speakers will be Herbert C. Pell Jr., Democratic State Chairman; George Gordon Battle, Justice Thomas W. Churchill, Judge Joseph V. McKee, Judge William Allen, Charles E. Gehring, Mrs. Dorothy Branch Jackson, member of the Democratic National Committee from New Hampshire, and Miss Elisabeth Marbury.

SMITH ASSAILS RIVAL ON ECONOMY PLEDGE

railroad crossings and the abandonment of the comprehensive plan for their elimination.

"It means a weakening of the agency of the State for the regulations of automobile operation to reduce the large number of accidents and the toll of human lives.

"In a word it means that every effort made by my Administration on the human side of government is doomed to destruction.

The Question of Sincerity.

"Colonel Roosevelt during the campaign has said a great deal about sincerity and insincerity. He has claimed all of the sincerity for his own party and has charged the Democratic Party with all of the insincerity.

"But his own utterances are the best test. Just as in the campaign of deceit that the Republican Party waged throughout the country in 1920, he has in his travels through the State promised the people everything that costs money, but at Patchogue on Saturday night he said he would reduce the cost of government just as it was out down during the last Republican Administration. These promises cannot be reconciled with each other."

The Governor recalled that Mr. Roosevelt, in his Patchogue speech, charged the Democratic Party with nominating candidates with no thought as to their fitness.

"I think," said the Governor, "that the last two weeks of campaigning has demonstrated to the people of this State that he is the last man in the United States who should make that statement." He also mentioned that his opponent has accused the Democrats, in the State and nation, of being wasteful.

"To hear the Colonel talk," went on the Governor, "you would think the Democratic Party gave away the oil reserves. You would be led to believe that it was the Democratic Party that squandered the $225,000,000 that the people had paid for the care and comfort of the soldier boys. To hear the Colonel talk you would think that it was laid before the people in this State in the Democratic Party that destroyed the national plan for the reorganization of the departments in Washington in the interest of economy.

"If Republicans are the same in the State as they are in the nation, bid good-by to your water power resources. Buy a farewell to the Adirondack Preserve, be prepared to deliver the inland streams and rivers to the power combine; expect to see a slowing up in the hospitalization of our own mentally afflicted soldiers, because that is what the Republicans did in Washington, and the Colonel not only refused to deny it, but has maintained a silence about it that makes the Sphinx resemble a Victor talking machine.

"The Colonel expressed great concern for the farmer and the home-owner, and expressed a desire to see the burden of taxation lifted from their farms and homes. The record of his own party in Albany last Winter shows clearly that a bill, designed to make a survey by experts, which he now promises, passed the Democratic Senate, but was sent down to defeat in the Republican Assembly.

"He is at least frank when he says he is for a State organization the same as the Republican Party brought about in Washington. They brought about nothing. The report of the committee that studied it was thrown in the waste basket and that is the kind of reorganization the Colonel stands for in this State.

"Speaking about the tariff, he said: 'The proof of the pudding is in the eating.' That is right. He forgot to say that the sugar in the pudding costs ½ cent a pound more than the tariff experts thought it should. That is because President Coolidge, since the 29th of July, has failed to act on the report of the Tariff Commission recommending a reduction in the tariff on sugar. And why? Because of the debt the Republican Party owes to the sugar barons of the West for the $5,000,000 they contributed to elect Harding and the generous support they gave Coolidge in the last Republican Convention. If he is talking about pudding without sugar in it, that is different.

"The Republican candidate for Governor repeats the foolish talk that he has been making throughout the State about the Department of Education, the Department of Labor, the Fifty-four hour bill for women and children, the Veterans' Hospital—all of which I have detail and from records that cannot be disputed. The only theory upon which I can figure that he continues this talk is that somebody must have told him to keep at it, right or wrong, and take a chance that some people will be misled by his statements without regard to what the record really shows."

Governor Blames Machold.

In an interview with reporters at his rooms in the Biltmore Hotel, the Governor said he didn't blame his opponent for his repeated misrepresentations concerning his, the Governor's, attitude toward the public school system. It was explainable, he said, because the Colonel probably did not understand the situation. He said it was Speaker H. Edmund Machold who "willfully, knowingly and deliberately" misstated the whole situation. Referring to the Speaker's repetition of the charge that the Governor was seeking to get control of the Department of Education, the latter said:

"Machold willfully, knowingly and deliberately misstated the whole situation about the Department of Education. He did it in 1923 in a moment of desperation when he feared he might lose his Speakership. Having once told an untruth about the whole situation, he seems to think it necessary to stick to it. To draw upon the vernacular, he is bullying his way through. I feel more resentful of his attitude in the matter than I do of the Colonel's, because I am satisfied the Colonel doesn't know anything about it, and Machold does.

"I am satisfied the people will pay attention to what Professor John Dewey of Columbia University, Virginia Gildersleeve, Dean of Barnard College; Dr. Henry McCracken of Vassar College and Professor Stephen P. Duggan, Director of the International Institute of Education, and Mrs. Schuyler Van Steenbergh have to say about my attitude toward the public education system of the State.

"They have subscribed to the fact that I have been the defender of the integrity of the public schools and the teaching profession of the State."

Governor Smith will speak tonight at Public School No. 90, at Jamaica Avenue and 109th Street, Richmond Hill. This meeting will be at 8 P. M. and at 10:30 P. M. he is scheduled to address a gathering of negroes in Harlem. The meeting will be held at Liberty Hall, 120 West 138th Street. Wednesday night the Governor will make an address at the Stapleton Democratic Club at Stapleton, Staten Island. Thursday night he will speak in the Bronx.

MACHOLD ASSAILS SMITH.

Charges Governor With "Deliberate Falsehood" in Campaign Speech.

"Deliberate falsehood" and "an attempt again to fool the people" were charged against Governor Smith last night by Speaker H. Edmund Machold in a speech at a meeting of the Coolidge Republican Club at the Hotel Gramatan, Bronxville. The speech was in reply to a statement by the Governor that Speaker Machold had agreed to permit the provision permitting the Governor to appoint the head of the State Department of Education to stand in the proposed constitutional amendment if the Governor would withdraw his opposition to the manner in which Mr. Machold desired to appoint the head of the Department of Farms and Markets, which Mr. Machold denied.

"Governor Smith knows better when he attempts to escape responsibility for having attempted to make the Department of Education subject to political considerations," Mr. Machold said. "When the bill endorsed by him was introduced into the Senate by Senator James J. Walker it contained a provision that the head of the department should no longer be appointed by the Board of Regents of the University of the State of New York but by the Governor.

"When we objected to this, or an attempt to do away with the Republican policy of keeping the department free from politics, he said a stenographer from the Bill Drafting Bureau had made a mistake. This failed to go over. Then he said that a printer had made the error.

"In each case he knew better. He alone was and is responsible for the suggestion of the change."

SAYS COOLIDGE WOULD FIGHT DAVIS IN HOUSE

Harvey Editorial Declares the President Would Oppose Republican Switch to End Deadlock.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—In its leading editorial today, The Washington Post, of which Colonel George Harvey is the editorial director, intimates plainly that it has the authority of President Coolidge in stating that should the Presidential election be thrown into Congress the President would never acquiesce in any desire of Republican Representatives from States whose delegations in the House are tied, to break the deadlock by voting for John W. Davis and thus, by procuring his election, prevent Charles W. Bryan from becoming President.

The Post's editorial mentions a statement of the Democratic Presidential candidate made in Indianapolis on Oct. 12 that decision of the Presidential contest by the House would lie with the five State delegations which are evenly divided. In calling attention to the fact that the tied delegations are Maryland, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire and New Jersey, The Post stresses that "not merely one from all but one from each of these States would be required to give Mr. Davis a majority."

The Post then asks, "Who is to compel, induce or bribe" Republican representatives from each of the five tied States "to betray their States, their districts, their party and their President?"

The question is answered by The Post with the statement, "Why, Mr. Davis's clients, to be sure."

The editorial then goes on:

"But can it be done? We say no. There is not enough influence nor money in the world to induce five representatives of five sovereign States to sacrifice their honor and the respect of their fellow-men.

"And if there were, not one would dare pursue such a course without the acquiescence of his chief—the President of the United States, Calvin Coolidge, who would never and will never prove recreant to the vast majority of a total of more than thirty-five millions of his fellow-citizens, who will surely testify their faith in his honor, his fidelity and his courage.

"We speak truly, surely and irrevocably upon the highest authority."

The concluding paragraph of the editorial is printed in capital letters of large size.

DAWES TAKES SWING ACROSS NEW YORK STATE

Tells Albany, Rochester, Syracuse and Utica Coolidge Can 'Take the Gaff.'

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 27 (Associated Press).—Calvin Coolidge was recommended to the voters of up-State New York today by his running mate, Charles G. Dawes, as a man willing "to take the gaff when the crowd is against him, knowing that eventually the judgment of the mass of the people will be with him and vindicate him."

Swinging across the State from Albany to Rochester, Mr. Dawes assailed Senator La Follette, dismissed the Democratic Party as one "fortunate if, in no man's land they escape with their political existence," and appealed for a full vote from the normally Republican section.

"Thank God that we get a chance, once in a while, to vote for such a man as Coolidge," he said amid applause at Albany. "Thereby we can give the lie to these cowardly politicians who go around preaching all things to all men and whose creed in politics is 'please everybody, whether they are right or wrong and let the Government take care of itself.'"

Speaking at Syracuse he attacked the address made there by Senator La Follette as "violent affirmation unsupported by reason." He made a similar observation at Utica regarding the independent nominee's Labor Day address, exclaiming:

His address here tonight closed his Eastern tour involving twelve speeches in five States and 2,500 miles of travel. He started just before midnight for Chicago, where he will pause tomorrow night, and then go on a two-day Missouri tour.

ISSUE OF BRYANISM IS DERIDED BY PAGE

Editor Calls Effort to Frighten Democrats into Support of Coolidge Pure Bunk.

SAYS G. O. P. FEARS DAVIS

Asserts Republicans Caused Formation of Third Party Through Reactionary Measures.

By WILLIAM H. CRAWFORD.

Arthur W. Page, son of Walter Hines Page and his successor as editor of World's Work, says the Republican effort to frighten the conservative Democrats into the support of Coolidge and thus prevent Charles W. Bryan from becoming President through a deadlock in the Electoral College, is pure bunk.

"The most interesting thing about the campaign recently is the fright of the Republican leaders at the prospect of the election being thrown into Congress," said Mr. Page. "Early in the campaign the Republicans assumed victory, just as the Democrats did. Mr. Davis has come back to New York and New Jersey to campaign, which means he still has confidence he can carry the Electoral College. But, on the other hand, Mr. Butler, the Republican Chairman, complains that there is a plot between the Democratic and La Follette parties to poll as many votes as they can and thereby deprive Mr. Coolidge of the majority which Mr. Butler had been counting on and that this 'plot' is likely to succeed.

"You had an interview with Mr. Tilson, the head of the Republican Speakers' Bureau, in which he voiced this same fear. I believe that Mr. Butler and Mr. Tilson and the other Republican leaders are genuine in their fear.

"But their deduction from the condition they fear seems a little like the logic of agitated minds. Among business circles in New York, Boston, Baltimore and such places they say something like this: 'There is danger of deadlock. Deadlock means Bryan. In the name of business vote for Coolidge.' For example, Tuesday The New York Sun said with alarm, 'The stodgy figure of Bryan begins to loom large as a Presidential possibility.'

"They say such things despite the fact that if there is a deadlock Mr. Bryan cannot become President if the Republicans do not want him in that office.

"It is true, of course, that if the election of the Vice President goes to the Senate, the Democrats and those former Republicans now under La Follette's banner may elect Bryan Vice President. They might do this while the House was still deadlocked over the election of President. But the House needn't stay deadlocked. If the Republicans in the House prefer Davis to Bryan they could elect Davis any time. If they prefer Bryan to Davis, they can maintain the deadlock. In other words, Mr. Butler needn't fear Mr. Bryan unless he wants to. What he really fears is that Mr. Davis will be President.

"Now most of the Republicans whom I see admit that Mr. Davis is the best qualified of the three candidates for the Presidency, and as it becomes increasingly plain that Mr. Butler's terror of Bryan isn't very real, the thoughtful business men, Republicans as well as Democrats, will begin to see the real inwardness of the situation."

"What is the cause of the radical movement?" I asked.

"The reactionary or conservative wing of the Republican Party is the direct cause of the radical Third Party. Mr. Coolidge represents that conservative or reactionary wing. It is the friend of business, but not a wise friend. It will act as the spokesman of business against the rest of the country. That is far from being a real help to business.

"The Republican Party had in the past a big farmer vote as a balance to its business vote. Under its present leadership it is fast getting rid of the farmers. Big business and medium-sized business has learned in its own dealings with the public not to be reactionary. But much of the good this wise policy has secured will be lost if business isolates itself from the public through the medium of a reactionary political party. That will sooner or later result in another era of business-baiting and trust-busting. So far the result of the control of the Republican Party by its most reactionary wing has been the formation of La Follette Third Party, which so frightens Mr. Butler. A continuance of Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Butler in power for four years will to a certainty greatly increase that radical party."

"What is the right method to scotch the radical wave?" I asked.

"The moderate liberalism of Mr. Davis has not produced a radical Democratic defection and his election would leave the La Follette crowd without grievance enough to grow fat on.

"Coolidge Republicanism has produced a radical party that can carry six or eight States. If the treatment is continued it is likely to increase that radical party by next election. The Republican Party is responsible for the condition which affrights business, and while that condition is not bad now, another dose of reactionary Republicanism is likely to make it so.

"From the purely business point of view the election of Davis is the only safe course."

HEAR DAVIS GAINS IN UP-STATE NEW YORK

Democratic Headquarters Told Republican Defection to La Follette Is Marked.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—Reports received from New York at Democratic National Headquarters here show that the Democratic vote in Ontario and Onondaga Counties would be greatly increased through a strong drift to Davis, while a marked defection to La Follette had taken place in Republican ranks, announcement was made today.

In Syracuse, the statement was made, Republicans, mostly of the working class, filled a hall of 3,000 capacity to hear La Follette and paid 50 cents for the privilege while another thousand was turned away.

Representative Collier of Mississippi said at Democratic headquarters today that the six Congressional Districts he visited during a speech-making trip in Ohio are safely Democratic. He predicted that Senator Stanley would be returned from Kentucky, by an increased majority.

C. J. Smith, Democratic State Chairman of Oregon, as the result of a canvass made of the counties of that State has advised that John W. Davis was in the lead in the State. Reports indicated that the Republican vote would be split between Coolidge and La Follette.

An example of the situation was furnished by Benton County, according to Mr. Smith. The registration is 4,800, of which 1,900 is Democratic. A survey indicates that La Follette will poll about 1,200 votes and Coolidge 1,700, while Davis will have approximately the full Democratic strength.

MARSHALL ADMITS SPEECHES FOR PAY

Says as Vice President He Was Forced "to Lecture, Steal or Starve."

LOST ON PATRIOTIC TALKS

Refused Refund of $1,500 Spent in War Loan Drives—Silent on Coolidge Fee.

Thomas Riley Marshall, who was Vice President of the United States when Woodrow Wilson was President, replied yesterday to a suggestion that there might be found in his conduct as Vice President a precedent for the $250 fee which Calvin Coolidge, as Vice President is accused of having taken from a patriotic organization at Bridgeport, Conn., for a memorial address delivered in April, 1923, in tribute to fallen American soldiers and sailors. The suggestion that Mr. Marshall might have set the precedent was published yesterday in a morning newspaper.

Mr. Marshall, who lives in Indiana, was in New York yesterday and added two things to the discussion of the speech, first that he did take money for making speeches while he was Vice President; second that he spent $1,000 of his own money in traveling to make Liberty Loan speeches and that he refused to take it back from the Government.

The charge that Mr. Coolidge had demanded and accepted the $250 fee, plus $10 for expenses was made in Jersey City on Saturday and has not been denied at the White House. When he was asked at Democratic headquarters in the Hotel Belmont for his comment, Mr. Marshall said:

Seeks to Avoid Controversy.

"I have no comment to make on the subject, and I refuse to be drawn into any controversy, either approving or disapproving what Mr. Coolidge has done. I am interested in defeating the Republican Party, but not in criticising the President of the United States. I am not a candidate for office and any comparison between Mr. Coolidge's conduct and mine is wholly uncalled for.

"No one familiar with the circumstances has any doubt that I went on the Chautauqua lecture platform and received compensation for addresses while Vice President. I either had to lecture, steal, or resign. I have no apology to make to the American people for it. It was the only way I could live.

"I will say, however, that I spent $1,500 of my own money for expenses in making Liberty Loan speeches, although the Treasury Department, having a fund for the purpose, offered to pay my expenses, I never accepted a single cent for it.

"I'm one of those Democrats who believes in party principles and not in men, although it is a happy coincidence at this time that the Democrats have nominated a man who suits me—he is my man and he is neither too fat nor too lean. So far as Coolidge is concerned I have nothing against him. It is not him that I am against but the system he represents—one that is distinctly inimical to the American people. I would say nothing against a President. I was fed up on the insulting of Presidents when Mr. Wilson was President of the United States.

"I believe in party loyalty. More can be accomplished that way than any other. Political pedestrians wear the grass out between parties and lose the confidence and respect of the people and don't accomplish very much."

Asks Coolidge's Defeat.

Colonel Warren Shaw Fisher, National Commander of the United American War Veterans, who is backing Senator La Follette, yesterday made public this resolution adopted by the Memorial Committee of his organization:

"Whereas Calvin Coolidge, now holding the office of the President of the United States, did, when occupying the office of the Vice President of the United States, at a salary of $12,000 per annum, demand and exact the sum of $250 as a speaker from a Veteran Memorial Committee at Bridgeport, Conn., plus the sum of $10 called for as railroad fare.

"That, as American Veterans who made tremendous sacrifices in the service of our country, who were satisfied to live, fight and die on less than a dollar a day, while our families stinted in the necessities of life that their scanty funds might be stretched to buy Liberty Bonds to supply us with our needs while we were in the field,

"Be It Resolved, That we repudiate this brand of Shylock patriotism as illustrated by Calvin Coolidge, and that an immediate call be made by members of our Memorial Committee to every red-blooded American citizen, to every veteran and to the members of their families, irrespective of party lines, to vote against the re-election of Calvin Coolidge at the polls Nov. 4."

James F. Kiernan, for two terms State Commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, now an Alderman and formerly an Assemblyman, said:

"When it comes to commenting on the Coolidge action, I am, to be trite, 'too full for utterance.' But here is an analogy.

"When I went to Albany the first bill I introduced was one giving every veteran resident in New York State who lost his sight in the war the sum of $500 a year from the State Treasury for life. When I took that bill to Al Smith for signature, he cried. Then he turned to me with tears in his eyes and said:

"'Kiernan, the only thing I've got against you is that you didn't make it $1,000 a year.'

"That's the difference between a man who is a patriot and a man who as President mouthed a lot of platitudes in vetoing a miserable few hundreds of dollars for the World War veterans."

DENIES COOLIDGE EXACTED FEE

Associate When Vice President Says Chairman of Veterans Offered It.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—President Coolidge never "exacted" a fee of $250 to make a speech before ex-service men at a memorial service in Bridgeport, Conn., on May 27, last year, it was explained today by one of those connected with Mr. Coolidge's office while he was Vice President.

The explanation given of the transaction was that the Chairman of the Bridgeport committee came to Washington and asked Mr. Coolidge to make a speech, saying that an honorarium of $250 and expenses went with the invitation.

This invitation, it was explained, was extended seven months before the time set for delivery of the speech. It was also said that the Chairman of the committee which extended the invitation would verify the conditions in a statement to be issued tomorrow.

President Coolidge remained silent and no official statement was issued by the White House in regard to the fee episode.

Statements from Senator Caraway and Sid Houston, editor of The Stars and Stripes, were issued today attacking Mr. Coolidge for taking money for making a patriotic speech.

"It is only another revelation added to the record of this mercenary Administration," Senator Caraway said. "Fall sold the navy's entire oil supply; Forbes sold the blankets off the cots and the sheets from under the backs of the sick and wounded soldiers; Daugherty sold permits to violate the law; Slemp sold post offices. Now it comes to light that President Coolidge sold the veterans of three wars a little talk—a very little talk—for $250 and expenses in an amount not made known.

"This story of Coolidge's collecting a fee for his part in a memorial service when no other participant requested or received payment is another example of thrift. The veterans of the World War and other wars took their chances, made their sacrifices and trusted to their country's generosity for their compensation, which Coolidge's vetoes sought to deny them.

"But, Mr. Coolidge stipulated for his fee and expenses in advance—and got them. It seems to be his belief that sacrifices are for others. He collects beforehand for himself."

Sid Houston, editor of the Independent Veterans' paper, Stars and Stripes, said today:

"Silent Calvin will break his silence only for cash or political profit, the minimum cash limit being $250, which Devine discovered the President charged a group of veterans' organizations at Bridgeport, May 27, 1923, for making a 'patriotic' speech. In addition he received $50 expense money.

"For the man who fought in the trenches for $1.30 for twenty-four hours' work, 'patriotism' was priceless. For the man who was getting $12,500 a year from the taxpayers as Vice President, an expression of 'patriotism' was worth $250 an hour."

"I'm not a bit surprised," Horace L. Atkinson, one of the organizers of the American Legion, said. "Calvin Coolidge's thrift has been touted to the country as one of his 'homely' virtues."

SAYS COOLIDGE FIXED AMOUNT.

Veterans' Chairman Tells of Offer of Unnamed Honarium and Response.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 27.—The Rev. Hal Thurman Kearns, formerly of Bridgeport, Conn., now minister of the Universalist Church of Our Father, this city, who was Chairman of the committee that invited Vice President Coolidge to deliver a patriotic address to veterans' organizations on the Sunday preceding Memorial Day in 1923, said tonight that in his correspondence with Mr. Coolidge he wrote that the veterans would pay the Vice President's expenses from Northampton, Mass., to Bridgeport and return and give him an honorarium.

"We were willing to pay for an address by the Vice President, and I so wrote him. I did not specify any amount. After some correspondence I received a letter from Mr. Coolidge's secretary stating that Mr. Coolidge would deliver an address for $250 and expenses. We raised the amount and paid Mr. Coolidge."

BORAH GAVE $500 TO THE THIRD PARTY

Split Republican Gift to Him—Record Spent $18,775 in New Jersey Campaign.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—The friendly relations of Senator William Borah of Idaho, Republican Progressive, with the La Follette organization is brought out in Mr. Borah's statement of campaign receipts and expenditures.

Mr. Borah received a contribution from the Republican Senatorial Committee of $2,500. Of this sum Mr. Borah presented $250 to the Progressive Committee of Idaho to assist in the litigation touching the legality of the State election law.

He also gave the Progressive State Committee $250 to assist in advising voters as to the necessity of either marking Senator Borah's name on the Republican ticket or writing it in upon the Progressive ballot. In view of the decision of the Supreme Court of Idaho, ruling that Mr. Borah's name could not appear twice upon the same ballot, he had the alternative of running either as a Republican or as a Progressive, and he chose to be classed as a Republican.

Of the $2,500 received Mr. Borah gave back $1,000. He subscribed $200 to the Republican State Committee. He spent $147 for traveling, making his total expenditures $847.

George L. Record, independent candidate for the Senate in New Jersey, received $18,774.12 and spent $14,408.21. Mr. Record paid $3,000, Amos Pinchot of New York $3,189 and J. H. Adamson $6,816.48. The balance was in small amounts.

T. Coleman du Pont, Republican candidate for the Senate in Delaware, reported expenditures of $8,680.86.

William S. Flynn, Democratic candidate for the Senate in Rhode Island, reported expenditures of $2,500 and one contribution of $1,000 from Edmund W. Flynn.

In his primary campaign for the Republican nomination for Senator in Illinois former Governor Charles S. Deneen, who defeated Medill McCormick, spent $6,347.63.

Magnus Johnson, Minnesota candidate for re-election to the Senate on the Farmer-Labor ticket, reported contributions of $301 and disbursements of $314.85.

Senator A. O. Stanley, Democratic candidate for re-election in Kentucky, received no contributions.

Other Senator candidates reporting included William E. Chilton, Democrat, West Virginia, spent $2,689, received $3,100; Morrison Shafroth, Democrat, Colorado, spent, $1,522, received $50; Jesse H. Metcalf, Republican, Rhode Island, spent $840, received no contributions.

The Anti-Saloon League reported having aided the following candidates for Congress: Guy U. Hardy, Republican, Colorado; Patrick B. O'Sullivan, Democrat, Connecticut; Frank Clague, August H. Anderson and William L. Carss, Republican, Minnesota; J. Scott Wolff, Democrat, Missouri; Fred N. Zihlman, Republican, Maryland; Roy G. Fitzgerald, Republican, Ohio; Anna Van Sickle, Prohibitionist, Pennsylvania; W. W. Griest, Louis T. McFadden, Fred W. Magrady, Anderson Walters and Milton W. Shreve, Republicans, Pennsylvania.

vant, but Mr. Untermyer did not desist until the Senator said:

"Mr. Untermyer, this committee is going to run this examination, and you may as well understand that now as at any time."

"I assume so—" began Mr. Untermyer, but Senator Borah continued:

"Well, indeed, we are!"

On behalf of the committee, Senator Borah registered the demand of the La Follette lawyers that hearings of considerably greater length be held, involving probably two sessions a day.

"We will hear all we can, but there are some obligations on the part of some of the committee members we must meet," he stated. "I presume some are interested in matters elsewhere. We will have some sessions now and some after the election."

This reply was made when Mr. Walsh and Mr. Untermyer insisted that they had so many witnesses that time was pressing if evidence was to be developed before election day. The "obligations" the Senator spoke of undoubtedly related to the desire of some members of the committee to go home to vote. For this reason it is presumed that an adjournment will be taken here and also in Chicago for a few days around the end of the week.

Clash Over Testimony Precedence.

The question of extending the sessions was brought up just before Mr. Emerson took the stand. Mr. Kirkland announced that he was present to represent the Republican Committee, but "not to defend it." Mr. Untermyer asked for two sessions a day, commenting that his side expected as many as fifty witnesses, also suggesting that the Borah committee divide and one-half go to Chicago.

Mr. Kirkland asked the privilege of cross-questioning and also submitting witnesses. But when Mr. Kirkland suggested possible witnesses for his cause Mr. Walsh demanded that those for the La Follette side have the precedence. Mr. Kirkland asked for an equal division of time, but Mr. Walsh replied that the Republican Committee had had previous opportunity to appear and had not done so. The controversy was growing bitter when Senator Caraway interrupted it with a joke.

Mr. Emerson, a Vice President of the Bankers Trust Company, testified that Treasurer Hodges asked that a larger number of contributors than ever before be obtained for the Republican fund. So far, said Mr. Emerson, there had been 60,000 subscriptions, as against 32,000 in 1916 and 40,000 in 1920.

Asked what the sum total of his collections in New York State were, he said he believed Charles D. Hilles's recent figure of $850,000 had probably now increased to about $900,000. There was about $500 or $400 in cash daily in his mails, he said. Mr. Emerson told the committee he had been engaged in about forty fund collections since he managed the Liberty loan drives.

He was questioned about the page advertisement in THE NEW YORK TIMES headed "How Much is $3,000,000?" and paid for by "Republican advertising men who believe in advertising." This advertisement, he stated, was placed by a man who happened to be the Chairman of the Subcommittee on Advertising of his Contributors' Committee, but was inserted on that Chairman's own initiative and not on the responsibility of the Contributors' Committee. According to Mr. Emerson, the advertisement cost probably $1,500.

Mr. Walsh also developed the fact that Mr. Emerson met Cornelius N. Bliss, former Treasurer of the Republican Committee, by appointment at the Union League Club, where Mr. Bliss introduced Mr. Emerson to Mr. Hodges, who then asked Mr. Emerson to manage the Contributors' Committee.

"Did Mr. Hodges tell you that he was interested in legislation in the last Congress; that he had appeared before the Tariff Commission as a representative of the Holley Sugar Company?"

"No."

When Mr. Emerson said he would be very much disappointed if there were not a total of 60,000 contributors to the Republican fund, Mr. Walsh suggested that if $8,100,000 was raised in 1920 with 40,000 contributors, 60,000 would "raise $12,000,000." Mr. Emerson declared thousands of letters were pouring in with contributions of $1 to $1,000.

"If we could collect all the money necessary in sums of $1 we would prefer it," he said, enlarging upon the theory that Mr. Butler and Mr. Hodges wanted a larger number of donors.

Mr. Walsh sought to have the witness say that the names for the subcommittee collecting from various industries and trades were suggested by Republican officials. Mr. Emerson said many of the men were picked by the subcommittee Chairman and some names he had obtained from John Price Jones of New York, who was familiar with public-spirited persons who would respond to appeals.

"Have you kept back any letters from the committee?" asked Senator Borah after Mr. Emerson said he worked from 6 o'clock Saturday night, when he received the committee summons, until 2 o'clock Sunday morning in collecting data.

"None," replied Mr. Emerson, at the same time promising to furnish any material called for.

Senator Borah stopped Mr. Walsh in his questioning.

"But the witness is very clever and is making long answers," said Mr. Walsh.

"I think the witness is very fair," replied Mr. Borah, adding that Mr. Walsh was taxing the committee's patience.

"I may tax the patience of the committee, but I am not going to take these answers unless I'm forced to," answered the lawyer.

Half of Responses Exceeded Hopes.

Testimony showed that the contributors had hoped for $50,000 from the bankers of New York and had received $66,000. Other figures were: Brokers, hoped for $50,000, received $7,000; dry goods trade, hoped for $50,000, received $76,000; coal and iron, hoped for $60,000, received $83,000; machines and metals, hoped for $60,000, received $55,000; music, movies and theatres, hoped for $25,000, received $5,500.

The women had given about $75,000, Mr. Emerson stated. In reply to Mr. Walsh, the witness said that George K. Murnane was soliciting the bankers.

"But why is Mr. Murnane still frightening the big bankers?"

"The answer is very simple. The limit in New York is $1,000,000 for the State. Collections from all the subcommittees have not been good. We are getting very close to the limit, and when we do our efforts will cease."

The attention of Mr. Emerson was called to an advertisement in The New York Times and The Washington Post in which E. J. Bliss, President of the Regal Shoe Company, criticized Senator La Follette and declared for Calvin Coolidge. He said he supposed the advertisement in The Times would cost about $500, but he knew nothing of its origin.

"I'd like to locate the genius who wrote that," Senator Borah interjected.

"So far as I know, our committee has paid for no advertisement," stated Mr. Emerson.

Latest New York Figure $711,000.

Collections reaching $711,000 in New York City up to last Saturday night were accounted for by Mr. Emerson. He said New Jersey had raised $100,000, Connecticut $16,000, Rhode Island $350, although $75,000 was asked for from that State; North Carolina $50, and Vermont, where $10,000 was expected, had supplied $30,000. All these States came under his direction in raising funds.

Mr. Untermyer asked why Elbert H. Gary, Charles M. Schwab and other steel men had not contributed. He asked if contributions could not be sent to specific States without reference to the National Committee. He asked what had been collected from sugar men, from oil men, from the textile industry, and what protected industries had donated.

"Up to date almost no money had been collected from the sugar men," Mr. Emerson said.

Senator Borah asked that Mr. Emerson dig out of his records the names of contributors who were allied with protected industries.

Answering Mr. Untermyer, Mr. Emerson said that Otto H. Kahn had as yet "given nothing."

Mr. Untermyer asked if Will Hays was doing anything in collecting from the moving picture industry.

"To my knowledge, nothing."

Expectations of an average subscription of $80 were voiced by Mr. Emerson. "With 60,000 contributors that would be $4,800,000," suggested Mr. Walsh and Senator Caraway at the same time.

Mr. Kirkland asked a number of questions designed to show that the witness had been entirely frank. One of these questions was if any future favors had been promised to contributors. Mr. Emerson said the subcommittees were instructed against this and told to follow the policy laid down by President Coolidge in his acceptance speech.

Senator Caraway put into the record today part of a letter written by Grafton D. Cushing, Chairman of the Boston Republican City Committee, asking for more funds and explaining that the Massachusetts Coolidge Campaign Finance Committee could not devote its funds for local needs, as they had been sent to be used in doubtful States. Counsel for Senator La Follette asked that a summons be sent to Louis K. Liggett of Boston, Chairman of the Massachusetts committee.

MACDONALD TELLS OF ACTION IN RED 'PLOT' had subsided the Prime Minister went on to deal with various reports which had been circulated in the press as to how the alleged Zinoviev document was discovered, how it was considered at a Cabinet meeting, and so forth.

"What was the purpose and meaning of all this?" asked Mr. MacDonald, and he supplied his own answer in these words:

"Why, my Labor, my Liberal and my Tory friends who wish to see fair play done to any Government and every Government, the meaning of it is an attempt at the eleventh hour to weave a net in which to entangle us and to get Wednesday night over with a cloud of suspicion lying over the country."

The Prime Minister went on to explain why he had been silent so long. He had had to wait for information, he said, adding:

"I am far more careful about the news I spread than the professional news spreader. It came to my knowledge on Saturday for the first time that a certain London newspaper, notorious for its false news, had a copy of this Zinoviev letter and was going to spring it upon us on Saturday and Sunday, and I understand it is priding itself because it was going to do this and force our hands.

"Well, I have told you the dates. Friday was the 24th. I minuted publicity on the 16th. The 16th is earlier than the 24th.

"I am sorry to deprive that newspaper of any glory or credit in the matter at all, but how did it come to have a copy of that letter? Now, I am going to probe this story to its roots. Will this paper inform me how it became possessed of a copy of Zinoviev's letter?"

A voice—They had the original.

"Well, they have had more than we have had. But, more than that, I am also informed that Conservative headquarters had been spreading abroad for some days that on the last days of the election a mine was going to be sprung under our feet and that the name of Zinoviev was to be associated with the mine. Another Guy Fawkes, a new gunpowder plot.

"How did Conservative headquarters become possessed of that letter? Did either of them help to bring it over? Where was its origin? Was it in Moscow, was it in Paris, was it in London? All I say is this, so far as I know, the letter might have originated anywhere. The staff of the Foreign Office, up to the end of the week, thought it was authentic, honestly believed it was authentic. I have not seen the evidence yet.

"All I can say is this, that it is a most suspicious circumstance that certain a newspaper and headquarters of the Conservative Association seem to have had copies of it at the same time as the Foreign Office, and if that is true, how can I, a simple-minded, honest person who puts two and two together, avoid a suspicion—I will not say conclusion—that the whole thing is a political plot? In any event, before long I shall be in a position to get at the full facts."

A reply from Moscow to the British protest note of Thursday was forwarded by Christian Rakovsky, Soviet Charge d' Affairs here, to the Foreign Office today. The note was signed by Litvinoff and addressed to Premier MacDonald as Foreign Secretary.

In the note M. Rakovsky says he is instructed by his government to declare "in the most categorical terms that the alleged letter of the Communist International constitutes, as has been fully established, an impudent forgery, aiming to wreck the Anglo-Soviet treaties and ruin the friendly relations between the union of the Soviet Socialist Republics and Great Britain."

The Soviet Government, therefore, insists on an "adequate apology" and punishment of both private and official persons involved in the forgery. The Soviet Government also offers to take part in an impartial arbitration on the authenticity of the Zinoviev document.

Premier MacDonald tonight issued the following message to his party:

"At the end of the hardest fight I have ever known, the signs of Labor victories are unmistakable. Our people are in good heart, they have been stirred to enthusiasm by the fact that the Labor Government has been in power, and that it has done better work than its predecessors.

"The pact between liberalism and toryism, supported though it has been by a solid phalanx of newspapers, has shocked the people who are seriously interested in politics, and after the election Labor is bound to have a great accession of strength. Tomorrow is Labor's day."

Viscount Curzon, son of the Earl Howe, who must not be confused with the Marquis Curzon, was a victim of rowdyism tonight in Battersea, where he is standing as Conservative candidate. As he came out of the building a rush was made towards him by a number of men. A blow was aimed at him with a stick, but landed on the head of a friend behind, injuring him so much that he had to be medically attended.

Lord Curzon's car was severely damaged, three of the tires being ripped, the rear lamp and battery box smashed and the hood cut, but the owner, with two friends, was able to drive away in it under police protection.

As much as 75 per cent. was quoted in the London insurance market today to provide for the payment of a total loss should the Conservatives obtain a majority in the general election. The rate, which compares with the 65 per cent. at the end of last week, is equivalent to odds of 7 to 3 in favor of the Conservatives.

Forty per cent. was quoted today to provide for payment of a total loss should the Conservative Party obtain 332 seats. At the end of last week the rate was 30 per cent.

Fifty per cent. was quoted to cover the risk of the Conservative Party obtaining 320 seats, the rate being the same as at the end of last week.

Twenty per cent., as compared with 15 per cent., was quoted to cover the risk of 340 seats, and 10 per cent. was quoted to cover the risk of 345 seats going to the Conservative Party.

TAKES STRAW VOTE IN BRITAIN

Selfridge Introduces American Custom—Result Favors Tories.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—Depending on a straw vote he has taken in his London establishment, H. Gordon Selfridge, the American-born proprietor of a London department store, predicts the election of the Conservative Party by a substantial majority in the elections to be held on Wednesday.

What Mr. Selfridge's poll prophesies, and how he enticed Englishmen to cast straw votes, he tells in a communication received today by Charles J. Columbus, Secretary of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association of Washington, who was Mr. Selfridge's host when he last visited the United States.

Results of the poll indicate that Premier Ramsay MacDonald and the Labor Party will surrender control of the Government to the Conservative Party, headed by former Premier Stanley Baldwin, after Wednesday's voting. Here are the figures:

	1924 Per-centage.	1923 Per-centage.
Conservatives	52.58	55.94
Labor	21.58	25.00
Liberals	15.87	18.71
Others	11	36

"To conduct Britain's first straw poll, Mr. Selfridge had to hire 700 clerks and house them in a large new building opposite his store. They selected from the official voting lists of every district in Great Britain every twentieth name and sent a reply-paid ballot to each one—a million in all. As returns came in and were compiled they were posted on a bulletin board in front of the department store, where they attracted great crowds.

DE VALERA HELD IN BELFAST

He Is Taken From Londonderry Under Heavy Guard.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BELFAST, Oct. 27.—Eamon de Valera, who was arrested in Londonderry on Sunday night, was conveyed by train to Belfast this morning under heavy guard and lodged in the Crumlinroad jail.

It is expected that in a few days he will be taken before two Magistrates and charged with disobeying an order served upon him not to enter Northern Ireland.

A large crowd which assembled at the Belfast railway station, attracted by unusual police activity, gave Mr. de Valera a hostile reception. There were loud and vehement booos and groans as he was marched between police ranks to a waiting prison van.

LADY ASTOR LEADS SINGING.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PLYMOUTH, Oct. 27.—Lady Astor has conducted an active week-end campaign in her constituency. When she emerged from a meeting tonight she found the street jammed with supporters and opponents.

Instead of entering her car, Lady Astor climbed on top of it and waving a beribboned lucky horseshoe and a large bunch of flowers above the heads of the surging crowd, she led in singing "Rule Britannia" and followed with "God Save the King" as a counter-demonstration to those opponents who had commenced the "Red Flag."

Her slogan in this election is: "Not for my sake, not for the party's sake, but for the sake of the country."

PRECAUTIONS TAKEN TO GUARD THE VOTE

Federal Authorities Join With City to Prevent Election Frauds.

POLL OFFICIALS WARNED

Will Be Summarily Removed if Found Inefficient, Declares Chairman Voorhis.

Warnings that every precaution will be used at the polls on Nov. 4 to prevent election frauds were made public yesterday by Federal and city officials.

Colonel William Hayward, United States Attorney, said:

"Inasmuch as this is a Presidential year and numerous Congressmen as well will be elected, the Federal election laws are in force. A special bureau has been formed in this office for handling election frauds. I have placed my chief assistant, Major John Holley Clark Jr., in charge of the bureau and have instructed him to cooperate in every way with District Attorney Banton and the twelve other County District Attorneys in the Southern District of New York in preventing and prosecuting election frauds."

John R. Voorhis, Chairman of the City Board of Elections, declared that election officials in the various districts would be summarily removed or replaced if found inefficient. Mr. Voorhis called a meeting in his office yesterday of the election board clerks from all five boroughs and gave them final instructions for their work on election day. He told them that if they learned of men or women sitting on any election board who were not fully qualified for their duties they should notify the party managers in their district. If that did not suffice, he said, the unqualified officials should be summarily dismissed by the election board officer in charge of the district and should be replaced by some one qualifed for the work.

Mr. Voorhis said that because of the unusualy large registration in Brooklyn, Queens and the Bronx everybody connected with the election machinery would have a hard task on election day.

The Honest Ballot Association of 37 West Forty-third Street, through its acting secretary, Nathaniel J. Palzer, requested permission yesterday to copy from the Board of Elections records the names and addresses of all election officers for the purpose of meeting them and instructing them in their duties. Mr. Voorhis granted the request, but warned against confusing the officials by giving them superfluous instructions.

It was pointed out that each election board official receives a four-page pamphlet on how to serve on an election board, as well as a copy of the election laws.

PUTNAM'S EXCESS OF VOTERS.

Assemblyman Miller Asks for an Investigation of the Lists.

Declaring that Putnam County has more voters registered than it had population by the last census, after deducting its 2,471 school children, Assemblyman Arthur I. Miller of Yonkers appealed yesterday to Herbert C. Pell Jr., Democratic State Chairman, to start an investigation of the registration lists.

In his letter to Chairman Pell, Mr. Miller says:

"There is something funny about the registration figures in purest Putnam County.

"Out of the 10,802 population, the Election Commissioners announce there are 8,400 voters. An inquisitive newspaper man, trying to find out where they dig them all up, learned today that the County Superintendent of Schools, James Brooks, has on his books an enrollment of 2,471 pupils from 5 to 19 years of age now attending school in that county.

"By simply adding the 2,471 school children to the 8,400 registered voters, if the registration of voters is honest, you have 10,871 souls already accounted for. This is seventy-nine more than the population recorded.

"This does not take into account children under 5 or over 19, who are not supposed to vote, the negligent citizens who neglect to register, the aliens, the aged, infirm, the lame, the halt and the blind."

PROSPERITY AT STAKE, DECLARES HUGHES

He Praises Qualities and Administration of Coolidge in Kansas City Speech.

Special to The New York Times.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 27.—Secretary Hughes addressed a large meeting tonight here. After being introduced by Arba S. Van Valkenburg, a Federal Judge, he said in part:

"As the campaign closes the American people are alive to the paramount issue. It is whether we shall have sound business conditions or uncertainty and confusion; whether we shall have prosperity and progress or unrest, stagnant trade and unemployment.

"There is no political paradise for men without jobs. Let it be remembered that confidence is the vital breath of prosperity and that the quickest way to shatter confidence is to create doubt as to the course of government. It is difficult to find political remedies for economic ills, but there is a short political road to economic disaster.

"All you have to do is to create uncertainty as to the future and you will see the consequence of impaired confidence in the cancellation of orders, in the contraction of credits, in reduced sales, in idle plants; in the saddest of all spectacles—the lack of work for men who wish to work.

"Despite all assaunts the people of the country know that they have a sound administration of the nation's affairs. The finances of the country are being managed with rare skill and success. Economy has not been merely professed but practiced. The country's commerce has been fostered with a foresight and administrative efficiency which has not been previously equalled.

"As one exigency after another has arisen Mr. Coolidge has shown abundantly that here is a man consistent in purpose, one not to be stampeded or frightened, not one sided or bent by ambition, but conscientious, deliberate with the caution of long experience, calm in the midst of vexatious demands, the sort of man this nation needs as its President.

"Enthusiastically proclaimed by hosts of his supporters, this is admitted in the confidential whispers of our opponents to be the general and unshakable judgment.

"Indiscriminate assults upon the Republican Party and leaders are not new. They were visited upon Garfield, upon McKinley, upon Roosevelt, whose birthday anniversary falls today and whom the entire country honors as one of the greatest of American patriots and statesmen. The present attacks are quite as vain. Long after his detractors have been forgotten the memory of Calvin Coolidge will be cherished by the American people."

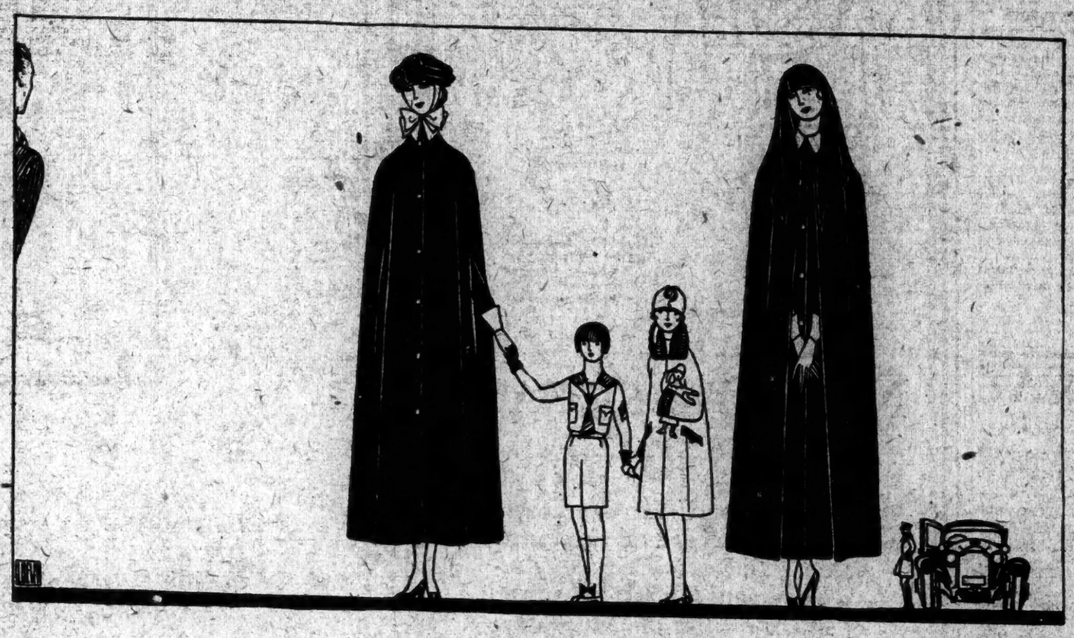
COSTUMES FOR MAIDS AND NURSES
ARE FEATURED IN A SPECIAL SECTION ON THE FOURTH FLOOR

Such Complete Assortments Can Be Found Only at the New Saks-Fifth Avenue Store



Wouldn't you just know she's English, she's so irreproachably correct in her nursemaid's costume—smart navy blue poiret twill cape, and navy blue hat of taffeta and velvet, with neat net ruching edging its brim? Two lawn streamers which tie under the chin give a demure touch. Cape, 35.00. Bonnet, 10.00.

The English governess at the right wears over her white pique uniform, a navy blue serge cape that has a great deal of swing to it (since there are no slits for the arms). Note the proper fashion in which her navy blue crepe de Chine bonnet drapes itself. Recognized in London as the essence of good taste. Cape, 35.00. Bonnet, 10.00.

THE FRENCH MAID

Très Chic in her new taffeta dress (gray or black as madame prefers) this French maid flaunts her exquisite apron set of point d'esprit. Her crisp net bandeau is both correct and captivating. Dress, 29.50; Apron set, 9.75; Bandeau, 2.95. Other bandeaux and caps of net and lawn, 50c to 2.95.

Her trim net apron set adds to the smart simplicity of this maid's regulation black mohair uniform that is so comfortable and so serviceable, 9.75. Gray at same price. Apron set, 2.95. Other sets 1.50 to 9.75.

WHEELER ASSAILS COOLIDGE'S SILENCE

Declares There Will Be No Housecleaning While He Remains in Authority.

CHALLENGES OPPONENTS

Senator Defies Any Illinois Republican to Deny Present Administration Is Corrupt.

Special to The New York Times.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 27.—Senator Wheeler told the voters of Springfield today that Abraham Lincoln, whose tomb is in this city, was the greatest progressive the country had ever known, and that if Lincoln were to come back he would be found fighting shoulder to shoulder with Robert M. La Follette in the battle to overthrow a Republican Party which had been discredited by corrupt politicians working in conjunction with corrupt business interests.

Senator Wheeler spoke to big crowds in this Republican city and was cheered when he denounced the Republican Administration at Washington and declared there would never be a thorough house cleaning while President Coolidge, the "silent man in the White House," remained in authority.

At a luncheon given by the Midday Club, at which many prominent Republicans were present, and at a mass meeting tonight in the State Arsenal, the Senator repeatedly challenged any Republican to get up and deny that the present Administration was the "most corrupt and the most venal" in the history of American politics.

"There are a lot of Republicans here," said Mr. Wheeler, "and I want you to get up and tell me what you think about the way things are being run down in Washington. I want to know if you business men and you ministers and you bankers are prepared to place your stamp of approval on the leasing of Teapot Dome and on the Little Green House in K Street.

Tells of Men Still in Office.

"Oh, I know that they will tell you President Coolidge is better than his party, but I want to tell you this: There are still being retained in the Government at Washington men who worked with Daugherty and with Albert B. Fall. Some of them are still there who helped in searching the offices of Senator Brookhart, and who shadowed me when I was trying to uncover corruption, and who did everything they could to embarrass the investigation.

"I want to tell you that there would never have been any disclosures involving Daugherty and Denby and Fall and others in the Administration if it had not been for the progressive Republican and progressive Democratic Senators, if there had been only Senators of the reactionary type you have sent from Illinois. You know that to be a fact.

"And where was Mr. Coolidge all this time, this President who is called better than his party? Why, everybody in Washington knew that there was corruption in the Department of Justice and the Interior Department. The newspaper men knew it, the man on the street knew it. And all this time Mr. Coolidge was, first, Vice President and, later, President, and he remained silent. He may say that he didn't know about it. Well, if he didn't he isn't competent to be President. Everybody knew it, but nobody would expose it until a few progressive Senators, who wanted to make the Government better for all of us, took matters in hand.

"And when I began to uncover the graft in Washington what did you Republican business men—or some of you, at least—say? Why, you said that we were reds and radicals. Are any of you prepared to say now that this corruption should not have been uncovered? That it was better to permit Daugherty and Fall to remain in office and give away Government lands and sell indulgencies, and stop the prosecution of corrupt business interests which had contributed to the Republican campaign funds? If there are, get up and say so now."

Pleads for a "Big Stick."

"As long as you keep the silent man in the White House there will be no thorough housecleaning. The same corrupt business interests which have dominated the Republican Administration at Washington will continue to dominate it. What we need in the White House is a man who will use the 'big stick,' not a man who will remain silent and inactive in the face of corruption and never lift a hand to help those who are trying to have the Government honestly run."

Ministers who are urging voters to support President Coolidge were criticised by Senator Wheeler after he had told his story of the corruption uncovered by the Progressive Senators and had charged that President Coolidge had given no aid.

"I want to add," said the Senator, "that there is no better example of hypocrisy than the attitude taken by the present Administration in regard to the enforcement of the prohibition laws. I don't like to see the ministers supporting such an Administration and I don't think that they ought to do it."

During his visit at Springfield Senator Wheeler placed a wreath on the tomb of Lincoln.

"As a citizen and as a representative of the great hosts of Progressives," he said, "it is a distinct privilege to be able to place this wreath upon the grave of the greatest Progressive of this country."

Senator Wheeler goes from Springfield to Michigan and will make his principal address tomorrow at Lansing.

DENY CATHOLIC BOARD ENDORSES CANDIDATES

Welfare Conference Heads Say They Take No Stand on Coming Elections.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—The Administrative Committee of the National Catholic Conference, composed of a majority of the American bishops and archbishops, formally declared here today that it had made no statement in favor or against any political party or candidate.

A statement, issued through the Most Rev. Edward J. Hanna, Archbishop of San Francisco, Chairman of the Conference, said:

"Various statements on present political issues published recently in the public press and claiming to bear the approval or sanction of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, or so phrased to give that impression, have been brought to our attention. We wish to state that no authorized pronouncement on any political questions has been made or will be made by the National Catholic Welfare Conference or any of its departments. The National Catholic Welfare Conference does not consider it within the scope of its activities to enter into political campaigns. It has made no statement in favor of or against any political party or candidates."

JUST FOR DAD

LET dad tell it and you are almost certain to find that he was one of the greatest mixers and sports of his time.

If you think you are a good sport and an all around fellow, give dad the credit and as a reward give him a radio set of his own.

Your set may be all right and a world beater as a distance getter, but it is almost a safe bet that his tastes and yours differ materially when it comes to listening in.

So why cramp his style, when for a reasonable investment you can turn him loose on the air and let him listen to his heart's content?

He will fall for the old fashioned quartets that sing on the air every night. Maybe he will go so far as to smash a few chords with them.

And when he tunes in on the sporting events, watch him stick out his chest and rave with joy as he tells you where Jack Dempsey, Babe Ruth and Sarazen get off when compared to the real champions of his day.

Can you imagine anything else that will make dad so happy?

By the Haynes-Griffin plan a safe and sane method of buying radio sets has been established. By this plan the set is sent to your home on seven days' free trial. If it proves in any way unsatisfactory you can bring it back and get your money back. Did you ever hear of a fairer or squarer business proposition?

Be a regular fellow and get your dear old dad a radio set today.

The Eagle 8-Tube Receiver here illustrated is the finest of all Neutrodyne Sets—price $175.

This and more than twenty other makes and models can be heard in the Haynes-Griffin cl o s e demonstration rooms.

The price range is complete—from $38.50 upward. And every detail of installation is attended to by us.

EGYPTIAN LACQUER AU FINISH

A Lacquer Finish Is Good for the Life of Your Car

Think of a finish that will outlive the usefulness of your car! Such a finish is now actually in use, being standard with a number of motor car manufacturers and hundreds of refinishers throughout the country.

Save Time and Care

LACQUER—the wonderful medium for auto finishing—is quick drying and is available in all colors and shades. It is harder and more durable than anything heretofore used on this class of work. It requires no special care to keep it looking at its best. A dry cloth cleans the dirtiest car without fear of scratching.

Will Not Check, Crack Nor Fade

A lacquer finish will not readily check, crack nor fade and is unaffected by heat or cold, mud, tar and other adverse road conditions.

Cars finished with Lacquer over three years ago look better today than when they were first done, proving that "The Finish improves with age" and best of all—IT COSTS NO MORE.

HYLAN REPLIES TO CITIZENS UNION

Declares That It Aims to Get Its Friends Back on the City Payroll.

McANENY WANTS CHARGES

Says Two Requests to the Mayor Have Been Refused—Scents a Backdown.

Mayor John F. Hylan replied yesterday in a prepared statement to the most recent attack by the Citizens Union upon what that body considers extravagances in the 1925 budget. The Mayor said in part:

"I see that the Citizens Union is again broadcasting its misleading propaganda. It intends to get its friends and sympathizers, who have been off the city payroll for more than eleven years, back again by hook or by crook.

"Schieffelin, Wallstein and Arndt make all the noise, for they constitute the whole of the Citizens Union, the public knowing as little about the contributing members as these members know what is going on in the organization.

"Wallstein, the advertising counsel of the Citizens Union, got about $30,000 of the people's money out of the Lockwood and Meyer investigating committees and he is impatient to have another committee set going so that he may hop on to the payroll.

"The Citizens Union has pilloried honest Senators and Assemblymen of both parties, particularly the Democratic Party, who have demonstrated their independence of corporation control. Perhaps the price to be paid for a favorable notice by this union is the turning over of law business to Wallstein and the purchase of drugs and liquors from Schieffelin.

"The Citizens Union is ready to get behind anything the traction, increased fare, gas, telephone and electric light rings advocate. These corporations provide the financial lifeblood of this discredited group. But the honest people in both the Democratic and Republican parties who are interested in a Government dispensing equal and exact justice to all, with special privileges to none, will have nothing to do with an organization which thrives on misrepresentation and hypocrisy and resorts to vicious abuse of every one whom it cannot use or control."

George McAneny, Chairman of the Transit Commission, referring yesterday to Mayor Hylan's radio talk of Saturday evening last, said that the members of the Traction Commission were withholding their further consideration of the libelous features of the Mayor's "so-called charges" to be forwarded to the Governor until they could obtain a copy of the form in which the charges will appear.

"The Mayor," Mr. McAneny said, "declared over the radio that he 'cared nothing' about the warnings against libel he had received. He did not, however, mention the fact that he had already cared enough to back down completely, so far as the press reports of Friday's meeting of the Board of Estimate indicate, on all of the more grossly libelous charges to which the commission excepted. He also apparently cared enough about them to crawl away from his original purpose of signing his name to any of them. Just how far his back-tracking toward safety proceeded, we cannot, of course, tell until we see exactly what the Estimate Board did do.

"I wrote the Mayor on Friday, in his capacity as Chairman of the Board of Estimate, asking that he furnish the commission with a copy of the charges in the form in which they will actually appear upon the minutes of the board. His secretary replied that this very simple request would be 'transmitted, for consideration by that board.'

"Whatever resolutions the Board of Estimate voted upon became, of course, public records the moment that their vote was taken. The commission is interested in exact information as to what they contain. So is the public. When, however, following the Mayor's latest evasion, I today wrote the Secretary of the Board of Estimate, requesting a transcript of the action taken, his reply to my messenger was that it 'could not be given out,' and that his orders were 'not to do anything about it until after the election.'

"Such exhibitions of nervousness are amusing, in a sense, though they have their serious side. The Mayor's willingness to add the suppression of a public record to the record he personally is making in this incident is a point to be taken into account.

"The commission, meanwhile, is willing to assume that the published accounts of his backdown at Friday's meeting were substantially correct and that the only matters that will go before the Governor will relate to questions of fact of a sort that certainly call for fair and impartial public review."

DENIES DAVIS NEBRASKA.

Governor Allen of Kansas Says Coolidge Sentiment Is Growing.

Governor Henry A. Allen of Kansas, who arrived in New York yesterday on his speaking tour for President Coolidge, said in an interview at Republican Eastern Headquarters that the so-called doubtful States of Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa and West Virginia were safe for Coolidge. Governor Allen has been speaking in these States and in North Carolina for several weeks.

"There is no longer any speculation in Kansas," Governor Allen said. "President Coolidge will get more votes than Davis and La Follette together. La Follette has a chance of being second when the votes are counted. He will get the radical mining vote, and the radical labor vote. In fact, everything that McAdoo would have polled will go to the Socialist-Third Party candidate."

Governor Allen said that there had been a tremendous increase of Coolidge sentiment in Nebraska within the last few weeks.

Restaurant Proprietor Shot.

Michael Lopinto, 39 years old, proprietor of an Italian restaurant, The Moonlight Inn, in the basement of 118 East Eleventh Street, was shot twice and probably fatally wounded last night by one of three unidentified men, who escaped in a black touring car. Lopinto, who was taken to Bellevue Hospital after emergency treatment by Dr. Berk, was unable to give detectives a description of his assailants. Lopinto, according to the police, had conducted the restaurant only a few months.

Toxins Fatal to Austrian Children.

VIENNA, Oct. 27.—Owing to the outbreak of a diphtheria epidemic in Baden, near Vienna, inmates of the child hospital were vaccinated with diphtheria and anti-diphtheria toxins. While many of the children withstood the vaccination, several fell and seven died. The deaths are ascribed to the fact that the two toxins were separated, thereby releasing poison.

$15,000 Verdict for Injuries.

A jury in the Supreme Court awarded $15,000 yesterday to Peter Sarafin, electrician, of 35 Cherry Street, for injuries which Sarafin received when he fell down an open shaft while at work installing electrical apparatus in a loft building at 368 Pearl Street, owned by Mrs. Sarah Adams Barnum.

Santa Fe Men Lose New Appeal.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—The Supreme Court today again refused to review the case of former employes of the Santa Fe system who were convicted of a criminal conspiracy when they quit work at Needles, Cal., during the shopmen's strike of 1922. The Court announced on Oct. 13 that it would not review the case, but the convicted men filed a petition insisting that the Clayton act should have protected them against conviction.

RADIO FANS PRAISE THE GIMBEL STATION

New Plant Gets Messages of Appreciation During First Full Program.

'THE MIRACLE' FOR TONIGHT

Isaac Gimbel Says Ideal Is to Give Things That Make Life Worth While—Three Bills Daily.

The newest comer among New York's entertainers by air, Gimbel Brothers, who launched a daily program on Sunday, and received many messages of appreciation while the fans still were listening in, got more evidence of public approval as they went through their first full day's program yesterday.

Tonight the station is to broadcast "The Miracle" in full, direct from the stage of the Century Theatre, a special installation of five microphones having been made, so that the symphony orchestra, the organ, the choir loft and the stage all may be caught in proper proportion and that the announcer may be able to describe the progress of the performance.

Fred Eric, who will do the announcing, has studied the play for two weeks to understand its spirit. He will interpolate the necessary explanations as he watches the action from the balcony. From each of the five microphones wires will run to a special station back of the stage at the Century, where two operators control the transmitting. From there "The Miracle" is to be relayed to the station. Broadcasting will begin at 8 o'clock promptly, when the lights in the theatre are dimmed and the play commences. During intermissions Rosamond Pinchot, Morris Gest, Norman Bel-Geddes, who designed the production, and others will speak to the radio audience.

The Gimbel studio is on the eighth floor of the New York store and is connected by wires with Station WIP in Philadelphia, so that the "dead spot" in the other between the two cities which makes difficult reception in one of entertainment broadcast in the other may be overcome. The studio is arranged in a glass enclosure, a novel feature which enables the visitor to see the process of broadcasting in action. That opportunity drew many visitors yesterday.

On 316-Meter Wave.

The new station will work on a 316-meter wave length with a power output of 500 watts. It is scheduled to be on the air for forty hours every week with a varied program, as is instanced by that of yesterday, which included such items as an opening shopping talk, a talk on cooking and a discussion of school government by high school pupils, sandwiched in with piano solos, vocal and instrumental numbers and the Lopez Orchestra.

In the arranging of the opening for Sunday night, everything possible was done to make the occasion pleasant for the listeners-in. Isaac Gimbel, President of the firm, officially started it off with the announcement that the new station had taken for its ideal the transmitting of "things that make life worth while" and promised that the programs would not be outdone by any others broadcast in this country.

The master of ceremonies during the four hours and a half that the new station was demonstrating its right to exist was Eddie Cantor, who proved to be so well liked by the fans that most of the many messages which came in while the station was still broadcasting either praised his entertainment or asked for favorite songs of his.

Features of Wide Range.

Among the other features were Vincent Lopez and George Olsen, with their orchestras; a Russian chorus, led by Vavitch of the Chauve Souris Company; Earl Carroll and members of the cast of his show, Rosamond Pinchot, Clark and McCullough, musical comedy stars; Cliff Edwards, Jimmy Watts, Bugs Baer, Louis John Bartels, Raymond Hitchcock and representatives of the Greenwich Village Follies, the Grand Street Follies and the English Grand Opera Company.

The new station is to share wavelengths and split broadcasting hours with WHAG. It will have morning, afternoon and evening programs, and each afternoon at 1:30 there is to be an undenominational, non-sectarian Bible reading under the auspices of the American Bible Society. Church chimes will precede and follow the passages selected for the day, and the presentation of the chosen passage will be without any note or comment.

YALE BENEFITS BY WILL.

It and New York Hospital Share Estate of Mrs. L. A. Bliss.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—Yale University and the New York Nursery and Child's Hospital are named residuary legatees in the will of Mrs. Lucie A. Bliss, widow of the late William Metcalf Bliss, filed today in Probate Court. The fund for Yale is to be used for increases in salaries of professors. The Farmers Loan and Trust Company of New York will administer the estate.

Willis O. Warren, Secretary to Mrs. Bliss, is bequeathed $10,000. Roosevelt Hospital in New York is to receive $5,000 for a bed in the children's ward and the Literary Society of St. Vincent Ferrar's Church is also to receive $5,000.

Guy E. Baker, nephew of the testator, gets a life interest in real estate at Westport, N. Y. A trust fund of $25,000 is created for the benefit of Mr. Baker. Ashley Baker, also a nephew, gets $20,000. George Baker, also a nephew, gets $5,000 and Viola Baker, a grand niece, and her mother each get $25,000. John R. Oliver, a grandnephew, gets $5,000.

4 INDICTED FOR ROBBERY.

Formally Charged With Hold-Up in Mrs Heyworth's Apartment

Indictments charging robbery were returned yesterday against four men accused of holding up Mrs. Helen Heyworth and Alfred Hanan of 240 West Ninety-first Street, in her apartment at 100 Central Park West nine days ago. The four are Jacob and Louis Kiviat, twin brothers, of 22 Pike Street; Abraham Brown of 31 Pike Street and Louis Fiskin of 402 Christopher Street, Brooklyn.

Mrs. Heyworth was unable to identify Fiskin as one of the robbers, but she was alleged to have identified the other three prisoners. The defendants will be arraigned this morning before Judge Nott in General Sessions.

CITY BREVITIES.

The Italy America Society will give a dinner in honor of the returning American Ambassador, Prince Gelasio Caetani, and Henry P. Fletcher, American Ambassador to Rome, on Tuesday evening, Nov. 11.

At the services of the Central and Free Synagogue next Sunday morning at Carnegie Hall, an address—the first to be given by him in America—will be made by Sir Willoughby Dickinson, M. P., of London, who is Chairman of the Minority Rights Section of the League of Nations Association. A second address will be given by Professor James T. Shotwell of Columbia University, Director of the "Economic and Social History of the World War," now being prepared by scholars in many lands. The general theme of the addresses will be "What Hope of World Peace?"

The Legacy Of The Past

Even today we hear of title troubles that go back to our very first settlers.

LUTHERAN CHURCH FOR 'JUST WARS'

Resolution Adopted at Chicago Convention Recognizes Country Might Be Invaded.

MOVIES TO BE "SURVEYED"

Newspaper Advertising by Churches Is Advocated by the Committee on Publicity.

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—The United Lutheran Church in America in biennial convention today adopted a resolution declaring that Christians should work for the promotion, "through some agency" of international good-will, but "may engage in just wars." A number of delegates subsequently, however, signed a statement dissenting from the resolution on the ground of its alleged "emphasis of the right of war."

"I speak not as an extreme pacifist," said Dr. J. A. W. Haas, President of Muhlenberg College, Allentown, Pa., one of the dissenting group, "but as one who attempts to read the signs of the times. The fundamental need today is not to declare that there are just wars, but to fight against the fundamental evils that cause war."

Would "Fight Like the Dickens."

Dr. L. S. Keyser of Hamma Divinity School, Springfield, Ohio, vigorously defended the resolution, saying that if the country were invaded he would enlist and "I'd be blamed if I wouldn't fight like the dickens."

Also defending the resolution, Dr. E. P. Pfatteicher of Reading, Pa., said he did not agree with some of its critics that assent to the Augsburg Confession (cited in the resolution as countenancing Christian participation in just wars) was so obvious as to require no reaffirmation.

Dr. Paul Scherer of Trinity Lutheran Church, New York City, urged that the resolution be referred back, saying that the committee had placed emphasis in the wrong place and that the "better way of love" should be emphasized.

Dr. E. M. Delk of Philadelphia, another of those in favor of outlawing all war, said: "I should hate to find the Church lagging behind statesmen of America and other countries. Senator Borah will, in the coming Congress, present a bill to outlaw war."

Text of the Resolution.

The resolution as adopted reads:

We believe that the time has come when it is necessary to spread the fact that nationalism and internationalism are not mutually exclusive terms; that patriotism and the love of other nations and races are complementary; that the processes employed by and within the nation to secure justice, peace and stability must be employed as an ever-increasing measure in the intercourse between nations; that the arbitrament of armament yield in an ever larger degree to the arbitrament of reason, of law and of Christian love, and that to this end Christian citizens are pledged as such to exert every effort through the establishment of some effective agency to further justice and good-will in their own country and in the commonwealth of nations.

We believe that the Lutheran World Convention can contribute materially to the furtherance of world peace and petition it to consider this problem.

Holding these fundamental principles, we recognize the fact that sin is still in the world and that nations might be unwarrantably incited to attack and invade our nation and therefore we believe that in accordance with the teachings of Article XVI. of the Augsburg Confession and Article I. of the Constitution of the United States, Christians may engage in just wars and act as soldiers.

The convention voted down a substitute submitted by the ministerium of Pennsylvania calling upon the leaders of the nations "to resist political, economic and commercial incitements to war" and to "suppress militarism and national selfishness."

A resolution "to outlaw war," offered by Dr. W. J. Shawalter of Washington, editor of The National Geographic Magazine, did not come to a vote.

The convention unanimously adopted a resolution protesting against "suggestive and indecent moving pictures," and providing for surveys of moving pictures in various centres, to be presented to Governors of the States where made.

Newspaper Advertising Urged.

That churches should avail themselves of the opportunity to reach the public through newspaper advertising is the opinion of the Committee on Publicity expressed in its report to the convention. The committee says:

"The churches have found publicity and advertising proper aids in prosecuting their work nationally and locally and the public press has come to attach a growing value to church activities as news for their readers. The paid advertisement has become invaluable to a considerable number of local churches."

The report of the Board of Education announces that steps for the establishment of a woman's college are being taken. It will most likely be situated in the eastern part of the country. To obviate delay of building the committee has asked for authorization to rent or purchase buildings for the college so as to proceed at once with the education of Lutheran young women.

183 BIG SPEEDBOATS TO JOIN DRY FLEET

First of New Armed Craft Arrives and Is Put Into Commission in Coast Guard.

The first of a fleet of 183 giant speedboats, newly designed and built for operation against liquor runners, arrived yesterday at the United States Barge Office at the Battery and was placed in commission as a Coast Guard patrol boat.

The new boats will cost $25,000 each and will have a speed of thirty knots. Each is equipped with three one-inch rifles and a Lewis machine gun, in addition to small arms, and each boat will have a radio apparatus for transmission and receiving.

All the new boats are expected to be operating before the Christmas holidays, when liquor smuggling is at its height.

Coast Guard cutters reported the capture of four motor boats with 250 cases of liquor and three arrests over the week-end. Two seizures were made off Point Lookout, near Jones Inlet, L. I. The Coast Guard of Point Lookout seized an alleged liquor runner with twenty-five cases of liquor and arrested one man. An abandoned motor dory, with several cases of liquor aboard, also was seized.

At Sandy Hook a motor boat with 150 cases of liquor was captured and two men were arrested. The Fire Island Coast Guard captured a motor boat with fifty cases of liquor.

Robitzek Estate $75,666.

The estate of Municipal Court Justice Harry Robitzek of Bronx County, who died June 6, 1923, was appraised yesterday at $75,666, which was left to his family. He owned securities worth $66,062, the chief item of which was stock of the Cripple Creek Holding Company, owner of the building at 1,238 Tyne Avenue, valued at $94,500.

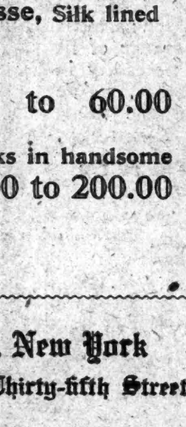
With But a Single Purpose

—To maintain the straight line
With the greatest possible comfort.

The Ceinture is the new Paris way of achieving the slender, straight silhouette so necessary to wear successfully the present fashions. Here are three especially good models, beautifully and correctly made. Other models, quite as effective, from $3.50 to $75.00, or made to the individual order, at moderate prices.



FOR THE VERY PETITE FIGURE—

A Ceinture girdle of mauve, rose, maize, or blue French batiste, that buttons instead of hooks; an elastic panel, inset at the back, and the button holes are decoratively as well as practically made.

10.00

FOR THE SLIGHTLY LARGER FIGURE—

The figure that requires sufficient support but not actual corseting. A Ceinture of heavy satin in all colors, with lacing at the back and little boning. A wide lace frill is the only trimming.

15.00

FOR THE MORE MATURE FIGURE

A Ceinture of heavy pink satin with a wide elastic panel at the back and four very cleverly concealed invisible lacings that give perfect freedom. Quite well boned.

at the LOWEST PRICE IN HISTORY

Save 46% by ordering now!

NOW—today—by acting quickly—you can buy the latest, complete, revised, large type, large page Encyclopædia Britannica in the New Form for 46 per cent less than the price of the famous Cambridge issue.

To you and to thousands of others who have said, "Some day I shall own the Britannica," this announcement is news of the utmost importance. It means that while this issue lasts, you can buy the complete Britannica in the New Form at the most amazing price reduction it has ever been possible for us to make in the 156 years that the Britannica has been published.

The story of how this saving was made possible is the story of one of the greatest publishing achievements of all time.

The idea behind the New Form was the logical outcome of years of experience; it crystallized the recommendations of thousands of users and owners of the Britannica. We gave the specifications to our experts and told them to go ahead. Their success has been beyond all expectations.

These were the specifications—and they have been carried out to the letter:

[1] Large type, easy to read.

[2] Complete and latest text.
(Nothing omitted, nothing altered.)

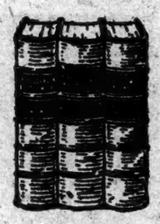
[3] Fully illustrated.
(All the original plates, maps, etc.)

[4] Sweeping reduction in price.

This Handsome
BOOKCASE FREE

This handsome bookcase, in dark mahogany finish, especially designed for us by Maple & Co. of London, will be given free with each set of the Encyclopædia Britannica in the New Form while this offer lasts. But you must act promptly—mail the coupon today.

Why the price is so low!



First Edition
Three Volumes

FIRST OF ALL the experts made a striking innovation—they decided to bind this issue of the Britannica in 16 double volumes instead of 32 single volumes. That one change enabled us to save nearly 50 per cent of the binding cost.

This innovation was made possible by the use of the famous Britannica Opacity Paper, which is very thin but beautifully white and opaque. We placed an order for 1200 tons—sufficient for 10,000,000 books of ordinary size—at a time when prices in the paper market were at their lowest.

Then it was determined to print this issue from the plates of the famous Cambridge issue, which sells for nearly twice as much. By doing this it was possible to save thousands of dollars, because we did not have to reset 33,000 pages of type.

The use of these plates is your guarantee that the text is identical with the finest de luxe sets.

Contents identical with issues selling for twice as much

Everyone who has seen the Britannica in the New Form has been enthusiastic about it—and no wonder. Line for line and word for word, its contents are identical with those of the Cambridge issue, which sells for nearly twice as much.

The Encyclopædia Britannica in the New Form is the newest and latest issue, containing not only a full and authoritative account of the World War and its momentous consequences, but all the latest developments in industry, art, science, invention, etc. It contains 49,000,000 words, 33,000 pages and 15,600 illustrations—as much material as 476 books of average size printed on ordinary paper.

There is not a subject you can think of that is not treated in a complete and authoritative way in the Britannica. A study of its vivid, interesting pages is a liberal education. It is the greatest possible help to ambitious men and women—an absolute necessity in every home where there are growing children.

Never have we received so many enthusiastic letters as have come from advance subscribers in the past few weeks. "I would rather have the Britannica in the New Form than a former issue for which I paid nearly twice as much," writes one man. "The most beautiful set in my library," writes another. And many other letters proclaim the Britannica in this New Form as "the greatest publishing achievement of the century."

Only 7000 sets at this 46% saving

Following the announcement of the Britannica in the New Form, orders have been coming in far beyond our expectations. These are coming from every quarter of the globe; England is taking several thousand sets.

Of the original 20,000 sets printed, less than 7000 remain for sale in the United States. These sets are going fast. We urge you, therefore, to mail the coupon today for full particulars if you desire a set at the unprecedented saving of 46 per cent.

Easy terms—small first payment

A very small first payment will put the complete set of 16 double volumes in your home immediately and you can pay the balance in easy monthly payments, so small that they will never be missed.

Act today before it is too late! Your chance is here—the time is now—tomorrow it may be gone. Make sure of your set. Before you turn the page, sign the attached coupon (it commits you in no way) and we will send you details of this wonderful offer.

READ WHAT OTHERS SAY

CHARLES M. SCHWAB
Chairman of the Board, Bethlehem Steel Corporation

"The publication of the Britannica in the New Form at such a low price is something more important than any purely commercial undertaking could be. It is bringing the most important and authoritative work of its kind in the world within reach of those ambitious people of moderate means who need it most—the men who are raising themselves from the ranks to positions of responsibility."

HAROLD T. PULSIFER
Managing Editor of the "Outlook"

"We at the Outlook are enthusiastic about the Britannica in the New Form, and our enthusiasm is shared by all who have seen this set. From every point of view, the Britannica in the New Form is worthy of the splendid tributes to this great work."

CHIDED BY FATHER, GIRL KILLS HERSELF

COMPANIONS ARE CLEARED

Child Had Been Chastised for Going to a Theatre the Night Before.

Special to The New York Times.

HACKENSACK, N. J., Oct. 27.—Valentine M. Suder, 14 years old, living with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Suder, at 20 Lexington Avenue, Wallington, shot herself to death in her home this morning just as her father was leaving the house on his way to work. Her mother heard the shots, called her husband back and they found a closet in the front room locked. The father burst it open and their daughter's dead body fell toward them.

A note on her bed told why Valentine had decided to end her life. It was as follows:

"Now I hope he is satisfied. Nothing could have been sweeter to him. By the words he and him, I mean the man who was supposed to be my father. Father I would not call him because he did not act like one. I hope the marks on my body will show you the cause for all this. He will not have to buy me any more clothes or anything else. They can do with me as they please and this is my greatest wish of all, that he may croak under a fence like a dog, for it was he who has taken my life."

Chief Joseph Hartfield made an inquiry and found that Mr. Suder had chastised his daughter for coming home at 1 o'clock this morning. She had been chided often and on one occasion the father had slapped her. She and two other girls, older than herself, and three young men, attended a theatre in New York last night, but the police hold her companions blameless.

"Valentine was stubborn and headstrong," said Chief Hartfield. "She was well educated for a girl of her age. On Saturday the girl was given a new coat by her parents, who went shopping with her. After being rebuked this morning she waited five hours for her parents to go down stairs, then she got her father's revolver, went into a front room and then locked herself in a closet. The moment the door slammed she fired the shots. The first bullet did not find the mark, but the third did. An examination of the revolver found that the two remaining bullets had been clicked but did not explode."

GRAND DUCHESS CYRIL VISIT

Her Coming by Invitation of the Monday Opera Supper Club.

Mrs. Henry P. Loomis of Tuxedo Park, one of the Advisory Committee of the Monday Opera Supper Club, has received a cable confirming plans made last Summer for the visit of the Grand Duchess Cyril of Russia to America. The Grand Duchess has accepted the invitation of Mrs. Loomis on behalf of the club to come to this country and she will sail on the Paris on Nov. 29. She will remain long enough to attend several of the dances given by the Monday Opera Supper Club at Sherry's.

During her stay in New York the Grand Duchess will occupy the royal suite at the Waldorf-Astoria. She is a daughter of the late Duke of Edinburgh and a granddaughter of the late Queen Victoria. She is also a sister of Queen Marie of Rumania. Her marriage to the Grand Duke, a first cousin of the Czar of Russia, took place Oct. 8, 1905.

Both the Grand Duke and Duchess are honorary members of the Monday Opera Supper Club. Other honorary members include the Duchess de Vendome of France and the Dowager Marchioness of Milford Haven of England. Other members on the Advisory Committee with Mrs. Loomis are the Princess Cantacuzene-Speransky, Mrs. Richard Mortimer, Mrs. Henry H. Rogers and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt. Ethan Allen is Treasurer of the club, and George Diamgaroff, Secretary.

Although there have been various rumors about the visit of the Grand Duchess it is authoritatively announced that she is not coming to lecture in this country. She is coming, according to a member of the committee, simply in recognition of the efforts made by the club to aid her suffering compatriots in Europe.

ADMIRAL JOSEPHTHAL HOST.

Entertains Twenty Guests at Luncheon and Football Game.

Rear Admiral Louis M. Josephthal of the Naval Militia and aid to Governor Smith, and Mrs. Josephthal, gave a luncheon for twenty guests at the Plaza, and later took them to the football game between the Quantico Marines and the Scouting Fleet at the Yankee Stadium.

The guests included Rear Admiral and Mrs. C. P. Plunkett, U. S. N., commandant Third District; Rear Admiral and Mrs. W. W. Phelps, U. S. N., of the General Board; Brig. Gen. and Mrs. J. H. Lane, U. S. M. C.; Captain and Mrs. J. D. Wainwright, U. S. N., assistant commandant, Third Division; Colonel Bradley, U. S. A., commandant Fort Slocum; Captain D. C. Hanrahan, U. S. N.; Commander and Mrs. L. R. Leahy, U. S. N.; Mrs. James Carroll Frazier, President of the Belleau Woods Memorial Association; Captain J. H. Craige, U. S. M. C.; Lieutenant J. H. Sinnott, U. S. N., aid to Admiral Plunkett; Lieutenant A. P. Snody, U. S. N., and the Misses Audrey Josephthal and Elinor Josepthal, daughters of the host and hostess.

Bertha Farner in Soprano Songs.

Bertha Farner of Chicago made her local début in a matinee of soprano songs at Aeolian Hall yesterday, assisted at the piano by Charles Albert Baker. A naturally rich voice and mature intelligence, needing yet more lightness and flexibility, marked her Italian airs and groups of German and French, headed by Bach's "Mein Glaubiges Herze" and "L'Absence" of Berlioz. The sheer luxury of tone and range served well for Martin's "Harp of the Woodland" and others by Americans. To Lily Strickland's "My Love Is a Fisherman" was added the quaintly florid "Come and Trip It" on recall.

figured in previous crimes and was out on bail on another charge.

When examination of Mr. Rittenhouse showed that an immediate operation was necessary he was taken to the hospital. The end came while he was under the influence of the anaesthetic. He was 45 years old and is survived only by Mrs. Rittenhouse.

Mr. Rittenhouse was related to the Philadelphia family of the same name. Mrs. Rittenhouse is a sister of E. W. Marland, President of the Marland Refining Company, who, with Mrs. Marland, lives at the Plaza Hotel in New York City.

Mr. Rittenhouse formerly was President of the Diamond Tire Company, from which he retired to form the rubber company which bears his name.

M. GEMIER AT CITY HALL.

Mayor Hylan Officially Welcomes the Famous French Actor.

The first recognition of foreign theatrical stars by the United States Government, resulting in an invitation being extended by Charles E. Hughes, Secretary of State, to Firmin Gemier and the company of the Theatre Nationale de l'Odeon, Paris, to come to New York for a series of plays, was followed yesterday at the City Hall by an official welcome from Mayor Hylan to M. Gemier.

The French company, consisting of thirty-five actors, including Germaine Rouer and Vera Koretsky, will arrive here Friday on the Rochambeau of the French Line.

James K. Hackett, who was invited to France as a representative American actor, was responsible for the invitation by Secretary Hughes to the French Ministry of the Fine Arts to send the Nationale Theatre players here. Mr. Hackett accompanied M. Gemier to the City Hall and introduced him to the Mayor. Talking through an interpreter, M. Gemier told the Mayor that he was amazed at the size of New York's office buildings and apartment houses. He said that he already had written to friends in Paris that the American method would solve the French capital's housing problem. To another friend, the Paris Prefect of Police, M. Gemier said, he had written that New York enjoyed far better traffic regulations than Paris, and he recommended the use of American methods.

M. Gemier said it was easy to know that he was in America, because "the lights in the eyes of the young men are the same as those that shone in the eyes of America's soldiers when they were doing battle for France and civilization."

Otto H. Kahn is the Chairman of the committee in charge of the visit of the Odeon players and Mr. Hackett the Executive Secretary. The company is expected to be at the Jolson Theatre for six weeks, beginning Nov. 10.

GADSKI AT HIPPODROME.

Noted Soprano Makes Her Vaudeville Debut—Nora Bayes at Palace.

Mme. Johanna Gadski, celebrated as a lyric dramatic soprano, whose appearances have hitherto been confined to the grand opera and concert stages, made her vaudeville début at the Hippodrome yesterday afternoon. Her offering, made up of Wagnerian arias and simple lieder, was enthusiastically received.

Teka-Takka, a Balinese temple dancer from Java, was another newcomer to vaudeville on yesterday's bill. The Javanese importation proved to be a rendition of sacred and legendary national pantomime, interesting and novel throughout.

Others on the program were George Jessel, Karavaeff, the Tom Davies Trio, Colleano, William Brack & Co., Carter and Cornish, Patricola, and Gordon Dooley and Martha Morton.

The event of the afternoon at the Palace was the return of Nora Bayes to American vaudeville, after a successful engagement in London. Miss Bayes has never appeared to better advantage and her songs were delightfully done, in a perfection of her familiar manner.

Further offerings, on a program distinguished for speed and comedy, were Hal Skelly, in "The Mutual Man"; a screamingly funny group of burlesque acrobats, Frederick Sylvester & Co.; the Roye and Maye Revue, Ted and Betty Healy, Frank Dixon, "Syncopating Toes," and the Weaver Brothers.

Edmund Burke Again in Concert.

Edmund Burke, the Canadian bass-baritone of the Metropolitan, more often recognized as Egypt's king or other operatic potentate, returned to the concert platform at the Town Hall last evening. He gave classics from unsung operas of Handel, Lulli and Bizet; some "rollicking" love ballads, arranged by Hopekirk, Hughes and Wilson, and lyrics of Wolf and Brahms, Buzzi-Peccia, Ida Bostelman and Deems Taylor. It was unhackneyed, romantic music, delivered in the spirit of the songs, with admirable taste, humor and abandon. Ludvik Schwab played artistic accompaniments.

To whom have you willed Worry — Labor — Care?

WHEN you appoint a friend the executor and trustee of your estate, you pay him honor, it is true. But with it goes a burden of labor, worry, and care that may weigh upon his shoulders for many years.

The task of an executor is arduous and the duties of a trustee in applying sound business management are exacting in the extreme.

And should this friend die or find himself unable to assume this burden, then the entire load of worry and care is thrown back upon the shoulders of those whom you sought to protect.

For then the court appoints an administrator of your will and a substitute trustee to carry out its trusts. How much better to avoid this possible necessity by yourself selecting an institution that will not die and that insures continuous administration.

Every day, more and more men, out of consideration for friends and family, are appointing in their wills the Irving-Columbia as executor or trustee.

In appointing the Irving-Columbia, you secure an executor or trustee

—who is not liable to illness and death

—who is never absent or "too busy" to give this task the constant care it often demands

—who has had over a generation of experience in the settling of estates and in the management of property

—who has facilities to handle with speed and accuracy the many details that often cause delay and hardship.

MANY men are surprised to learn the moderate cost of Irving-Columbia service. All the facilities and resources of the Irving-Columbia are at your service for the same fees as would be paid to an individual executor or trustee, since in both cases the fees are defined by law.

Not being interested in the sale of securities of any type whatsoever, the judgment of the Irving-Columbia is at all times wholly impartial.

An officer of this Company will always be pleased to talk over with you your personal problem or give any information you may desire.

We have prepared several booklets which explain clearly and simply important facts about wills and the handling of estates. They can be obtained on request at any of our offices listed below.

WOULD PARK AUTOS AT PARK ENTRANCE

Dealers Seek Permission to Establish Zone Near the Maine Monument.

PETITION GOES TO POLICE

Modification Asked in Traffic Regulations—Gallatin Is Opposed to Movement.

Automobile dealers and manufacturers launched a movement yesterday to have the transverse road from the entrance to Central Park at the Maine Monument to the East Drive set aside for the parking of automobiles, by making application for that privilege to both the Police Department and the Department of Parks.

The applications, with supporting arguments, were submitted by the Automobile Merchants' Association, of which J. B. Hulett is President and H. G. Bragg General Manager. They set forth that the recent no-parking regulations put into effect by the police have seriously interfered with the normal business activities of automobile dealers and other concerns. The letter to Park Commissioner Francis D. Gallatin follows:

"We earnestly ask your assistance in relieving the parking congestion now existing between Eighth and Ninth Avenues at Fifty-seventh Street, which is the present parking space assigned by the Police Department for this neighborhood.

"The parking law has been in effect and enforced for the past week, and the demand for parking space far exceeds the supply in this district. The next nearest ones are at Thirty-fourth Street south and Seventy-first Street north, which are entirely too far apart. We had an occasion to check up the traffic at the entrance of Fifty-ninth Street and Central Park at the Maine Monument on the road leading to the East Drive, and find that this would make an ideal parking space for the business men who use their automobiles for transportation, with large investments in the neighborhood, and they would be shown every possible consideration as citizens and extended all the assistance possible to carry on their businesses.

"We hereby make application through you, Commissioner, for this space to be assigned for parking for the reasons stated above, and ask for immediate action."

The letter to the police was addressed to Inspector Michael T. Ahearn in charge of traffic in the First District. It mentions several automobile concerns in the vicinity of Fifty-seventh Street and Broadway and says:

"No obstacles should be placed in the way of these concerns, together with many others whom we have not mentioned, to prevent them from what they are justly entitled to—namely, that their income should not be curtailed by a law of any kind where legitimate business is being transacted. Aside from the automobile industry, which represents the third largest in the world, essential transportation for the carrying on of many other business interests are being harmfully affected. The cars of all automobile concerns should have the privilege of occupying space close to their salesrooms in order to be ready for immediate call. In the event of a congestion the automobile concerns will willingly remove their cars on the request of the Police Department.

"Our suggestion would be that there be no parking whatever allowed on north and south streets, but that cars be allowed to park on one side of the east and west one way streets. This plan would not only relieve the congestion on the avenues, but by extending the parking time would make it possible for shoppers to drive into the restricted areas. In connection with this we would further suggest that some slight change be made in the zoning laws so that garages large enough can accommodate the cars of business men whose offices are below Fifty-ninth Street, thus taking the cars off the streets during the day."

Park Commissioner Gallatin said last night that he received the application of the Automobile Merchants' Association and that he had written denying the application, because it was clearly a park invasion. He said that his jurisdiction did not extend beyond the entrance of the park at the Maine Monument, but thought it was possible for the police to make some concession whereby parking near the entrance of the park could be allowed.

SHERMAN AGAIN WARNS OF PHONE RATE RISE

Attorney General Says He Has Proof That New York Company Plans Advance.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 27.—Attorney General Carl Sherman announced today that confirmatory proof of his contention that the New York Telephone Company was planning to increase its rates up-State upward of 30 per cent. had been received at his office. The information, forwarded by corporation counsels of several cities, was that company agents were active in the appraisal of property outside New York City.

The Attorney General said this information had been verified at the opening of the telephone rate case proceedings before a special master in New York City. At this hearing, Mr. Sherman said, the attorney for the company admitted that appraisals of property had been made up-State, but said he was unable to determine whether this value would be in excess of that fixed by the Public Service Commission.

"In view of this admission," Mr. Sherman said, "we have a right to assume that our contention that the company plans to increase telephone rates over 30 per cent. in the up-State territory is substantiated. I anticipated that such would be the case, and we are prepared for a counter-attack."

DISLIKED PRIVATE SCHOOL.

Franklin Roshek Ran Away as a Protest, Says Captain Ayres.

Captain John H. Ayres, in charge of the Missing Persons' Bureau, said that Franklin Roshek, 14, who was found last Thursday after a month's disappearance from home, had run away as a protest against attending a private school.

Captain Ayres said he was not at liberty to disclose where or how the boy was discovered, but disclosed that he had planned his escape some time in advance and had saved virtually all of the liberal allowance his parents gave him. Captain Ayres took the boy to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Roshek, at 218 West Eighty-first Street, last Thursday, he said, and they had since taken him to the country. His distaste for school, according to the Captain, applied only to the one to which his parents sent him. As soon as he returns he will attend a school of his own choice, he declared.

A PATRICIAN

From states and sovereigns, international expositions, and learned societies in all parts of the world, embracing every known method of recognizing distinguished merit, Chickering and Sons have received over one hundred and fifty first medals and awards.

Mr. C. Frank Chickering was personally invested with the Imperial Cross of the Legion of Honor by Napoleon III.

There is a fineness and beauty in the Chickering, a nobility of tone and charm of line that make it the most distinguished of the world's great pianos.

For one hundred and one years the most skillful craftsmen in America have handed down from generation to generation the admiration and affection they have felt for this piano. They have watched carefully every smallest detail; they have year by year perfected every part. They have striven reverently to give of their best, that the Chickering might become the piano that it is today.

These many generations of craftsmen have consistently lived up to the great Chickering traditions, and they have succeeded in making the glorious pianos you hear in the recitals of Dohnanyi and Lhévinne.

Perhaps the surpassing wonder of the Chickering is that if you choose a model of a size to suit your living-room, you will still find the same noble qualities that thrilled you in the Concert Grand.

The Ampico in the Chickering

You can have with the Chickering the incomparable Ampico—the modern marvel that re-enacts for you the playing of the world's most famous pianists. Come in and hear your favorite pieces; you will realize what a joy it will be to have this feast of music in your home.

You can buy any instrument at Chickering Hall on comfortable terms over an extended period of time. Your present piano will count on the purchase price. Chickering prices, $875 to $2500. With the Ampico, $1800 to $5000.

COOLIDGE MESSAGE READ BY GIRL PUPIL

Letter to Young Student Pays Tribute to the Late Theodore Roosevelt.

BIRTHDAY EXERCISES HELD

Navy Day Also Is Celebrated by the City and Nation—Observances Abroad.

The sixty-sixth anniversary of the birth of Theodore Roosevelt and Navy Day were jointly celebrated yesterday with exercises at the Roosevelt birthplace at 28 East Twentieth Street, and with several other patriotic meetings.

A tribute from President Coolidge to the former President was read at the Eastern District High School. This was written by President Coolidge to Helen Grossberg, 14 years old, of 217 Hewes Street, Brooklyn, who, on Oct. 20, wrote to the President as follows:

"I am a high school girl, 14 years old, and would like to have a letter from you to read to my class on Roosevelt's birthday, Oct. 27.

"If you would write a few lines I am sure it will be of interest."

Reply From the President.

President Coolidge replied as follows:

The White House, Oct. 27, 1924.
Miss Helen Grossberg, 217 Hewes Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

My Dear Miss Grossberg:

It has been gratifying to learn that the birthday anniversary of President Theodore Roosevelt is again to be very widely observed this year.

The career and service which each year are more widely recognized and formally acknowledged have been a continual inspiration to the American people.

President Roosevelt's life was devoted to encouraging and promoting the best ideals of American citizenship. It was his fortune to possess a personality that was particularly inspiring, and for this reason his example has been particularly forceful and is a lesson to all who admired the man and wished they might emulate his service.

Very truly yours,
CALVIN COOLIDGE.

"He dared to do the thing he believed right, rather than yield to the thing others thought expedient. He has again and again been charged with impulsiveness and undue haste in reaching conclusions. As we study his meteoric career we wonder at the amazing accuracy of his judgment. He seemed to have the gift of prescience." Said one of his great legal advisers after a protracted discussion with him of a very complicated and involved question: 'I seem to be able to contribute little to the clarifying of his vision; he anticipates everything I say and his conclusions are invariably accurate.'

"America has rarely if ever produced a greater father, a stronger and more chivalrous champion of the home than Theodore Roosevelt."

Bishop James E. Freeman, a friend for twenty-five years of the late ex-President, was the principal speaker at the exercises at Roosevelt House.

"The balanced optimism of Theodore Roosevelt," said the Bishop, "coupled with a clear vision and indomitable will, made him the outstanding and most compelling figure in our national life. He seemed literally to be the embodiment of those high purposes to which we as a people are committed. Clean in his own thinking, he abhorred that which was unwholesome. Clear in his vision of what was right, he could not abide that which was purposeless and questionable."

Roosevelt as a Leader.

After telling of his acquaintance with Roosevelt when he was Police Commissioner of New York City, the Bishop continued:

"Within his soul there burned the fires of a consuming passion for righteousness. The kindling influence of his high consecration stirred to action the dull and selfishly indifferent. Men felt in him the promptings of their better natures. He banished, even by his presence, that which was mean and unworthy. He stimulated emotions that were pure and noble, and courageously led the way in enterprises and undertakings of far-reaching importance. Where others hesitated or halted, he pushed on with indomitable will and a purpose that brooked no interference and triumphed over all obstacles. When others could not or would not see the end, with unclouded vision he saw it.

Mrs. John Henry Hammond presided at the exercises. A sonnet entitled "Roosevelt," written by Angela Morgan for the occasion was recited. Ruth Deyo, pianist, gave selections, among them being a prelude dedicated to Mrs. Henry White.

At the close a film called "Roosevelt, Great Scout," was shown with introductory remarks by Hermann Hagedorn. This film is to be screened in the public schools eventually. It depicts many colorful chapters in the kaleidoscopic career of Mr. Roosevelt, dealing principally with his life as a hunter in the West and in the jungles of Africa, and is designed to show his keen interest in the Boy Scout movement.

Plunkett Talks of Navy.

Rear Admiral Plunkett, who spoke at the Maritime Exchange, discussed battleship building, and said that compromises and changes made after designs had been accepted often prevented battleships from attaining a maximum of power.

"The navy desires to get the greatest amount of defensive power in every ship," he said. "I have seen very recently a letter written by a civilian in which he commented very severely to the effect that we did not know how to design our ships, otherwise it would not be necessary to ask Congress to construct new vessels. Any one connected with the preliminary work knows the tremendous difficulties which have to be encountered in order to get the greatest amount of displacement which is allowed.

"When science has contributed its share toward the construction of a modern battleship, and the design has been agreed upon, in nearly every case, in the course of construction several changes are made, thereby getting away from the original design agreed upon, and it is my belief that if we could only stick to the original design agreed upon in the construction of our battleships we would get much better battleships than we turn out when constantly making changes."

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—The navy kept "open ship" today to celebrate Navy Day and the birthday of Theodore Roosevelt.

In every harbor and at every naval establishment the public was invited to inspect the workings of the arm of sea defense. In addition, at various stations, patriotic ceremonies were held, high naval officers delivered addresses, naval airplanes flew over much of the country and every effort was put forth to give the people a more intimate knowledge of the spirit and purposes of this branch of the service.

The death of Secretary Wallace caused a curtailment of plans for celebration of the day in Washington, and elaborate ceremonies gave way to simple commemorative exercises at monuments of naval heroes. Wreaths were placed at the statue of Paul Jones and others of the early American Admirals.

Every war veterans' organization joined in a service in memory of Theodore Roosevelt.

PARIS, Oct. 27.—United States Navy Day was celebrated here in the Court of Honor at the Invalides, where Sheldon Whitehouse, Counselor of the American Embassy, representing Ambassador Herrick, placed a wreath on the bust of Admiral de Suffren, one of the French naval chieftains in the American war for independence.

TOKIO, Oct. 27 (Associated Press).—Observing American Navy Day, Jefferson Caffery, Counselor of the United States Embassy here, accompanied by Lieut. Commander H. R. Heim, acting naval attaché, and all other naval and military officers attached to the embassy, carried out a ceremony today before Yasukuni the principal military and naval shrine of the empire. The ceremony was attended by Captain T. Fujita, chief aide de camp of Admiral Takarabe, representing the Japanese navy at the ceremony.

ROME, Oct. 27.—In observance of Navy Day, Captain Kenneth Castleman, American Naval Attaché, today laid a wreath in behalf of the American Navy League on the memorial here to the Duke Ricardo Grasioli Lante della Revere, who served aboard the Marco Polo in the Lybian War and fell at the Battle of Homs after a most heroic fight. The ceremony was marked by the presence of leading Italian naval authorities and representatives of the municipality and the Grasioli family. Captain Castleman in a speech expressed the sincere friendship felt by the officers and men of the American Navy for those of Italy.

SAMOA, Oct. 27 (Associated Press).—Americans on the Isle of Samoa celebrated Navy Day with appropriate ceremonies. Native Samoans participated in the festivities, the schools held patriotic exercises and a field day of sports gave an American atmosphere to the celebration. Buildings were decorated and American flags were flying in profusion.

OSBORNE WOOD LOSES BIG SUMS IN GAMBLING

After Dropping $100,000 in Monte Carlo He Has Equally Bad Luck in Paris.

Copyright, 1924, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 27.—While stories are circulating concerning heavy gambling loses by Osborne Wood, son of General Leonard Wood, appear to have been exaggerated in telling—it has been stated that he had lost his entire fortune—it is generally understood that he has been the victim of a run of bad luck at the card tables for some time.

Mr. Wood told a friend recently that after losing about $100,000 at Monte Carlo he had lost almost a similar amount in Paris in clubs where he has been a well-known figure.

The club where Mr. Wood has most frequently been seen is the Circle Haussmann, which is noted for high play. Sums lost and won there are greater than anywhere else in Paris, probably greater than anywhere else in the world. During the last few years the amounts changing hands there have been steadily increasing. It is no uncommon thing to see banks of many millions of francs at the baccarat tables. The total amount of money changing and rechanging hands there within twenty-four hours is declared almost fabulous.

The sum of $100,000 lost by Osborne Wood, therefore, is nothing very unusual, especially when spread over several weeks or months, as in his case. Such runs of bad luck have been the fate of many players, but the friends of Mr. Wood stated that he was thoroughly disgusted and recently expressed his intention to leave Paris and return to America.

Cleveland Manager Plan Is Upheld.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—The city manager form of government of Cleveland, Ohio, was in effect approved today by the Supreme Court. The Court dismissed for want of jurisdiction the case brought by George D. Hile, a Cleveland taxpayer, who sought to have the form of government adopted by Cleveland in 1921 set aside, but lost in the Ohio courts. He contended that the submission to the voters of the manager plan was in violation of State laws as well as the Federal Constitution.

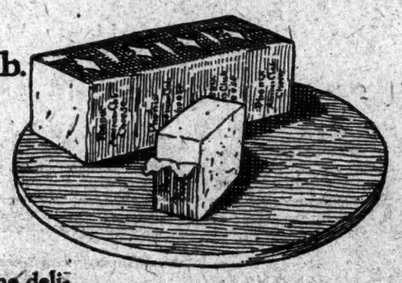
Richer, creamier loaf cheese
packed in a new way

ONCE—he cut your wedge of cheese from a huge cartwheel. Delicious sometimes. Fresh. Creamy. Then other times dry and oily, or crumbly with a strong raw taste. You never knew which it would be. And always the dingy rind—the waste and the inconvenient wedge-shaped piece.

5 lb.



THEN—for the finest tables, came a new kind of cheese—Phenix club cheese, of a delicious smooth creaminess, a flavor always the same. And instead of the huge cartwheel, attractive 5 lb. packages, rindless, wrapped fresh every day.

Into what delicious squares of goodness it sliced!

NOW ALSO—this same delicious cheese is being wrapped at the dairy in still smaller packages—one pound each. Now you can open yours fresh each day just as you do the finest print butter or pasteurized bottled milk.

It cuts into smaller squares—nice to serve with small crackers for special occasions, for after dinner or for sandwiches that must be particularly dainty.

You can get this as well as the larger size of Phenix Cheese in American, Swiss or Pimiento, at your grocer's today.

1 lb.

Republican Leaders say Defeat Coolidge and Elect Honest and Courageous Davis

Herbert Parsons

former Representative in Congress and former Chairman New York County Republican Committee

I am for Davis for three reasons:

First: His election offers the only possibility for our country to share in working out a plan of continued world peace. Nothing real in this direction will be achieved except through the League of Nations. Even a Republican should by this time appreciate this. We then can do nothing towards world peace until we join the League. Coolidge and La Follette, brothers in this, are against the League. Davis favors it.

All world peace talk by the Republicans, no matter by whom, is on a par, in value and sincerity, with that famous made-for-election pipe-dream, a new "association of nations," with which hopes for a better world were beguiled and deceived by the Republicans four years ago.

Isolation is a policy of reckless selfishness. And pious resolutions will not bring world peace. Thanking God that we are not like other nations, neither makes us love them, nor them us. We cannot expect something for nothing and if we are to do our part for world peace, we must actively cooperate and share in carrying the burden.

Second: Davis will bring us into the World Court. The Republicans will not. The proof of this is that they have not. The plan slumbers in the Republican-controlled Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate and under Republican success it will continue to slumber there.

President Coolidge seemed to be for it. His message to Congress last December made that impression on the public. But it contained expressions which, closely read, were designed to excuse inaction on his part and indicated that he was only rendering lip service to the cause and that nothing would happen, as is the case.

Third: My third reason is one which should appeal to every patriot, to every lover of popular government and to every believer in party responsibility.

No system of government can endure unless the people insist upon honesty in office. And the people can only insist upon honesty in office by turning out the party guilty of dishonesty.

Let the way of the party of the transgressors be hard.

Not in fifty years have we had such a scandal as the one connected with the Department of the Interior under Republican leadership, nor has any department been enveloped in such foul atmosphere as that which enshrouded the Department of Justice with its Republican merry men in the little green house on K Street. Similar in kind and quality is the party's conduct of the affairs of our disabled veterans. If a party is not to be turned out of power for such behavior, when is it to be punished for rascality?

It is no answer that its present candidate is honest. If the people want their government pure, they must punish that party under which it has just been impure.

Morever, big crooks are sure to be emulated by little crooks and the little crooks are still in. Are they to have four years more? Few die, none resign, none are removed. If the party's chief had a real desire to clean house he would have made changes in the Tariff Commission, so as to bring it back to the idea of an impartial and personally distributed body, every member of which was entitled to public confidence. But he has not.

To me, far more perilous to our institutions than La Follette's attack on the Supreme Court is the indifference of many people to the scandals under the Republican Administration. If, despite these scandals, the party is continued in power, then the public has only itself to blame if it is robbed of its national resources, justice is bought and sold and business men blackmailed by government officials.

(Signed) Herbert Parsons

Everett Colby

Member of Executive Committee of Three in charge of Hughes' Campaign for Presidency in 1916.

My dear Mr. Davis:

In considering the issues of the presidential campaign in which you are engaged, I have come to the following conclusions which I will state as briefly as possible:

First: I believe the Republican Party to be on the wrong side of a moral issue affecting the character and spirit of the American people. In my judgment, it was the duty of our government to enter the League of Nations, with reservations, and by so doing cooperate officially with the only international agency for maintaining the peace of the world.

Second: The Republican Party failed to keep its pledge of 1920.

At the request of the Republican National Committee and with the knowledge of the party's candidate for President, Mr. Hughes, Mr. Root and other prominent Republican leaders pledged the party unequivocally and specifically to the League of Nations with reservations. This promise has never been kept nor has any effort been made to keep it, in spite of their own public statement that "The Party was bound by every consideration of good faith to pursue such a course until the declared object is attained" . . . .

Third: The policy of the Republican Party is sordid, selfish and material.

There are those who think it strange that with such men as President Coolidge, Mr. Hughes and Senator Pepper of Pennsylvania at the head of the party it should have reached about the lowest possible level of political degradation; should be convicted of corruption in its grossest form, sneering at ideals, glorifying the material and suppressing the aspirations of those who hope for the day when our country will take a finer, truer and bolder position among the nations of the world. Why should this be? It is not difficult to find the answer. These distinguished men to whom I have referred are jealous of their own reputations for integrity and honesty, but feel no personal responsibility for the conduct of the party organization. They seem to care little what goes on so long as they don't know about it . . . . .

Mr. Hughes is another illustration of this type of leadership. In 1918, Senator Truman H. Newberry's election for United States Senator cost $250,000. He was indicted on a charge of corrupt practice, convicted and sentenced to a term of two years in prison, the conviction being set aside by the Supreme Court of the United States on technical grounds by a majority of one vote—four out of nine judges dissenting. The Democratic Senators and nine Republican Senators favored his expulsion. Senator Borah said the money expended for Mr. Newberry was "intended to and did corruptly affect the primary election in Michigan"; while the Senate of the United States passed a resolution declaring that: "The expenditure of such excessive sums of money in behalf of a candidate was contrary to sound public policy, harmful to the honor and dignity of the Senate and dangerous to the perpetuity of free government."

On November 20, 1922, Mr. Newberry resigned his seat rather than await the outcome of the vote on the question of his expulsion. In spite of all these facts and in spite of the fact that the question was not before him as Secretary of State, Mr. Hughes rushed to the defense of Mr. Newberry, to whom he was under no obligation, at a time when a primary campaign was on in Michigan, with burnished armor and flaming sword.

I do not for a moment question the virtue of these men, but their virtue is not the virtue of leadership. It is cold, negative and impassive, ingrowing and aloof. In fact, to such an extent do they carry this policy of moral isolation and indifference to the conduct of others that I verily believe that Secretary Fall and his little band of acquisitive associates could have stolen the Capitol, the White House and the Washington monument without a protest from these men unless the Constitution or some provision of a statute made them responsible for the crime . . . . .

Because of these facts I see no other course open but to repudiate Republican leadership and to vote the National Democratic Ticket . . . . .

I consider it a fortunate thing the Democratic Party has nominated a man of your ability and character. I am voting for you because I believe you to be a man; because I believe you will fight for what is right and not simply give lip service to it, and because I believe you will keep your word.

West Orange, N. J., Sept. 26, 1924. EVERETT COLBY

Democratic Achievements

Federal Reserve Act.

Federal Trade Commission Act, for the prevention of unfair practices in trade and especially for the correction of monopolistic abuses.

Clayton Anti-Trust Act.

Amendments to the acts establishing and extending the Parcel Post and Postal Savings Bank System.

Underwood-Simmons Tariff Act, repealing the exorbitant rates of the notorious Payne-Aldrich Act. This was the first tariff act in 25 years that was not dictated by selfish interests, and under it domestic and foreign trade expanded to a volume never paralleled before its enactment or since its repeal.

Tariff Commission Act, intended to take the tariff out of politics and enable legislation to be enacted on the subject on a scientific basis.

Income Tax Act, providing a system of graduated taxes upon incomes, based upon the ability to pay.

Inheritance Tax Act, levying an equitable tax on large bequests.

Enactment during the war of the Excess Profits Tax Act, taxing excess or exorbitant profits made out of the war, so as to help defray its expenses.

Farm Loan Act, enabling farmers to borrow money at low rates of interest through the issuance of farm loan bonds.

Smith-Lever Agricultural Extension Act, under which the aid and cooperation extended to the farming industry through the Department of Agriculture has been vastly enlarged.

Cotton Futures, Federal Warehouse and Uniform Grain Grading Acts.

Bureau of Farm Markets and Bureau of Farm Management Act.

Federal Aid Roads Act, through which federal aid and cooperation have been given in the construction of thousands of miles of permanent highways, literally "lifting the farmers out of the mud."

John W. Davis' Program

1. Make business better by:

a. Lower and fairer taxes.
b. Readjustment and lowering of freight rates to help both the shipper and the consumer.
c. Opening up foreign markets by insuring world peace.
d. Elimination of graft in Washington to restore public confidence.

2. End war.

Davis promises to eliminate "keyhole" and "tiptoe" diplomacy and at the meeting of all the great nations of the world next June Davis promises that, if elected, the United States will be there.

3. Help the farmer.

The Republican party promises another commission to investigate the condition of the farmer and recommend legislation. One commission has already been appointed and has already recommended legislation, but nothing has been done. It will take a new commission a year to report.

Davis promises specific action:

a. To adopt an international policy of direct official cooperation which will reestablish the farmer's export markets.
b. To adjust the tariff so that the farmer and all other classes can buy again in a competitive market.
c. To reduce taxation, both direct and indirect, and to lighten the burden of government by strict economy.
d. To readjust and lower freight rates, particularly on bulky agricultural products, which will make markets both for buyer and seller national and international instead of regional and local.
e. To establish an export marketing corporation or commissions in order that the exportable surplus may not fix the price of the whole crop and to stimulate by every government activity the progress of cooperative marketing.
f. To secure for the farmer credits suitable for his needs.

4. Protect labor.

Throughout his entire career Davis has been the friend and champion of labor. He believes in "the right of labor to an adequate wage earned under healthful conditions, the right to organize in order to obtain it, and the right to bargain, for it collectively through agents or representatives of its own choosing. These rights . . . must not be impaired either by injunction or by any other device."

Republican Failures

In the three and one-half years following the second Wilson Administration there were two periods of financial depression. There is unemployment today in the industrial districts of New England; the steel mills of the Pittsburgh district have fewer unfilled orders than in years, and failures have increased at an alarming rate.

In eight years of Wilson there were few failures.

In 1921—there were 404 bank failures.

In 1922—there were 277 bank failures.

In 1923—there were 540 bank failures.

During the first six months of 1924 there have been almost three times as many bank failures as during the last three years of Wilson's second administration.

In fifteen states 600,000 farmers have been ruined since 1921, and the number that have mortgaged their farms or are in the hands of Shylocks are beyond estimate.

Today the banks are full of money—idle money, and there is so much lack of confidence that expansion of old enterprises or developments of new ones is not possible.

The National Committee is badly in need of funds to complete its campaign, and the time is so short that we appeal to every one who reads this advertisement to send a contribution to State Director of Finance, Wm. Church Osborn, or to James W. Gerard, Treasurer, Hotel Belmont, New York. Please do not wait to be personally solicited. Go out of your way to support your party now when it needs you.

STAGE PAYS HONOR TO CARDINAL HAYES

His Eminence Is Luncheon Guest of the Catholic Actors' Guild.

WILL ROGERS IS A SPEAKER

Comedian Tells 1,500 Guests That He Was the Original "Hayes-for-Cardinal" Man.

Cardinal Hayes was the guest of honor yesterday at the Hotel Astor at a luncheon given by the Catholic Actors' Guild of America. Covers were laid for 1,500 persons, and these included stars of the stage, theatrical and motion picture producers, men and women prominent in the literary world and their friends. Among the clergymen at the speakers' table were the Rev. Dr. J. H. Randolph Ray, rector of the "Little Church Around the Corner," chaplain of the Episcopal Actors' Guild, and the Rev. Dr. Joseph Silverman, rabbi emeritus of Temple Emanu-El, chaplain of the Jewish Actors' Guild. The Cardinal was welcomed by Wilton H. Lackaye, who said:

"It is a very small thing for His Eminence to receive this token in the form of our luncheon because we are only one little group in his great archdiocese, but it is a great thing in our lives to be honored by his presence here.

"The Cardinal has some advantages we do not. He is not hampered by the temper of 'the leading lady.' He is the leading man in Catholicity in America. And what a tribute of our country and to the democracy of our Church, for he was born and reared in humble surroundings, right here in this city, and yet he has risen to be a Prince of the Church.

Rise to Greet Cardinal.

The assemblage arose when Cardinal Hayes was presented.

"My fellow members of the Catholic Actors' Guild, I was taken somewhat unawares," he said. "I did not know I was 'coming on' so soon. I was waiting for Mr. Cobb and Mr. Rogers, and especially Mr. Rogers. I was afraid he would get after me as he did once before and I didn't have any opportunity of coming back. I am in the same position today. I get spiritual food from Mr. Lackaye, and something else from Mr. Rogers.

"Mr. Cobb said here a year ago that there was a great difference between being a Non-Catholic and being an Anti-Catholic," continued the Cardinal. "I don't know, my dear friends, anything more American than that. It is just something like a man like Mr. Cobb would say. I have often quoted that since, and I think it is something that ought to be quoted from the mountain tops.

"Well I am forgetting that I am a shepherd. You have touched most profoundly my heart today. I have received many expressions of good-will and congratulations since the Holy Father so favored me last Spring. But many of them have been formal.

"Here today I feel that you have come not for formality but with a heart warm toward one who has tried to be your friend. With my more exalted position now I can serve more faithfully. You can always command me. You can always count on the Cardinal Archbishop of New York, who is most deeply concerned for your temporal and spiritual welfare."

Daniel Frohman said he felt it was a great honor for him to be invited to speak. "I have known the Cardinal for many years as an intensely human man," said Mr. Frohman. "I do not known from my 'ex-cathedra position' why he wears scarlet robes, because on the stage that means something quite different. But I presume because the higher his position the more he has to fight against the sin in the world. If there were no sin in the world His Eminence and I would have no job."

First Hayes-for-Cardinal Man.

Will Rogers declared he had been the original "Hayes-for-Cardinal man."

"I knew you would make good—I knew all the time you had it in you," said Rogers. "Since I spoke here last year he has got a better job," continued Rogers. "He has got a better job, but he is just the same fellow.

"I was afraid that after my association with the Prince of Wales it might impair my standing with the Irish Catholics.

"The Prince of Wales even went down and had luncheon with Mr. Coolidge. I asked the Prince what on earth he and 'Cal' talked about. Why, that would be just like me spending an afternoon with the Pope. In fact, I believe His Holiness and I would get along better, because all Catholic priests seem to have a sense of humor. Can you imagine the Prince of Wales trying to tell Mr. Coolidge a joke? We can't even tell him an American joke.

"Do you remember that here a year ago I was the only one who said 'Our future Cardinal'? Not a one of you said it. I had faith in him. I knew he would get somewhere. To show you the importance of your Church—the news was printed in even the Hollywood newspapers. It was the first story of a spiritual nature they had ever printed.

"I read every line, and it was most interesting to me to learn how it took three days to learn how to wear a red hat. Everybody in Hollywood was reading the news of our two new American Cardinals. Everybody was saying: 'They must be wonderful men.' And I want to tell you, friends, that one of the proudest moments of my life was to say that I had been laughed at by our New York Cardinal."

Irvin Cobb in his attack on the Klan said:

"My father, a Confederate veteran, who was not a Catholic, was one of the organizers of the original Ku Klux Klan. The organizers were a group of patriotic, disfranchised Americans, who at a time when freed slaves were hanging about their masters' necks, worked to restore a white man's supremacy to a white man's country. When that purpose was accomplished they took off their hoods and disbanded. And I am sure that my father today is turning in his grave if he knows that the name has been stolen to propagate religious intolerance and bigotry."

TWO LOSE JEWELS IN PARIS.

Fanny Ward and Beatrice Bishop Report Robberies.

Copyright, 1924, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 27.—Montmartre parties are becoming notoriously expensive for Americans. Apart from the cost of champagne and oysters, there must be counted on the bill a subsequent loss of jewels, which now is becoming almost a habit. To the list of these sufferers Mrs. Jack Dean—Miss Fanny Ward, cinema actress—is the latest to add her name.

Last night Mrs. Dean attended a party in the bright light district, returning to her hotel about the time the milkmen and street sweepers get busy. Some time later she discovered that she had lost a diamond pendant worth 50,000 francs and a pin ornament worth another 5,000. This afternoon she asked the police to try to recover her jewels for her.

PARIS, Oct. 27.—Beatrice Bishop, daughter of Courtland F. Bishop of New York, reported to the police of the Place Vendôme quarter today the loss of a necklace containing ninety-one pearls and valued at 30,000 francs.

Miss Bishop said she left the necklace in a drawer in her room in a hotel and that it disappeared during her absence from the room.

Ch'Ien Lung Screen

Very Rare Antique

DURING the Reign of Ch'Ien Lung, 1736 to 1795, Chinese Art reached its pinnacle, and one of the rare specimens of the period has reached Vantine's. It is a ten-paneled, finely carved Teakwood screen. Each panel has two brilliantly hued paintings on glass, suggesting the early European influence, and a center decoration of birds and flowers in mother of pearl and semi-precious stones. Chinese writing on the back of the screen congratulates the owner on his sixtieth birthday and expounds the Chinese philosophy of life. The screen is priced at $500. Other hand-carved screens, modern and antique, as low as $75.

Hats Off Again to Cadillac

This is but a friendly curtsey to the Cadillac Company.

Again we take off our hats to that bunch.

They delivered ten more cars in the old home town of Detroit during September than did Jordan.

Again readjusting the hats it is interesting to note that more Jordans were delivered in Wayne County —and that's Detroit—during September than any line of cars selling at or above the average price of the Jordan—with the exception of the Cadillac.

They beat Jordan ten cars.

This accomplishment on the part of Cadillac is worthy of note in view of the fact that The Great Jordan Line Eight sells at an average price of $1000 below any car in its class.

It is quite generally conceded —even in Cleveland—that Detroit is the center of the automobile industry.

Certainly there are more people in Wayne County who know an automobile when they see one, than in any other county in the world.

The enthusiastic acceptance of The Great Jordan Line Eight in Detroit is reflected in the percentage of sales of leading cars in that territory for September 1924 against September of a year ago.

Jordan's increase for September this year was 530 percent.

It was the only car selling at or above its average price that showed an increase.

Detroit's endorsement of The Great Jordan Line Eight is prophetic.

It simply means that what Detroit recognized instantly will be accepted by every other city in the country eventually.

[P. S.—Chicago is not slow to get an idea. In six days—last week—forty-nine Jordans were sold in Chicago—and more Jordans were registered in Cook county during September than ANY line selling at or above the Jordan price—with Jordan the only car in its price class to show an increase in September over August.]

PLAYWRIGHT SUED BY MRS. BARRYMORE

"Michael Strange" Charges Woman Defamed Her by Action, Alleging Plagiarism.

PLAY ABOUT POE INVOLVED

Wife of Actor Declares That Commercial Value of Her Play Has Been Destroyed.

Michael Strange, playwright, who is the wife of John Barrymore, commenced suit here yesterday against Sophie Trendwell, also a playwright, for $200,000 damages, alleging defamation and also that Miss Treadwell has destroyed the commercial value of the Strange play, "The Dark Crown."

According to announcement from the office of Arthur Hopkins, under whose direction Mr. Barrymore appears, the suit is backed up by the actor, who has just returned from Florida. It represents the counter attack of the Barrymores against Miss Treadwell, who sued out a writ of replevin some two weeks ago to compel Mr. Barrymore to return her play "Poe." The ground for her suit, as set forth by Miss Treadwell, was that Barrymore had read the play, praised it, accepted it, agreed to act in it, decided not to and failed in three years to return the manuscript. Meanwhile, Miss Treadwell alleged, Mrs. Barrymore had written a Poe play, "The Dark Crown," which Barrymore wanted to do, but to the substitution of which Miss Treadwell refused to consent on the ground that it was an imitation of her own.

Miss Treadwell said last evening when she learned that the suit had been brought, that though no papers had yet been served on her, or, so far as she knew, on her lawyers, Sackett, Chapman, Brown & Cross of 154 Nassau Street, she would welcome the joining of the issue in court.

Compared the Two Plays

In a statement issued from the Hopkins offices Miss Strange's lawyer was quoted as saying:

"I have compared both plays in question, and I find that there is not the slightest foundation for the cruel, reckless and wanton charges of plagiarism made by Miss Treadwell. All the episodes in Michael Strange's play are traceable to biographies of Poe, or are entirely original. There is not the slightest similarity between the two plays in plot, scene, dialogue, situation, episode, stage business or characterization, except that both plays are dramatizations of the life of Edgar Allan Poe."

The statement added:

"Mr. Barrymore said last night that he could think of no reason for Miss Treadwell's action other than that, disappointed in her failure to secure a production for her play, she had set out upon a course of self-advertising, reckless of the consequences of her false accusation."

PARIS WAR BLIND HOME IS DEDICATED BY FOCH

'Lighthouse No. 3' Is the Gift of American Women Headed by Mrs. W. H. Mather.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 27.—In a particularly moving ceremony, Marshal Foch today unveiled the tablet dedicating "Lighthouse No. 3," a home founded through the generosity of American women for the French war blind.

The ceremony took place in the presence of the founder of the work, Mrs. Winifred Holt Mather, members of the French and American committees and the blind inmates of the home. At the close of the dedication a handsome cup was presented to Mrs. Mather by Commander Sallaren, representing the hundreds of blind soldiers whose lives have been brightened by her interest and untiring efforts.

Lighthouse No. 3, known in France as the "Phare de France," is a duplicate of Lighthouses No. 1 and No. 2 founded in New York City and Buffalo in 1915, where blinded men received special instructions in the arts and trades still possible in spite of their terrible handicap.

The tablet unveiled today reads: "To the memory of the men of the Allies who died under arms and to the service of the blind."

PARIS, Oct. 27.—A French journalist, M. Tranin, is about to attempt to cross the African Continent from the Atlantic to the Indian Ocean by automobile. He intends to start from Conakry, cross the Sudan, British Nigeria, the Tchad District, Italian Erythria and Ethiopia.

M. Tranin will use cars of an ordinary type, but possessing special adaptable engines, in which any kind of oil, both mineral and vegetable found locally can be used as fuel.

Other members of the expedition will be M. Gustave Duverne, Dr. Horle M. Valloton, M. Varney and Deputy Lausanne. M. Tranin spent several weeks last year in the Sahara, training for the trip. He is entrusted with missions for the French Government and the Egyptian Royal Geographical Society. The distance to be covered is about 9,000 miles.

ROBBED MEN AMUSE CROWD.

Antics of Hold-Up Victims in Store Taken by Pedestrians for a Joke.

Scores of persons who passed the Newark Shoe Store at 3,976 Third Avenue yesterday morning noticed two men inside motioning frantically. One of the men wrote a message, which he displayed. It read: "Get a cop." The pedestrians thought the proceeding a great joke, smiled and walked on. Finally a passer discovered the men were in earnest and called two policemen, who found that the occupants of the store were prisoners and released them.

It developed that two armed men had entered the store at 8:55 A. M. and held up George Levine of 542 East Twelfth Street, the assistant manager, and Murray Freeman of, 88 Graham Avenue, Brooklyn, a clerk, taking $300 from the safe and, on leaving, locking the store door from the outside.

Six Nations Case is Set.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—The jurisdiction of New York State over the Six Nations Indians will be determined by the Supreme Court in a land case brought by Walter S. Kennedy and others, which today was set for hearing Jan. 5. The Federal District Court sustained the State Courts in taking jurisdiction, but the Federal Government contends that from Colonial days no such State jurisdiction over the Six Nations Indians has been recognized.

FILM the worst enemy to teeth
You can feel it with your tongue

Maybe Your Teeth are gloriously clear —simply clouded with a film coat

Find out by making this unique test. Thousands who go through life wishing for beautiful teeth already have them . . . yet never reveal them—or know they have them!

THOUSANDS of people unconsciously handicap themselves in domestic and social life with cloudy teeth—absolutely without reason.

Scientists now prove that most people have pretty, clear teeth. And that dingy, dull teeth simply indicate a condition that can easily be corrected.

You may be one of those people. Have really charming teeth and yet not know it.

Now a test is being offered which will enable you to find out. The coupon brings it without charge. So it is folly not to make it.

It's simply a film—a stubborn film that you can easily remove Run your tongue across your teeth. You will feel a film. A film that absorbs discolorations and hides the natural color and luster of your teeth.

Old-time dentifrices failed in successfully combating that film. That is why, regardless of all the care you take now, your teeth remain "off color," dingy looking, unattractive.

Remove it, and you, like millions before you, will be surprised to find that your own teeth are as pretty as anyone's.

What it is—how it invites tooth troubles and decay

Modern dental practice urges the constant fighting of that film. Urges it on grounds of beauty and, more importantly, on health. For it it charged with most tooth troubles of today.

It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. It holds food substance which ferments and causes acid. In contact with teeth, this acid fosters decay.

Germs by the millions breed in it and multiply. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

So that same film that hides your pretty teeth is too the great enemy of healthy, sound teeth—an ever-present danger in your mouth.

You must remove it three times daily. It is ever forming, ever present. Soap and chalk preparations are inadequate. Harsh, gritty substances are dangerous to enamel.

New methods that supplant old

Now modern science has discovered new and radically different methods. A dentifrice called Pepsodent—different in formula, action and effect from any you have ever known.

Its action is to curdle that film. Then harmlessly to remove it. No harsh grit, no soap, no chalk—a new way that is changing the tooth cleansing habits of the world.

Make this test

To millions this new way has proved the folly of having ugly teeth. The folly of inviting tooth troubles and the poor health that results.

It will give you the lustrous teeth you want—quickly.

Results will surprise you. Mail the coupon now. Why follow old methods when world's leading dental authority urges a better way?

BOXER DROPS DEAD IN RING AT ARMORY

Thomas, Middleweight, Succumbs in Second Round of Yonkers Bout With Ycochea.

WAS STRUCK UNDER HEART

Passed Physical Tests Before Contest—Opponent, Referee and Others Called for Autopsy Today.

Ralph Thomas, middleweight boxer of the Bronx, died last night during the second round of a scheduled six-round preliminary bout against Alberto Ycochea, South American middleweight, at the New State Armory, Yonkers, where the Military Police, Twenty-seventh Division, Special Troop, conducted its first indoor show of the season. Thomas collapsed suddenly in the second round, pitching forward on his face without any blow being struck for the few seconds immediately preceding his collapse. He was counted out by Referee Barney Williams and, when he failed to show indications of reviving after being counted out, and then failed to respond to the restorative methods customarily employed by handlers of boxers in boxing matches, the stricken boxer was carried to the medical headquarters of the armory. An ambulance was summoned in the meantime from St. John's Hospital, and a medical examination disclosed that Thomas had expired as he collapsed.

The collapse of the boxer came suddenly and quite unexpectedly. He had progressed through the first round with Ycochea without showing any indications of weakening under the blows of his rival. In the second session the spirited action was resumed and in one exchange Ycochea landed a hard left under the heart. This was the last blow of the battle. After it had been delivered both boxers danced away from each other, sparring in the meantime as is customary in such fistic situations, but before either boxer could start another blow Thomas pitched forward.

The law legalizing boxing in this State provides against permitting boxers who are not physically fit to enter the ring. A section of the law, dealing with physicians and their duties, reads:

Examination Is Required.

"Within eight hours of entering the ring each contestant must be given a thorough medical examination by a physician who has been licensed to practice not less than three years previously. He shall certify to the Director of Bouts in writing over his signature that the contestants are in good physical condition to engage in such contest. And said physician shall be in attendance during the contest, prepared to deal with any emergency which may arise."

At the armory following the fatality it was announced that Thomas, who substituted for Johnny Sheppard, a Connecticut boxer, had been subjected to the customary physical examination in the afternoon by Dr. George C. Enright.

The fatality recalled similar happenings of the ring, which, while not frequent occurrences, are, nevertheless, not uncommon. The most recent case of a ring fatality in which a prominent boxer was the victim was that of Frankie Jerome, who expired in a local hospital after being removed from Madison Square Garden. Andy Thomas, an east side boxer, was another lad of prominence in local pugilism whose death after a bout is recalled by the fatality at Yonkers last night. Police records show that in such fatalities death invariably is determined to be accidental by a Coroner's inquest and police investigation.

Autopsy Set for Today.

An autopsy to determine the cause of Thomas's death will be held this morning. Following the bout, Police Captain Edward Quirk of the First Precinct, Yonkers, ordered that everybody connected with the bout be taken into custody pending an investigation.

The men held by the police were: Ycochea, held on a technical charge of homicide; Tommy Furey, handler of Thomas in the absence of Jerry Siniscalchi, the dead boxer's manager; Fred Newbergers, Referee Williams, Timekeeper Billy (Doc) Morris and Judges Henry Moscowitz and Edward Oxman. They were detained for questioning by Coroner Edward Fitzgerald, but were released early this morning with instructions to return for the autopsy today.

It was announced from the ring that Thomas weighed 156 pounds and Ycochea 158 pounds. Thomas, according to Furey, had been boxing for several years and had established himself as a boxer capable of withstanding the blows of a rival. Originally from Maryland, he has been residing in the Bronx. When not following the career of a boxer, Thomas was employed as a plumber with a firm in New Rochelle.

FORREST RETURNS TO TIGER ELEVEN

Husky Centre Dons Princeton Uniform Again After Lay-Off of Two Weeks.

Specialto The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 27.—The reappearance of Forrest in uniform after a two weeks' layoff enlivened Princeton football practice today, as it was feared for a time that he would not be able to play again this season. The husky centre is not yet in shape for hard football, but it is expected that he will be ready in time for the Harvard game. The pace set by Bartell and McMillan in his absence will make it hard for him to recover his regular position, and he may be shifted to guard or tackle, as he has had experience at both.

The work today was the lightest of the Fall, with eight regulars excused from donning football togs and the others merely jogging through a few plays. Roper opened the afternoon with a blackboard talk, outlining the glaring faults shown on Saturday and explaining the new plays which the coaches are developing for Harvard. The men then walked through the new plays and skeleton teams practiced forward passing.

In spite of the defeat at the hands of the Rockne outfit the clouds of gloom which usually hang over a football camp after a defeat were conspicuous by their absence. The Tigers have taken the reverse as an incentive to drive them harder for the Harvard and Yale battles, which offer them an opportunity of redeeming themselves.

The improvement in the work of Beattie and Gates at the tackles greatly heartened the Princeton coaches as they had been regarded as the weak spot in the array, but against Notre Dame played good football.

COLUMBIA SQUAD DRILLS.

Teams A and B Hold Forty-Minute Dummy Scrimmage.

Columbia had completed its football practice at Baker Field yesterday before the team had learned of the illness of its coach. Only a light workout was held, the regulars going through calisthenics and a signal drill. The assistant coaches also called on the kickers for a short drill, and then brought the regulars together for a lecture on the fundamentals of the game.

Teams A and B went through a dummy scrimmage session which lasted forty minutes. The line coaches, visibly pleased over the showing made against Williams, gave the men some additional instruction and then sent them to the showers. All the players have recovered from the slight injuries they suffered in the game with Williams and the squad yesterday was in excellent condition.

Baseball Gains Conan Doyle As a Champion in England

Copyright, 1924, by The New York Times Co.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—Baseball in England has found a champion at last. He is Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. The creator of Sherlock Holmes agrees that "continual ragging" is a defect from the British viewpoint, but urges that it is not an essential part of the game.

"What is essential," he writes to The London Times, "is that here is a splendid game which calls for fine eye, activity, bodily fitness and judgment in the highest degree. This game needs no expensive leveling of the field, as the outfit is within the reach of any village club. It takes only two or three hours in playing, it is independent of wet wickets and the player is on his toes all the time and not sitting on a pavilion bench while another man makes his century. If it were taken up by our different association teams as a Summer pastime I believe it would sweep this country as it has done America. At the same time it would not more interfere with cricket than lawn tennis has done."

M'TIGUE THREATENS SUIT FOR $250,000

Says He Will Take Court Action Against Commission If Denied License Here.

Mike McTigue, world's light heavyweight champion, yesterday threatened to institute court proceedings against the State Athletic Commission to compel the boxing governing board to show cause why he should not be granted a license. The title holder announced he already has discussed the situation with his lawyer, Alex Tendler, and plans to take positive action on his case within a few days.

McTigue said he will leave this city this afternoon for Providence, where he is scheduled to box Frankie Carpenter, Freeport, L. I., light heavyweight, tomorrow night. Immediately after this contest, the champion said, he will return to this city and seek a license from the commission. In the event that the license is denied, McTigue said he will instruct his lawyer to start court proceedings against the commission immediately.

According to his statement yesterday, McTigue also intends to sue the commission for $250,000 in the event that he is denied a license when he makes application. The champion said this sum would represent the amount of financial injury he would suffer if he is denied the privilege of boxing here and in States with which the Empire State board has working agreements, and in other localities where boxers licensed here would not want to jeopardize their New York standing by engaging in bouts against him.

McTigue said he will base his proposed court action on the disposition made of his case at the last meeting of the State Athletic Commission. The board then recommended to the license committee that McTigue be denied a license here for the period of one year. Chairman George E. Brower explained in announcing the commission's decision that the action was taken because McTigue declined to defend his title in a bout against Gene Tunney, recognized as foremost challenger for the championship. This challenge blocked plans for a bout between McTigue and Paul Berlenbach of Astoria, which was scheduled for Nov. 11 at Madison Square Garden.

Maintaining that Tunney was entitled to preference with regard to the championship, the commission at first ordered the McTigue-Berlenbach bout cancelled, but later consented to permit the match if the principals would agree to enter an agreement whereby the winner consented to defend the title against Tunney within sixty days after the Nov. 14 bout. McTigue declared this arrangement satisfactory to him and was prepared to post $10,000 to bind the agreement.

Billy Gibson, manager of Tunney, however, announced that Berlenbach declined to enter such an agreement. The McTigue-Berlenbach match then was prohibited by the commission and Tunney's challenge was forwarded to the champion. It was this challenge that Chairman Brower said McTigue did not recognize or acknowledge.

W. VA. WESLEYAN STAR OUT.

Dietrich Broke Leg in Navy Game, X-Ray Discloses.

BUCKHANNON, W. Va., Oct. 27.—An X-ray picture today disclosed that Halfback Martin Dietrich of the West Virginia Wesleyan football team suffered a broken leg during the Navy game Saturday, and he will be out of the line-up for the remainder of the season. Dietrich was injured after a 30-yard run, which paved the way for Wesleyan's touchdown and victory over the Middies.

QUANTICO MARINES BEATEN BY SAILORS

Extra Point Following 90-Yard Run by Leak on a Fumble Wins for Fleet Eleven, 7-6.

LOSERS FIRST TO SCORE

But Miss Many Chances to Tally After First Period — Secretary Wilbur Sees Game at Stadium.

A fleet young fullback of the name of Leak, playing for the Scouting Fleet eleven, made Navy Day worth celebrating at the Yankee Stadium yesterday when he picked up a fumble and dashed 90 yards to a touchdown in the second quarter. That score came just as the Quantico marines seemed on the verge of scoring their second touchdown of the game; and when Rooney kicked a goal from placement for the extra point he sent the sailors sailing into a 7—0 lead, and there they stayed until the end.

Officials had evidently planned to celebrate Navy Day with a huge spectacle. Secretary of the Navy Wilbur journeyed up from Washington to see the service battle, Admiral Plunkett and Major Gen. James G. Harbord, who commanded the marines at Belleau Wood, were present with several other dignitaries. Outside of the great stadium, hawkers were trying to sell pennants and the usual souvenirs, and inside, the boxes were draped with the national colors and a band played martial airs, but the 40,000 persons expected dwindled to 4,000 before the game got under way. Where numbers were lacking, however, enthusiasm ran high and the group of gobs banked on one side of the gridiron yelled continually as their team stopped the marine attack and turned it back time and again.

The marines completely outplayed the sailors in every department of the game except punting, and that weakness cost them dearly. Johnny McMains, the Quantico captain and quarterback, received the first kickoff and raced to his 35-yard line before he was stopped. Then the marines punted to navy's 10-yard line, and when Payne attempted to return the kick, Stock, the marines' right end, broke through, blocked it and fell on the ball for the first touchdown of the game. Golder, the navy right tackle, knocked down the attempt to add an extra point, but everything pointed to a huge score, with the marines on the long end at that time.

A short time later Lucke, the Marines' right end, blocked another Navy kick and recovered the ball on the Sailors' 30-yard line. A long forward pass, McMains to Stock, a consistent groundgainer throughout the day, carried the Marine advance to the Navy's 10-yard line and then two line plunges took the ball to the 2-yard mark. The Marines were charging forward and the Navy line crumbled before them, Payne and McMains were battering their way through guard or slipping off tackle for easy gains of 3 and 4 yards, and another touchdown seemed inevitable. But fate stepped in and turned the tide.

With third down and only 2 yards to go for a touchdown, Goodall fumbled. The ball bounded out from the mass of players and two figures, a Marine and a sailor, sped for it, neck and neck. Leak got there first, but he was not satisfied to fall on it and make it safe; instead he scooped up the bounding ball at a dead run, and with a clear field ahead raced on and on, outdistancing his pursuers, who gave up the chase after a few white chalk marks had slipped by, and crossed the Marine line. The sailors in the grandstand shouted with glee, and when Rooney added the extra point and gave the Navy the lead they went wild with joy.

After that the Marines had opportunity after opportunity presented to them, but they were unable to take advantage of any of them. Their weakness in kicking forced them to try passes instead of punting on fourth downs and thereby they gave many precious yards to the sailors. The Scouting Fleet, however, never again was able to get within striking distance of the Marines' goal, and it was apparent before the first half closed that the result of the game would depend on whether or not the Marines would be able to tally again.

Twice the Marines penetrated deep enough into the Navy zone to attempt field goals, but Payne's attempts fell far short. On a few other occasions, when McMains and Payne were making great gains on running plays, the former suddenly shifted to the overhead attack and the advance was suddenly ended.

Just before the final whistle, with the ball on Navy's 30-yard line and third down, McMains ordered another attempt at a field goal, but the ball was far to the side and again Payne missed.

NAVY ELEVEN LOSES 4 VARSITY PLAYERS

Shapley, Flippen, Lentz and Osborn Ruled Ineligible Because of Scholastic Standing.

4 SUBSTITUTES ALSO HIT

Query, Hubert-Jones, Maloney and Horner Out—Men May Return on Nov. 22.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 27.—A body blow was dealt to Naval Academy football today when it was announced that because of deficiencies in scholastic work in certain branches four of the most valuable varsity players would not be allowed to participate in matches for the present, in addition to four first-team substitutes. The ban will continue until Nov. 22, at least, when another scholastic month ends. The restriction will then be lifted on any player who has brought his average up to the requirements.

The players who are ineligible to play for the present are: Alan Shapley, star quarterback, around whom most of the Navy's attack is built; Royce Flippen, the most experienced backfield player except Shapley; Gus Lentz, 220-pound guard, and Wenzel Osborn, who has been playing a fine game at centre.

The four substitutes are Query, Hubert-Jones and Maloney, backfield men, and Horner, a lineman.

It is stated that the deficiency is small in each of the four varsity cases, and that there is a probability of the players raising it to the required point by the end of the scholastic month. All the players, however, will be lost for the Penn State game, to be played here next Saturday, and the Vermont and Bucknell games to follow. They will be permitted to engage in a limited portion of the practice, and, if fortunate, may be restored to their positions on the squad by Nov. 22, just one week before the Army game.

Folwell today used Hamilton and Banks in the backfield in a practice session and Caldwell and Wellings filled the other two positions. It is not certain, however, that this alignment will be permanent.

HARVARD TO PREPARE FOR PRINCETON GAME

Varsity Not to Drill Hard This Week for Boston University Contest Saturday.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 27.—While Harvard's first-string football players had a day off today, the Crimson's scrubs began their week with a long session on the freshman field. This week's game with Boston University, which has been beaten by both Brown and the Army, is one for which the Crimson will make no special preparations. The main work of the week for the varsity will be in preparation for the Princeton game on Nov. 8.

It probably will be several days before the team as a whole will be driven hard. Still, the line is so inexperienced that against Boston University the coaches plan to use their strongest front to start and then use a complete set of substitutes. The lighter and faster backfield players also will most likely do most of the playing against Boston, making it possible for backs like Gehrke and Hammond to rest thoroughly and then start again next week at top speed for Princeton.

Miller, it was found, had a bad knee and a bad ankle, as the result of his hard play against Dartmouth, but the injuries of the other players are not serious.

During the week there will be drills on plays, and particularly on the working out of the assignments for the interferers going through with or ahead of the men carrying the ball. The interference against Dartmouth was a very great disappointment, and lack of help hurt Harvard's chances.

William and Mary College has asked Harvard for an opportunity to play here on Oct. 11 next year the date on the Crimson list filled this year by Boston University. Harvard may accept the suggestion, it was said today. The Crimson may also have either Notre Dame, West Point or Penn State as an opponent if Darthmouth should decide that it would prefer to play Princeton next Fall.

BROWN IN LIGHT DRILL.

Starts Work for Game Saturday With Dartmouth—Linemen Rest.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 27.—Brown's football team today started preparations for the game at Hanover next Saturday with Dartmouth with a light workout for the few men who reported for practice. Most of the linemen, who suffered some hard punishment in the Yale game, were not required to report today.

Youth in Track Suit Banished As a Football Scout at Penn

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 27.—A suspicious looking lad in a track suit, believed to be a football scout, was put off Franklin Field this afternoon while Penn was preparing for the Lafayette game. Assistant Manager Frazier of the Red and Blue team spied him running up and down the cinder track and occasionally stopping just long enough to take a look at the varsity squad working out. As no track athletes are allowed on the field at present, the "scout" was told to get out and he left with his track togs still on.

LOVEJOY AND BENCH OUT OF YALE LINE-UP

But Captain and Back, Hurt in Brown Game, Are Expected to Play Saturday.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW Haven, Conn., Oct. 27.—Slight muscle bruises which were received by Captain Lovejoy and Quarterback Bench in Saturday's game against Brown developed today and kept both from the dummy football and signal drill which made up today's practice. Both players will be handled lightly all the week. Trainer George Connors promised tonight to have both of them ready for West Point Saturday and possibly to allow both to take part in the final preparatory scrimmage Wednesday afternoon.

For the goose-stepping of this afternoon Burt replaced Lovejoy and Bunnel ran both the first and the second teams. Root, who was slightly injured on Saturday, was put at right tackle on the second team, his rival, Butterworth, replacing him on the first. Both are having a neck and neck tussle for the honor of starting the Harvard and Princeton games on the right wing.

The return of Failing, who has been ill with bronchitis, added the best distance punter to the squad. Failing was in uniform for the first time and followed the signal drill. Wortham replaced Eckart at right guard and may be used to open Yale's defensive campaign against the Army. The Brown eleven repeatedly breezed through Eckart's position Saturday and Yale coach, Myron Fuller, will give each a trial for the flank role.

Under an X-ray examination Scott's right arm, which was badly bruised Saturday, was shown today to be only injured temporary. Scott will rejoin the team this week and may possibly get into the West Point game.

An impromptu varsity, composed largely of third string players, battled the scrubs, who won when Alexander lifted a field goal from the twenty-yard mark. Clayton and Al Lindley, the crew stroke, scrub halfbacks, reeled off thirty-yard gains against the temporary regulars.

DARTMOUTH REGULARS IDLE

Oberlander and Whitaker Among Those With Minor Injuries.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 27.—Although the Harvard game was unusually hard fought, the Dartmouth team emerged in better condition than it did from the Yale game the previous week. The regulars did not escape injury entirely, however, as nine of them have minor bruises and sprains. Leavitt and Smith are the only two in perfect condition. Oberlander and Whitaker, each have a Charlie horse, but Trainer Harry Hillman says that they will have recovered fully by Saturday.

When Dartmouth meets Brown Saturday, Coach Hawley will feel better in the matter of substitutes. Two of the most significant performances were those of Sage and Holleran. Sage went in at left end when Fully was injured and put up a strong defensive game. While it was Holleran who replaced Goldstein at left tackle and intercepted the forward pass that resulted in Dartmouth's touchdown.

Hawley continued his precautions against overtraining today when he declared a holiday for the men who played last Saturday. It will not be surprising if the regulars are kept out of scrimmages until Saturday.

RUTGERS ELEVEN RESTS.

Varsity Squad Will Start Work Today for F. and M. Game.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 27.—Head Coach Wallace gave his Rutgers varsity eleven an afternoon off today while he pushed his second and third elevens in a hard scrimmage. None of the regulars was hurt playing Lehigh, and Trainer Besas said all would return to togs tomorrow. Rutgers will face Franklin and Marshall this week and Coach Wallace hopes to be able to send in a line-up of reserves soon after the start and save his regulars for the meeting with Lafayette a week hence.

FORDHAM CAPTAIN IS LOST TO ELEVEN

Smead Will Be Out for Remainder of Season as Result of Injury in Holy Cross Game.

DRIVE FOR N. Y. U. STARTS

Gargan to Centre Attention on Aerial Attack In Practice Sessions This Week.

Captain Raymond Smead of the Fordham football team will be out of football for the rest of the season, due to injuries sustained in the Holy Cross game last Saturday. Smead fractured a bone in the knee of his left leg during one of the scrimmages with the Purple. This will be a big loss to the strength of the Maroon line, although Obester, who finished the game in Smead's place, played remarkably well. The rest of the team came out of the struggle in good condition. Manning, Brennan and Slane, who were kept on the sidelines as result of injuries, will be ready for the N. Y. U. game this Saturday.

Coach Frank Gargan began preparations yesterday for the New York University contest. The practice consisted in a light workout, but today and for the rest of the week the team will be put through intensive drills. Gargan intends to spend much time on the overhead attack in this week's workouts. Rather than discouraged after last Saturday's defeat, the team is full of confidence and enthusiasm. The game showed the strength of the Maroon defense and Gargan from now on, will devote most of his time to the attack.

Although the Fordham defense held off the attack of the strong Holy Cross backs for three periods and the greater part of the last, the Maroon ability as ground gainers was impeded more than the Purple. This was due to the superior forward passing attack of the Worcester Collegians. On the attack for the Maroon, Woerner was the only one who made much headway through the Holy Cross defense. Woerner's playing during he scrimmages last week earned for him a regular position in the Fordham backfield. Should he continue to play the same way he will probably stay at that position for the remainder of the season.

OSHINS MAY BE SHIFTED.

C. C. N. Y. Star End May Replace Injured Donstein in Backfield.

The loss of Sam Donstein, the clever C. C. N. Y. back who suffered a broken leg in the game against Rhode Island on Saturday, is being keenly felt by the Lavendar coaches, who are endeavoring to fill the gap left by the absence of Donstein for the remainder of the season. Coach Parker plans to try out Lou Oshins to replace Donstein, and he also has one or two other likely candidates for the position.

The City College eleven had a light workout yesterday, but only a few of the regulars were in uniform. Several of the linemen and backfield regulars are suffering from minor injuries and will be allowed to rest up for a day or two. If Oshins is shifted to the backfield to replace Donstein, Coach Parker will be faced with the problem of finding a capable end to take Oshins's place on one of the wings. Oshins has starred this year on the line, though he was a back last year and the year before. He was shifted to the line this Fall at a time when Coach Parker had an abundance of backs and few linemen. Now the C. C. N. Y. mentor lacks both extra linemen and backs.

Donstein's loss is the second serious setback suffered by the Lavender eleven this year, Captain Phildus having sustained a shoulder fracture in the first game of the season.

LEHIGH ABANDONS REST.

Usual Monday Holiday Displaced by Hard Workout.

Special to The New York Times.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Oct. 27.—The usual Monday holiday following a hard game was again abandoned at Lehigh this afternoon when Coach Baldwin brought out his charges and started hard work for the Muhlenberg game here on Saturday.

At least two of the three regulars who did not get into the Rutgers game are expected to be available for Muhlenberg. They are Lewis, guard, and Dietrich, centre. There is little likelihood that Yeager, the 237-pound tackle, will be ready before the Holy Cross game. Yeager is out with an injured knee and in spite of the drastic treatment applied is responding slowly. Every player emerged from the Rutgers' game without serious injuries.

Sonny Smith to Box Lee.

A six-round bout between Sonny Smith, Brooklyn bantamweight, and Danny Lee of Harlem will be the feature attraction Saturday night at the Ridgewood Grove Sporting Club, Brooklyn. In four other six-round bouts the principals will be Harry Wallach vs. Otto Goldberg, Paul Guliotta vs. Jack Worman, Julio Fernandes vs. Sid Burt and Andy Hajack vs. Ernie Klein.

trying an almost impossible task—to put Morningside back on the football map. Where other men had failed, Haughton succeeded. His team of Saturday—his last team—was at last a real football machine. Columbia had not yet arrived but it was on the way, when Haughton died.

Columbia's Plans Uncertain.

What effect the tragedy will have on Columbia football during the remainder of the season was not known last night. The University Committee on Athletics and the Football Committee held a hurried meeting at the Columbia Club, but it was said they probably would not reach a decision until today or tomorrow.

Mrs. Haughton, who was at her home in Boston, was notified by telegraph, and she is expected in this morning. Until her arrival no plans will be made for the funeral. Also upon her decision will rest the question whether Columbia will play any of the four remaining games on the schedule. If Mrs. Haughton advises that the campaign go on as before, Columbia will accede to her wishes, although there would still be a possibility that next Saturday's contest with Cornell would be canceled out of respect.

Haughton, who was in his forty-ninth year, was in his usual excellent health on Sunday. He played thirty-six holes of golf with Maxwell Stevenson, head of the Columbia Rowing Committee, at the Meadow Brook Polo Club and stayed there over night. Returning to the city this morning he went up to Baker Field, the Columbia athletic stadium at Broadway and 218th Street, before the afternoon practice was scheduled to begin.

To Dr. Withington and other coaches in the training house he complained that he had not slept well the night before and felt as if a band was pressing across his heart and chest. Dr. Withington, thinking it was digestive trouble, gave the head coach two soda tablets, but Haughton was unable to swallow them.

Nevertheless, he began to dress for the practice, but before he was finished his condition became worse, and Dr. Withington and Charley Crowley, another coach and close friend of Haughton, prevailed on him to give up the idea of directing the workout.

After asking Withington to take charge of the squad, Haughton said to his former pupil at Harvard: "Paul, you congratulate the team for me. Tell them I am proud of them." That was his last message to the squad.

Withington, after arranging a mattress on a table, made Haughton lie down while he went to look after the team. Returning shortly afterward he found Haughton worse, his stomach giving him more trouble than before. It was then that P. D. consented to go to the hospital. No alarm was felt for him and it was considered only a precaution to remove him to St. Luke's for the night and possibly the next day. When he reached the hospital he was suffering such great pain that he was rolled to his room in a wheel chair, but his color was good and he was not considered critically ill.

Haughton's successor, for this season at least, undoubtedly will be Dr. Withington, his first assistant, also a Harvard graduate and star football player. Withington's appointment probably will be made known today. It was Haughton's second year at Columbia.

The squad at Baker Field was still in the dressing room when Coach Crowley, who had got the news over the phone, announced the death of the head coach, who had been in the same room not two hours before. The players were stricken by the tragedy.

General William Barclay Parsons, Chairman of the Board of Trustees of Columbia University, said of the late coach:

"The death of Percy Haughton means a great loss to Columbia University and to the world of sports. His success with the Columbia team was due not only to his knowledge of the science of the game of football and his ability to impart that knowledge to others but to his personal character, which was an inspiration to all who came in contact with him. A true gentleman and fine sportsman."

News of Mr. Haughton's death came as such a complete shock to those gathered at the Columbia Club for dinner that for a time many were inclined to disbelieve it. Most of those present had seen him so recently and apparently in perfect health that they could not at first accept the fact of his death. The weekly meeting of the Football Advisory Committee is held each Monday night and this brought practically every man closely allied with football at Columbia to the club. No one, however, was prepared to say what official action would be taken, or what effect the coach's death would be likely to have on the team.

Charles Halstead Mapes, Chairman of the University Committee on Athletics, expressed the feelings of all those present when he said that it was too sudden and tragic to be believed. He was not prepared to say what the probable action in regard to the remainder of the schedule would be, Frank Fackenthal, Robert Wyatt and Reynolds Benson, the graduate manager of athletics, were equally at a loss to know what action would be taken. All of them felt too keenly the loss of an intimate friend to so soon concern themselves with what they looked on as a matter of secondary importance.

Was an Active Man.

Coach Haughton was always active. Like many great coaches he was also a famous athlete, his prowess becoming known while he was at Groton School, where he captained the football team and played baseball. Entering Harvard in 1895 with the class of 1899 he played tackle on the freshman team that Fall, and substitute tackle on the varsity the next year. In his junior year he was regular varsity tackle, and his senior year saw him changed to fullback on account of his fine punting. In the Yale game of 1898 his kicks averaged 60 yards, one of them traveling from the Harvard 20-yard line to the Yale 4-yard line, and leading to a touchdown. Harvard winning the game 17 to 0.

Throughout his college days Haughton played baseball as well as football and captained the nine his last year. His baseball playing is sometimes forgotten through his much longer and more important connection with football. For that matter there are probably many who never knew that he won the racquet championship of the United States. His contemporaries at college recall the ease and grace with which he handled himself in all sports, his athletic facility indicating that he would probably have excelled in any game he seriously devoted himself to.

The year of his graduation from Harvard, 1899, Haughton began his career as a football coach, at Cornell. He remained at Ithaca for two seasons, producing teams that beat Princeton 5 to 0 and 12 to 0. This accomplishment, of course, brought much praise and led to his later appointment at Harvard, but at this period his name was not yet the byword for success that it became later.

In 1903 the Harvard football authorities, looking about for some one to pull Harvard football out of the depths of six successive defeats by Yale, selected Haughton as head coach at Cambridge. At that time victories seemed out of Harvard's reach for some reason. Various cures had been tried in vain. It was not quite the older evil of "Back Bay influence," but there was a lack of the spirit needed to win the big games. Haughton, who, by the way, might properly be called a Back Bay man himself, for he belonged to many clubs in college and was at home in Boston society proceeded to inaugurate his famous system, which was removed as far as possible from any policy of favoritism or indulgence of any sort. It is a severe thing and makes of football a stern test of a man's character. He ruled his squad with military rigor. The men had to play for him as if their very lives depended on it. He didn't fool them about what they were in for. When he came to Columbia he announced:

"If Columbia is to stay on the football map discipline must prevail. I am a strict disciplinarian and my football squad is going to be like an army—strict discipline and obedience on the part of every man."

His methods brought results at Harvard. His first team beat Yale 4 to 0. The next lost 6 to 0. Then came two tie games. In 1912 Harvard won 20 to 9, then by 15 to 5, then 6 to 0, and in 1915 Harvard gained its most crushing victory over Yale, 41 to 0. In the eight years of his direction at Cambridge the Crimson won sixty-four games, tied five and lost four.

In 1916 Haughton, representing a syndicate of Boston bankers, bought the Boston National League Baseball club, and for about two years was a baseball magnate, though always keeping in touch with Harvard football. In 1918 he was made a Major in the Chemical Corps. Since the armistice and before he came to Columbia he had been interested in a Boston trust company.

Mr. Haughton was born on Staten Island and was the son of the late Malcolm Greene and Mary Nesbit Haughton. On May 15, 1911, he married Mrs. Richard Lewis Howell of New York, a grandniece of James McNeill Whistler, the artist. Besides his widow, a daughter, a sister and a brother survive.

Dr. Butler Grieved.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 27.—"The news of Percy Haughton's death comes to me so unexpectedly that I am bereft of words," said Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, here tonight when informed of the passing of the famous coach. "All I can say now is that I am so shocked that mere words cannot express my feelings," Dr. Butler declared.

Dr. Butler left tonight for New York. He said he would issue a formal statement upon his arrival there.

Fisher Eulogizes Haughton.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 27.—Head Coach Robert T. Fisher of the Harvard football team, a protégé of Percy Haughton's, in speaking of his death tonight said:

"It is hard to believe that Percy Haughton is dead. He was so eternally active and his spirit so dominant. It seems impossible to believe that he is not still with us. Harvard football is Haughton football.

"He assumed charge at Cambridge when the sport was at its lowest ebb and by his wonderful organizing ability, his commanding personality and his fine understanding of human nature, he brought Harvard teams national recognition. His death deprives Harvard football of one of its staunchest and best friends."

Harvard football practice will be suspended the day of the funeral, arrangements for which have yet to be made.

Walter Camp Shocked.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 27.—Walter Camp, Yale's athletic head for thirty years, said of Coach Haughton's death: "The news is one of the greatest shocks I could receive. Percy Haughton has been a commanding figure in football for so many years that it seems impossible to think of him as no longer with us. The work he did in building up football at Cambridge was remarkable and will remain a living memory in Harvard hearts and throughout the football world."

John T. Blossom, director of Yale athletics, said:

"Yale always admired Haughton. We knew him as pre-eminently the man who brought out the new game. He was a pioneer in developing it and its expansion is due to him as fully, if not more so, than to any other man."

Tad Jones, Yale head coach, said: "Intercollegiate sport in America has lost an outstanding figure. I had admired him both as a coach and a man."

Princeton's Friendly Enemy.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 27.—The news of the sudden death of Percy Haughton caused dismay and genuine sorrow among Princeton football men, who readily esteemed him as one of the dearest of their ancient friendly enemies. In the absence of Head Coach Roper, who was out of town, Mel Dickenson expressed the general sentiment when he said:

"Percy Haughton was a splendid gentleman, whose unfailing sportsmanship endeared him to Princeton men. He constantly worked to bind Princeton and Harvard closer together, and the news of his passing brings sorrow to all who knew him."

Deep Regret at Cornell.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 27.—News of the sudden death of Percy D. Haughton was received with regret among Cornell athletic leaders, who have had profound admiration for Haughton ever since he directed the Cornell teams in 1899 and 1900.

"I am shocked and grieved to hear of it," said Graduate Manager Berry Gilmour Doble, Cornell's famous football coach, gave out this statement:

"It was with great regret that I heard of the sudden and untimely death of Percy D. Haughton. Mr. Haughton has long been one of the most prominent characters in the football world. With his death Columbia loses a great and successful coach."

LUCKY PLAY FIRST IN THE OLD HICKORY

Beats Feysun by Three Lengths in Feature Handicap at the Empire City Course.

McATEE SCORES A DOUBLE

Wins on Harry Payne Whitney's Noah in the Capitol and Miss Whisk in Final Event.

Running in front from the rail of the flag August Belmont's fleet but erratic three-year-old colt Lucky Play, by Fair Play-Lucky Catch, yesterday afternoon easily carried off the money in the race for the Old Hickory Handicap at the Empire City race course, running the mile and seventy yards in the fast time of 1:42 4-5 under top weight of 120 pounds. Clarence Kummer had the mount, and Lucky Play, which was a 5-to-1 shot, earned $1,210 for his owner.

Harry Payne Whitney's Noah won his second consecutive victory at the meeting by coming home in front of six others in the Capitol Handicap, a dash of six furlongs for the juveniles. He carried top weight of 120 pounds and covered the course of about six furlongs in 1:09 2-5. The bay son of Peter Pan was ridden by McAtee and was held at 10 to 3.

Ideal weather brought out another large crowd to the course on the hilltop. Two favorites rewarded their followers. McAtee rode two winners. In addition to piloting Noah he brought Miss Whisk home in the final number, it being the second winner saddled by Hopkins for Mr. Whitney. The track was lightning fast and records were closely approached in two races.

Clarence Kummer took no chances on Lucky Play in the Old Hickory Handicap and went out to win with the rise of the barrier. Feysun beat him away from the post, but Lucky Play was able to take the rail on the paddock turn and he steadily increased his lead in the race down the backstretch, at one time having four lengths on Feysun. Lucky Play had a world of speed, going to the quarter in 0:24, to the half in 0:47 3-5, the three-quarters in 1:12 3-5, the mile in 1:36 2-5 and the full distance in 1:42 4-5, which is only one-fifth of a second slower than the track record for the distance established by J. E. Widener's Shuffle Along at the July meeting last year.

Is Never Threatened.

Lucky Play carried top weight of 120 pounds, conceding all the way from four to twenty-eight pounds to his opponents. He was never seriously threatened and at the end was three lengths in front of Feysun. The latter had four lengths on vMarshall Field's five-year-old Modo. The latter came from far back and took the short end from Rigel. Feysun and Rigel were equal choices at 7 to 2, the winner opening at 4 to 1 and going to 5 to 1 at post time.

Noah came right back after his winning effort last Friday to carry off the Capitol Handicap. As in his last race he was out in front all the way and at the start it looked as though he was going to make a runaway race of it. He was away well from No. 4 post position and McAtee hustled him right to the front. Noat opened a five-length lead on Joe Marrone III. down the backstretch, but toward the end his weight began to slow him down and the R. L. Gerry Pair of canuts and Emissary were racing him down when he went under the wire a neck in front of the former, which led Emissary by two lengths.

R. T. Wilson Jr. had in Campfire Tales and Faddist, declaring to win with the latter. The son of Campfire and Sally N., however, was not a serious contender after they had gone half a mile. Joe Marrone III. was nearest the leader in the early part of the race, weakening under his 119 pounds.

Miss Whisk Home First.

Miss Whisk, three-year-old filly by Whisk Broom II.—Wonder, ran a very fast race to win the Harlem Purse for H. P. Whitney. She covered the course of about six furlongs in 1:08 flat, which is only one-fifth of a second slower than the track record established by the Everwyck Stable's Old Koenig in 1918. McAtee took the filly out into the lead at the start and held her there, although she was doing her best at the end to beat H. M. Howard's H. T. Waters by a length and a half. Avisack took the short end. The winner was a 4-to-1 shot, Avisack being the favorite at 7 to 2. The quarter was run in 0:22 1-5 and the half in 0:46 2-5, Miss Whisk carrying 104 pounds.

NATIONAL SYSTEM OF CLUBS PLANNED

New York to Have One of Ten Proposed Chapters—Stoddard and Coy in Movement.

An application of the college fraternity idea to club life is the plan that is now in process of formation in ten of the larger cities in America and Canada, according to an announcement made public at a luncheon at the Hotel Biltmore yesterday. The ten chapters which the present scheme of organization calls for will be known as the National Town and Country Club, and the cities in which it is planned to organize chapters are New York, Detroit, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Boston, Chicago, St. Louis, Minneapolis and Montreal. Membership in one chapter will include the privileges of all.

Work upon the organization of the New York chapter has been under way since Spring. It was stated yesterday that enough members have been enrolled to warrant the sponsors of the idea to go ahead with plans for a clubhouse to be located in the Murray Hill section and which, it was stated, may reach a cost of $5,000,000. It is expected that actual building operations will be started within the next eighteen months and that a year thereafter will see the clubhouse opened. It is also planned to build country club additions, here and elsewhere.

Among those interested in the local project are Louis E. Stoddard, President of the American Polo Association, who is Chairman of the New York chapter; Edward H. (Ted) Coy, Vice Chairman; Seth Low, Treasurer, and L. H. Paul Chapin, Secretary. On the Executive Committee, in addition to Messrs. Stoddard, Coy and Low, are Oswald Kirkby, Thomas A. Davis, Artemus L. Gates and Grantland Rice. Serving with them as members of the Board of Managers are Rex Beach, Julian Curtiss, William H. (Big Bill) Edwards, James Montgomery Flagg, Rollin J. Furbeck, Charles C. Hommann, Leavitt J. Hunt, Frank Gair Macomber Jr., R. J. Marony, Dan Paulson, J. Carlisle Post, Charles Allen Reed, Charles H. Sabin, Fred Stone, Jerome D. Travers and Vincent Richards.

Rutgers Favors Co-ed Rooters; To Have 500 at Lehigh Game

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 27.—Rutgers takes an opposite view from the Cornell football management over the desirability of cheering sections of co-eds with their high-pitched cheering and singing. It was announced today that for the first time in local football history students from the New Jersey College for Women, a part of the State University here, will have a separate section at the Lafayette game here Nov. 8. Five hundred girls will occupy the south stands and, directed by their own cheer and song leaders, will alternate in rooting for the Scarlet eleven with the Rutgers men in the west stands.

MY PLAY IS LAST IN FIELD OF THREE

Concedes 21 Pounds to Ten Minutes and 17 to Valador, the Victor, at Laurel.

TIRES FURLONG FROM HOME

Favorite Is Well Up Most of Way, but Impost Proves Too Much Over Mile-and-Quarter Route.

Special to The New York Times.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 27.—The Lexington Stable's five-year-old My Play, which ran seventh in the third international special at Latonia, was decisively defeated this afternoon in the Woodlea Handicap for three-year-olds and upward over the course of a mile and a quarter, finishing in back of W. Martin's four-year-old colt Valador and the Glen Riddle Farm's four-year-old colt Ten Minutes, the only other starters.

My Play was unable to pick up 126 pounds and concede twenty-one pounds to Ten Minutes and seventeen to Valador, and while he ran close to Valador for the greater part of the journey, he tired a furlong from home and finished six lengths in back of Ten Minutes. The race was run in 2:05 1-5 over a fast track.

Breuning sent Valador into the lead with the rise of the barrier and rated him well. The son of Short Grass and Cheer held on well in the stretch drive to come home a length and a quarter ahead of Ten Minutes. The latter was outrun in the early stages and while he gained on the leader toward the end he was not good enough to get up. My Play was the strong favorite at a little better than even money, while Valador was third choice, paying $7.30 for a $2 ticket.

The summaries:

FIRST RACE—For two-year-olds; maidens; allowances; purse $1,300; six furlongs. Sweeping Away, 118 pounds (Schuttinger), $4.20, $2.80, $2.10, first; Gun Boat, 116 (Walls), $2.20, $2.10, second; Prince of Power, 118 (Parke), $2.30, third. Time—1:14. Sennacherib, Manifold, Starbright, Storm Cloud and Tall Grass also ran.

SECOND RACE—For four-year-olds and upward; steeplechase; claiming; purse $2,000; about two miles. Lollipop, 141 pounds (Smoot), $14.40, $5.40, $3.40, first; Jim Coffroth, 141 (Pierce), $6.60, $2.50, second; Trail, 138 (Cheney), $3.50, third. Time—2:58 4-5. Connibert, Gimme and Crest Hill also ran.

COLLEGE TRAINER DIES.

C. H. Huggins Had Been at Brown University for 23 Years.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 27.—Major Charles H. Huggins, more familiarly known to students and followers of Brown University sports for the past generation as Charlie Huggins, died of pneumonia at the Rhode Island Hospital shortly before 2 o'clock this morning. Death was the result of a cold contracted while in Chicago as a trainer with the Brown football team a fortnight ago.

Charlie Huggins came to Brown as trainer of the football team in 1901. He acted as coach at baseball at various times and was also successful in developing noted swimming stars. He was commissioned First Lieutenant in the Sanitary Corps of the United States National Army July 9, 1918, and made assistant to the Flight Surgeon of Aviation at Mineola, L. I. He was made a Major in June, 1923.

Stagg Says Grange's Strength Lies in Ability to Think Fast

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—While the football fan in the grandstand thinks that "Red" Grange is merely outrunning his opponents for the long string of touchdowns which have made the Illinois player famous, Coach A. A. Stagg of the University of Chicago believes otherwise. Stagg said today that Grange's "judgment of the situation" impressed him in an early season game last year. "I knew then that here was a most remarkable football player," the 62-year-old dean of the "Big Ten" said. Grange is not tearing along at breakneck speed all the time. He changes his pace to suit the conditions. When he has to outrun somebody he is able to do so. He always has something left for that big effort and invariably he knows when it is time to make that big effort. That judgment, that knowledge of just what to do and just when to do it, is, in my opinion, Grange's greatest asset.

WEIGHTS NAMED FOR HUNTS CHASE

Impost of 156 Pounds Allotted to Guingamp for Temple Gwathmey Memorial.

Weights were announced yesterday for the Temple Gwathmey Memorial Steeplechase, which will be the big feature of the first day of the Fall meeting of the United Hunts Racing Association at Belmont Park on next Saturday afternoon, Nov. 1. The race is for four-year-olds and upward, $2,500 added, the distance being about two and a half miles.

The weights follow:

Abydos	130	Griffwood	136
Byng	156	Guingamp	156
Bethany	140	Houyninhnm	138
Belvoir	135	Pirate Gold	141
Daniel Boone	134	St. Lawrence	137
Elmer Johnson	146	Surf	139
Fredden Rock	130	Saint Savin	146
Grenadier	148	Trayeen Trisough	135
Gravity II.	143	Woodley II.	135

President John McE. Bowman expects that the two-day meeting, which will be concluded on Election Day, will be the best in the history of the organization. The first half of the Double Event will divide interest on the opening day with the Gwathmey Memorial. A special car will be run from Laurel, bringing the horses which are eligible for the two events. Both races have filled well and should result in fine competition.

On election day the second half of the Double Event and the Cherry Malotte Steeplechase will be headliners, although some of the best two-year-olds in training are carded to start in the Blemton Stakes of $2,500. This stake closed with 148 nominations.

In the Double Event all of the crack amateur riders of the country are expected to have mounts.

ST. JEAN WINS TWO GAMES.

Beats Concannon, 100-96 and 100-86 in Pocket Billiard League.

Andrew St. Jean, representing Minneapolis, Minn., defeated Joseph Concannon, representing Brooklyn, in both the afternoon and evening games on the opening of the National Championship Pocket Billiard League at the Recreation Academy in Brooklyn yesterday. Both games were very close, St. Jean winning the first at 100 to 96 in thirty innings and the night game at 100 to 86 in twenty innings. St. Jean's high run was 26 in the afternoon and 27 in the evening, while Concannon made a run of 19 in the afternoon and one of 30 in the evening.

ARMY REGULARS ACTIVE.

Varsity Players Return to Squad for Light Workout.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 27.—Having been practically idle since the Notre Dame contest, Army's varsity men resumed practice today in preparation for the contest with Yale in the bowl at New Haven next Saturday. The reservists who vanquished Boston University on Saturday were also in their accustomed places on the half hour's light gridiron work which followed the usual Monday's chalk talk in the gym.

Saturday's game with the Bostonians gave the coaches a chance to see what some of the second string men could do under fire. The work of Scheiffler and Trapnell, the Army backs, was pleasing. The former, a short, stocky player, who runs very low and has plenty of speed, was especially hard to stop.

Football Spectator Near Death.

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—Injuries suffered when knocked down and trampled by football players when an end run swept him to the side line from which he was watching the game may result in the death of William Malone, 68. His right shoulder was broken and he suffered internal injuries.

Rain Postpones Seattle Game.

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 27.—A heavy shower just before the second game of the series was about to be played here between St. Paul and Seattle for the Class AA baseball championship caused postponement today.

OTHER BILLIARD RESULTS.

Erich Hagenlacher, 18.2 balkline champion of Germany, made a high run of 171 in his afternoon exhibition game with Jack Savage at the Fourteenth Street Academy yesterday. He scored 300 points to his opponent's 24 in seven innings. In the evening he ran 200 points in three turns at the table and made a high run of 110, against Philip Meise, whose total was 20.

William Adams, playing against Henry Frantzen in the handicap three-cushion tournament at Doyle's Academy last night, made a high run of 30 in defeating his opponent by the score of 50 to 24. In addition to making this exceptionally fine run, Adams gave a consistently strong exhibition, getting his 50 caroms in thirty-five innings for an average of almost 1. His second best run was 4. Frantzen's high run was 4.

Morgan Hughes, George La Rue and Joseph Cosgrove were the winners of the three games played in the Greater New York three-cushion championship at the Hoppe Academy last night. Hughes defeated William McAllister by the score of 35 to 20 in fifty-three innings, making a high run of 6. McAllister's high run was 3. La Rue came through the winner over Albert Moyse at 35 to 30 in seventy innings, making a high run of 4. Cosgrove defeated Manny Latzer by the same score in fifty-two innings, Latzer made the high run of the game, 4.

Jack Savage divided two games on the opening of the amateur handicap straight rail tournament at the Fourteenth Street Academy yesterday. In the opening game in the afternoon he lost to Harold Grano, 150 to 84, in fifty-three innings. Grano made a high run of 18, four better than Savage's best run. In the evening Savage defeated Phillip Meise, 200 to 186, in forty-five innings. His high run was 34, while Meise's was 30.

Herbert Hammer of Sheepshead Bay and Joseph Honesh, also of Brooklyn, began a special 685-point match at Lawler Brothers' Academy in New York last night, the former played 18.2 balkline and the latter played straight rail billiards. Hammer was the winner of the block, 300 to 157, in forty innings. His high run was 77. Honesh made a high run of 30. The second and third blocks will be played tonight and tomorrow evening.

At the Recreation Academy in Brooklyn last night James Clemens was the winner over D. F. Kortman, 125 to 120, in the Brooklyn straight rail championship. The game lasted sixty innings. Clemens made a high run of 18, while Kortman's best run was 15.

55 HORSES ON SALE AT EMPIRE TODAY

Butler Lot of 22 Thoroughbreds in Training Among Those to Be Offered.

The closing sale of the season of thoroughbreds in training and one of the most important of the year will be held this noon at the Empire City race course. MARANVILLE GOES TO CUBS IN TRADE

Chicago Also Acquires First Baseman Grimm and Southpaw Cooper From Pittsburgh.

PIRATES OBTAIN ALDRIDGE

Also Infielder Grantham and First Baseman Niehaus—No Money Involved in Deal.

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—The Chicago National League Club today acquired Walter Maranville, second baseman; Charley Grimm, first baseman, and Wilbur Cooper, left-hand pitcher, all of the Pittsburgh Pirates, in exchange for Vic Aldridge, right-hand pitcher, George Grantham, second basemen, and Albert Niehaus, first baseman, the latter recently purchased by the Cubs from Chattanooga. No money was involved in the deal.

The trade is the biggest of the Winter season and, according to President William Veeck of the Cubs, one of the largest ever put through in the National League.

Aldridge had been a member of the Cubs for three years, coming from the Los Angeles Pacific Coast League Club. Previous to that time he was obtained by the Cubs from the Indianapolis Club of the American Association.

Charley Grimm is rated as one of the best first basemen in the National League. During the past season, his unofficial batting average for 151 games was .289.

Maranville has been in the National League since 1912, being purchased by Boston that year from New Bedford. He was one of the stars on the Braves when they won the pennant and world series in 1914. He came to the Pirates in a trade at the close of the 1920 season.

George Grantham came to the Cubs two years ago from the Omaha Western League Club, and was field captain during 1923.

Niehaus was one of the leading first basemen of the Southern Association and was to have reported to the Cubs next Spring. He is a righthand hitter.

In Cooper, the Cubs have obtained one of the best lefthand pitchers in baseball. Cooper last season was one of four pitchers credited with winning more than twenty games, Vance and Grimes of the Robins and Carl Mays of the Reds being the others.

Pirates Seek Hitting Strength.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 27.—More hitting strength to carry the Pirates through tight places in late season pennant drives was the chief consideration of the Pittsburgh Pirates in trading Walter (Rabbit) Maranville, Charles Grimm and Wilbur Cooper for Vic Aldridge, George Grantham and Albert Niehaus of the Chicago Cubs. Sam Dreyfuss, treasurer of the club, announced tonight.

"For four years now we have been in the pennant race right up to the last ditch," said Mr. Dreyfuss, "and each year we have failed to pull through in a pinch. Lack of hitting power, it seems, has been the chief cause of our failure, and it was to overcome this weakness that we have made the changes just announced."

Mr. Dreyfuss said that Eddie Moore, Atlanta infielder who joined the Pirates last season, would replace Maranville at second base, while Grantham, a heavy hitter, would appear in the right field. Near the end of the last season Moore played in right field, having been kept in the line-up on account of his hitting ability. Niehaus will take care of the initial bag with Barnes, a rookie, in reserve.

While the announcement of the passing of Grimm caused little surprise in baseball circles here, the trading of Maranville and Cooper was unexpected. Maranville, switched from shortstop to second base, had what many experts considered the best year of his career, while Cooper also went well, winning 20 of the 33 games he pitched. Grimm starred in fielding, but his hitting was weak.

No money was involved in the trade, Mr. Dreyfuss said. He also declared emphatically that there was no connection between this deal and the recent baseball scandal and the demand of Barney Dreyfuss, owner of the Pittsburgh Club, for a thorough sifting of the affair.

Mr. Dreyfuss said that no other important shake-ups in the Pirate camp were under consideration, but said there probably would be one or two additional minor changes in the team personnel before the opening of the season.

N. Y. U. HAS LIGHT DRILL.

Thorp Begins Preparations for Fordham Game Saturday.

Coach Tom Thorp followed his usual Monday practice schedule yesterday afternoon and sent the New York University football squad through a light practice session. This afternoon the team will buckle down to hard work, for this coming Saturday the Violet eleven faces its first real test of the season in the meeting of Fordham University at the Yankee Stadium. The winning of the game this coming week-end will do much to raise the morale of the team for the coming games of the season and Thorp will work the team at top speed.

The marked improvement shown against the Trinity aggregation was very pleasing to the followers of the Violet, and although a large score was not run up, the absence of fumbling the ball and penalties for off side and holding was the fruit of one week's intensive training. The entire squad came out of the Trinity game without a scratch and it is hoped that Captain Treacey will be in condition for the game at the Stadium.

Yesterday's practice consisted in running back punts and coaching the backs in broken field running. The squad was divided into three teams and they ran through signal practice and tried out several new formations to be used against Fordham. The new lights on the field enable the teams to work about an hour longer each day.

The freshman team, after its victory over the Irving School last Saturday had an easy day of practice yesterday afternoon.

MALONE READY FOR BOUT.

St. Paul Boxer and Walker End Hard Training for Title Match.

Jock Malone, St. Paul middleweight, completed his hard training yesterday at Newark for his twelve-round bout against Mickey Walker, world's welterweight champion, to be held tomorrow night by the National Sportsmen's Club at the 113th Infantry Regiment Armory. Malone had a session at the gymnasium apparatus, shadow-boxing and three rounds of sparring against Jack Rappaport constituted the final drill for the St. Paul veteran.

For a short time during the training period Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, who reached Newark yesterday to fulfill a vaudeville engagement, visited Malone. Walker also concluded his hard training yesterday and at the end of his workout expressed satisfaction with his condition and confidence in his ability to defeat Malone. The boxers plan to engage in only light exercise today as the finishing touches to their preparation for the impending battle. Walker was quoted yesterday a favorite in the betting on the bout, at odds of 8 to 5.

Spalla Challenges Dempsey; Will Accept Champion's Terms

ROME, Oct. 27 (Associated Press).—"My supreme ambition is to fight Jack Dempsey," said Erminio Spalla, the European heavyweight champion, today. Spalla yesterday knocked out Depaus, the Belgian champion, in a bout in Naples. "I have sent Dempsey a challenge through the European Boxing Federation," Spalla added, "and I am putting myself at his disposal for a bout for the world's championship. I am ready to fight him at any time, in any country and under whatever conditions he chooses to impose. I intend to go to the United States next Spring, but if Dempsey wishes to fight me before that time I will go across the ocean whenever he likes." Spalla will spend a month in Italy training. Afterward he will go to Egypt, Jerusalem and Constantinople, fighting any one who desires to give him battle.

YALE AND HARVARD SCORE

Former Beats Fraternity Clubs, 6 to 1, and Crimson Wins From New York A. C. by 5 to 2.

STANDING OF THE CLUBS.

	W.	L.		W.	L.
Yale	1	0	Fraternity	0	1
Harvard	1	0	N. Y. A. C.	0	1
Princeton	1	0	Casino	0	1
Columbia	1	0	Short Hills	0	1
Crescent	1	0	Whitehall	0	1
Gramercy	1	0	Montclair	0	1

The metropolitan squash tennis season began yesterday on the courts of six local clubs with the starting of play in the metropolitan Class C interclub championship. The Yale, Harvard, Princeton and Columbia University clubs and the Crescent A. C. of Brooklyn and the Gramercy Park Club were at home to the six other clubs in the league, and in each instance the visiting combination was defeated.

Yale defeated the Fraternity clubs, 6 to 1; Harvard won from the New York A. C., 5 to 2; Princeton made a clean sweep over the Heights Casino; Columbia won a close match from the Short Hills Club, 4 to 3; Gramercy defeated the Montclair A. C. by the same score, while the Crescents won from the Whitehall Club, 4 to 0. The latter organization sent only four men to Brooklyn instead of seven, and one of the four defaulted.

Princeton's clean sweep over the Heights Casino was totally unexpected. The Brooklyn team competed in Class B last year, and while it did not win a single match, it was thought that the experience gained in this competition would give the Casino representatives an advantage over the other clubs, most of whose teams were composed of players who had never engaged in tournament play before.

Not only did Princeton win seven straight matches, but only one of five sets went to three games. R. Pratt, No. 2 man on the Brooklyn club, came close to victory against A. Wood, taking the second game at 15–9, after losing the first at the same score, and carrying the third game to 18–17 before yielding. R. L. Carter, who led off for the Brooklynites, made the next best showing on his side, losing to F. M. Sperry at 15–8, 15–12.

The strength of the latter half of Columbia's line-up pulled the Blue and White through after a close struggle with the Short Hills players. R. H. Reutter, who led off for the home club, won with comparative ease over S. Van Vechten at 15–7, 15–5, but the next three members of the Blue and White failed to come through. J. D. Kennedy, No. 2 man, losing to Carl Stafford in match with J. R. Montgomery at 15–13, 15–13. Peter Grimm, H. V. Miller and R. Livermore won the three other victories for Columbia.

Two of Harvard's five victories over the New York A. C. were won after close matches, while the three others came rather easily. Gramercy's 4-to-3 victory over Montclair was rather surprising, for the New Jersey aggregations had E. L. Winpenny, R. B. Van Cleave and C. C. Halsey, former members of the Class B team, in the line-up. Winbenny, No. 1, won his match, as also did Halsey, but Van Cleave lost.

The summaries:

A. A. U. TITLE GAMES TO BE STAGED FEB. 21

Metropolitan Track and Field Championships to Be Held in 102d Armory.

WOMEN TO HAVE 2 EVENTS

Committee Also Names Two Races for Scholastic Athletes—Other Dates Announced.

The Metropolitan A. A. U.'s indoor track and field championships will be held on the night of Feb. 21 in the 102d Engineers Regiment Armory, it was decided yesterday at a meeting of the local Indoor Track and Field Championship Committee, of which Charles Johnson, Newark A. C., is Chairman. It also was decided to conduct the full list of ten standard events, in addition to two title competitions for women athletes and two scholastic events.

The list of events scheduled are: 60-yard dash, 300-yard dash, 600-yard run, 1,000-yard run, one mile walk, one and seven-eighths mile medley relay race, 16-pound shot-put, running high jump and 60-yard hurdles race. The women's championships will be a 50-yard sprint and a 440-yard relay. The scholastic competitions will consist of a half-mile relay race for junior high schools of the Public Schools Athletic League and a one mile relay race for senior high schools and prep schools of the district over which the Metropolitan A. A. U. has jurisdiction in amateur athletics.

In addition to adopting a date and arranging plans for the annual indoor championships the committee disposed of several unstandardized championship events which were awarded to different clubs and organizations seeking these title competitions as additional attractions. The list of awards follows:

Jan. 11, three-quarter-mile championship, Finnish-American A. C. games in Madison Square Garden; 21, 600-yard run and 2,400-yard relay championships, St. Joseph's Catholic Club, 113th Infantry Regiment Armory, Newark, N. C. games, 113th Infantry Regiment Armory, Newark, and 880-yard run and 880-yard relay championships, Western Union A. A. games, 102d Engineers Regiment Armory; 14, 880-yard run and 1,200-yard relay championships, Wilco A. A. games, Thirteenth Regiment Armory, Brooklyn.

JONES AND TOLLEY TO COMPETE HERE

Will Meet Walker and Barnes in 36-Hole Benefit Match at Wykagyl Sunday.

U. S. C, A. GAINS 61 CLUBS

Membership Reaches Total of 786—Florida Pro Golf League Enlists Many Stars.

Metropolitan district golf followers will have an unusual opportunity presented to them on Sunday when Bobby Jones of Atlanta, winner of the national amateur championship at Merion recently, and Cyril J. H. Tolley, famous British amateur star who led the Walker Cup team, meet Cyril Walker of Englewood, holder of the national open championship, and "Long Jim" Barnes in a 36-hole match at the Wykagyl Country Club, White Plains. The proceeds of the match will be given to the crippled children's fund.

The match, one of the greatest treats ever offered to golf enthusiasts, is expected to attract one of the largest galleries in the history of golf here. It will afford metropolitan district golf fans an opportunity of seeing how the two foremost amateur players in the world compare with two of the greatest of the great among the professionals. It will also give them a chance to see one of the longest hitters in the game, Tolley, for the big Briton, with nothing particular at stake, will be able to lash out to his heart's content. Wykagyl, a long course, has many long holes in it—holes where length counts—and this will suit Tolley better than any of the three courses on which he has played since coming here with the British team.

The morning round will start at 10 and the afternoon round at 2.

The membership of the United States Golf Association is showing a steady increase. On Nov. 30, last year, there were 645 clubs enrolled either as active or allied members. During the year the membership has increased by 61 clubs, the total membership now being 706. During the year there has been a gain of 23 active members and 38 allied members. The following active clubs have been added recently:

Blairmont Country Club, Hollidaysburg, Pa.; Beechmont Country Club, Warrensville, Ohio; Glenbrook Country Club, Houston, Texas; Lakeville Golf and Country Club, Great Neck, L. I.; Monroe Golf Club, Pittsford, N. Y.; Pennsylvania Golf Club, Brookline Manor, Pa.; South Shore Country Club of Buffalo, Athol Springs, N. Y., and the Women's National Golf and Tennis Club, Glen Head, L. I.

The following clubs have been admitted to allied membership:

Brattleboro Country Club, Brattleboro, Vt.; Carolina Country Club, Raleigh, N. C.; Champlain Country Club, St. Albans, Vt.; Chautauqua Golf Club, Chautauqua, N. Y.; Chikaming Country Club, Benton Harbor, Mich.; Country Club of Ithaca, Ithaca, N. Y.; Elmwood Country Club, Warren Point, N. J.; Fairlawn Heights Golf Club, Akron, Ohio; Flint Automobile Country Club, Flint, Mich.; Keene Country Club, Keene, N. H.; Lakeside Golf and Country Club, Oklahoma City, Okla.; Lenox Hills Golf Club, Farmingdale, N. Y.; Menomonie Country Club, Menomonie, Wis.; Messaba Country Club, Hibbing, Minn.; Miami Country Club, Miami, Fla.; Saucon Valley Country Club, Bethlehem, Pa.; Shamokin Valley Country Club, Shamokin, Pa.; Shelter Rock Country Club, Searington, N. Y.; Sleepy Hollow Country Club, Brecksville, Ohio.; Stoney Brae Golf Club, Quincy, Mass.; Waccabuc Country Club, Lake Waccabuc, N. Y.

The Norwood Golf Club of Long Branch, N. J., and the Weston Golf Club of Weston, Mass., have been transferred from allied to active membership and the following allied clubs reinstated: Hutchinson Country Club, Hutchinson, Kan., and Steubenville Country Club, Steubenville, Ohio.

The baseball idea has finally hit the game of golf. Walter Hagen, British open and P. G. A. champion, yesterday announced the formation of the Professional Golfers' League of Florida. Ten of the leading players in America, who are engaged in a professional capacity at the leading Florida resorts during the Winter months, will play a series of matches throughout the months of January and February, and the winners will meet Abe Mitchel and George Duncan, the two British stars who are coming here for an exhibition tour. The five teams comprising the league are: Hagen and Joe Kirkwood, representing Pasadena-on-the-Gulf; Bobby Cruickshank and Johnny Farrell, who will play for Tampa; Gene Sarazen and Leo Diegel, representing Hollywood; Mike Brady and Tommy Armour, representing Miami, and a team from the St. Augustine-Jacksonville district. The league is the first of its kind ever organized and is being tried out as an experiment with the idea of making it a permanent feature of Florida's Winter season if it proves successful.

FORCING PUBLIC MEN TO LECTURE.

"TOM" MARSHALL of Indiana can still be counted on to say the blunt and do the honest thing. Himself a frequent lecturer for pay when he was Vice President, he refuses to join in the criticism of Mr. COOLIDGE for having asked and taken an "honorarium" of $250 for making an address to an association of war veterans early in 1923. The salary of the Vice President being what it is, and the necessary expenses laid upon him being what they are, there is no escape for him from the need of somehow earning money "on the side." In Mr. MARSHALL'S pithy words, he must either "lecture, steal or resign." It is true that the former Vice President would not take money for addresses in behalf of Liberty loans and other war purposes, but he was otherwise always available for lectures wherever the pay was good. The moral which he would draw for Mr. COOLIDGE'S benefit is that the country ought to give the Vice President a salary large enough to live on, and to meet his official and social obligations, and not compel him to leave Washington every now and then to earn an honest penny.

Lectures by public men cannot be called preying upon a helpless public. They simply take advantage of an existing public appetite which remains almost incredibly enormous. The willingness of great numbers of people to sit through addresses by men with a public reputation sometimes passes belief. Professor ALVORD has described the immense absorbent capacity of one of Senator LA FOLLETTE'S Wisconsin audiences. He would speak from 8 till 10, when he would pause in order that any who felt they must go might quietly slip out. Nobody went. Then he would speak till 11, and make a similar pause. But his hearers remained, still eager for more. So he would go on until after 12, when they would reluctantly disperse.

Various ancients are heard to speak regretfully of the good old "Lyceum" days, when WENDELL PHILLIPS and JOHN B. GOUGH and HENRY WARD BEECHER toured the country. Their usual terms were, as Mr. BEECHER said, F. A. M. E.—that is to say, "fifty and my expenses." With the decrease in the purchasing power of the dollar, it is not strange that the sum has become today $250. But there has been no decrease in the popular longing to be lectured. Any speaker in a prominent position can make his bargain with an agent and go the rounds. Women's clubs and local organizations and gatherings of the curious have more than made good the disappearance of the Lyceum system. And of some lectures, as of many plays, it remains true that the audience is the most interesting part. "The show is not the show, but they that go."

OUR CLAIMS AGAINST GERMANY.

In designating Colonel JAMES A. LOGAN to attend officially the International financial conference which opens in Paris today, Secretary HUGHES obviously has it in mind to serve notice on the Governments interested in allocating payments from Germany that the United States has claims entitled to consideration. Owing to the fact that the payment for the costs of the American army of occupation, which had been arranged two years ago by ELIOT WADSWORTH, may have to be considered anew in view of the methods of payment of reparations provided in the Dawes plan, it is estimated that about a half billion dollars of American claims against Germany remain to be collected. Doubtless Mr. HUGHES has no intention of demanding that America's claims take priority over those of the Allies, but probably fears that unless they are formally brought up they may be disregarded, as were the original claims for the army of occupation. These were ignored in 1920 and 1921 when the Allies divided sums from Germany to pay the cost of their own armies.

This action by our Government will surely be unpopular in Europe. To the French, in particular, it will seem strange that we, who declined to take any responsibility in making Germany pay and who signed a separate treaty with Germany, step in with claims so soon as we see German cash in sight.

The very fact that we have opposed payments in kind makes our desire for gold seem more singular. So also must the Allies be surprised that we include in our demands claims for damages caused while the United States was still neutral and boasting of it. The way of a rich man seeking his dues from poor debtors is never easy. Public criticism may be partially suppressed in France, but Colonel LOGAN'S mission is certain to arouse bitterness.

The Secretary of State may reply that his task is not to foster American popularity abroad but to protect American interests. If the distribution of payments from Germany under the Dawes plan is to be settled at the Paris financial conference, it is better for America to be officially represented than not. Certainly if the Allies there agreed upon a schedule of distribution which made no provision for the costs of the American army of occupation or for other claims of the United States against Germany, it would be even more difficult and more unpopular for Mr. HUGHES later to demand America's share. The difference between a claimant and a dun is one of degree. Unfortunately, however, the world too often looks upon the mere filing of a just claim as the ungracious act of a rapacious miser.

It was no doubt a disagreeable duty which Secretary HUGHES felt was forced upon him. But care ought to be taken in the manner of our discharging it not to give the impression abroad that we are past masters in the gentle art of making other people hate us.

THE HAPPIEST JAYHAWKER.

Sore is the good writing hand of WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE. There is a wide area of blister on its little finger. "Gosh!" he cries; "They shook my arm off last night. Whew, how this thing hurts!" But he was never so happy. He crushed a heckler who wanted to know if it wasn't a fact that, asked what he thought of women in politics, he answered: "Woman should never get more than four feet from the kitchen sink." Blithely he replied:

Oh, boy! Let me get at him. I have been fighting for woman suffrage in Kansas for thirty years. There never has been a measure the women wanted that I didn't support and help with all my might. The question was the effervescing of an inspired chump.

"I am loaded for this bird," he continued in his meaty Kaw dialect, though his admirers must be pained to find him addressing the crowd as "folks," like a train boy trying to sell candy. The Klan, which he has vowed to "clean out of their cow pastures," he genially describes as having "assimilated the ragtags, bobtails, cripple-wits, lame brains, dumbbells and riffraff of the community." One of the Coolidge electors is supporting him. The Republican State Committee is getting, in a less urbane form, such delicate compliments as are too often bestowed upon those sagacity-trusts this year. Thus a stalwart Republican who isn't going to vote for Mr. WHITE tells a meeting of State teachers that "if that band of morons down at Topeka doesn't get out of the business they will elect him." Mr. WHITE is prodigal in gratitude to the blundering Republican machine:

I am wondering now what a nice bursting stockingful of votes they are cooking up to give me this week. Every week has seen its Christmas presents from the Topeka Republican headquarters. If this campaign lasted another month, I should return to my innocent childish belief in Santa Claus. I have had more luck in this campaign than a man within a mint with a license to steal.

To Mr. PAULEN, the Republican candidate for Governor, Mr. WHITE gives this invitation: "Come on, BEN, let's have a debate and talk it out." BEN may choose any subject he pleases. All Mr. WHITE wants is to get at him. Mr. WHITE is playing to "standing room only." Sometimes the crowd is so large that he has to hold two meetings. Neither Mr. PAULEN nor Governor DAVIS has such "houses." Mr. WHITE is the best entertainer in Kansas. We notice, however, that a Democrat says that the "fight in Kansas is between Governor DAVIS and Mr. WHITE." The "side-show" is doing more business than the "main tent." However that may be, "Our BILL" is enjoying himself to the top of his bent; and it is probable enough that his canvass has "cured the Kansas politicians of sucking the Ku Klux eggs for the next ten years."

Colored White clubs abound. So do Republican "roorbacks" and "forgeries." Mr. WHITE is making the Klan and its Republican abettors ridiculous. That is the best tactics. But how is it that Kansas, to many of our earnest occasional thinkers the very capital of "Puritanism," manages to monopolize from year to year most of the fun of politics?

DEMOCRACY AND WELFARE.

In its admirably candid "Community Study Number One" the Bowling Green Neighborhood Association admits that it has accomplished more for human welfare on the toe of Manhattan than for "democracy." The community in question consists of the financial world of Wall Street and lower Broadway on the one part and on the other of inhabitants of the surrounding slums. "The first paid workers" we are told "started with democratic ideals." The problem was to gather in sweet communion bankers, brokers and corporation lawyers together with charwomen, elevator boys, dock workers and pushcart men—mainly residents of colonies of Slovaks, Syrians and Greeks. Neither the brokers nor the longshoremen foregathered easily, as perhaps they should have done. And so, "recognizing that the neighborhood participation under this scheme was only "nominal," the Secretary discontinued it.

So far as this Neighborhood Association is a failure (in the main it is a conspicuous success), its fate was long ago adumbrated in a much more hopeful endeavor staged in the Mohawk-Brighton district of Cincinnati. There the population was comparatively homogeneous and the prospect for neighborly acquaintance and mutual self-help comparatively bright. So long as the paid social workers were on the spot they were able to galvanize the district into neighborliness of a sort. But there came an end to the appropriation and with it an end to galvanic human kindness. Whatever the case with the broker, you can lead the immigrant to the waters of democracy and even make him drink. But this thirst is soon assuaged. Or, rather, in the long run, it takes a direction of its own—a dozen different directions—that flout the community worker and the Neighborhood Association. Because our American democracy grew up on a basis of territorial units, it does not follow that physical nearness is a soul solvent for the Argentines, the Portuguese and the Greeks.

The heterogeneity which cast a blight upon Bowling Green "democracy" proved the salvation of Bowling Green welfare. The bankers, brokers and corporation lawyers are admirably punctual at annual meetings, most admirably punctual in subscribing the annual budget of $39,000 needed for genuine welfare work. The results are substantial and indeed amazing. In 1910 the infant death rate in Bowling Green was 321 per thousand; today it is 116. In 1923 the death rate for the city as a whole declined 3½ per cent.; in Bowling Green it declined 14½ per cent. In 1913 the children had no way of getting books, no place to play but the streets and the docks. In 1923 the association's library served 350 children, a large proportion of those living in the district, while the association's playground had a daily attendance of 400.

Among these children, who are learning English in the schools, democratizing influences are at their best. Twenty-one boys' and girls' clubs meet in the Association House for the cultivation of athletics, music, dramatics and general sociability. The elders cling to their racial or linguistic groups, and the association is bowing to the inevitable. It has formed a "Men's Club" for members of four Slovak benefit associations and is intending to form similar clubs of Syrians and Greeks. Americanism is scarcely a thing that can be imposed from without, even by the most enthusiastic. The lesson of this "Community Study" is as impressive as it is simple. Take care of schooling and the death rate, and democracy will take care of itself.

GOVERNOR SMITH AND THE SCHOOLS.

Governor SMITH'S attitude toward the public schools of the State has been so consistently favorable to whatever has been urged by the educational authorities as needful as to render improbable the motive imputed to him by his political opponents. He who was denied some of the advantages of education has felt even more keenly the necessity for it, and has in his public messages and addresses, in season and out of season, called upon the State to do its best for the children. "We may fall down," he said, "in our programs for public betterment or public improvements, but time lost in the development of education can never be made up."

He has not only spoken for public education; his deeds have supported his words. Specifically, he had a part in writing the law which gave equal pay to women and men teachers; he urged the passage of a bill in 1919 appropriating five times the amount annually granted by the State theretofore for the support of schools and the payment of teachers' salaries, the total being increased from about six millions to more than thirty millions; he has taken an active interest in efforts for the improvement of the rural schools; he has sought to give all possible State help to the cities in financing their systems, and he has approved the continuation school provision. It is hardly possible that a Governor could have done more, in view of the conditions under which he has had to carry forward his educational program.

To ignore this splendid and indubitable record and to emphasize a clerical error for which he was in no way responsible and which he repudiated and corrected, as implying a desire on his part to secure political control of the State Education Department, is inexcusable even in a political campaign. It is not playing the game fairly. It is not a square deal for one who has shown himself a true friend of the public schools and the teachers of this State.

JEWS IN EASTERN EUROPE.

An emergency committee on Jewish refugees has appealed for financial aid in dealing with the problem of 10,000 people whom the operation of our quota system has left stranded in European ports and in Cuba. When this problem has been disposed of, as no doubt it will be through the generosity of the American public, there will remain a permanent and extraordinary problem created by our new immigration policy. The great reservoir for Jewish immigration into the United States was Russia, within whose former territory there are now between seven and eight million people of that race. In 1905 the immigrant arrivals from Russia numbered nearly 130,000. After the war decline they had climbed up again by 1921 to nearly 120,000. Under the act of 1924 the quota for Poland stands at somewhat less than 6,000 and for Russia at 2,248, with less than 500 for Lithuania and Latvia. Allowing for the admission of relatives of those already resident here, it may be estimated that entry into this country for the Jews of Eastern Europe has been cut down by 75 per cent.

For other nationalities similarly affected the resultant problem has been made a subject of serious study by the home Governments; notably so in Italy. The vast mass of European Jews happen to live under two Governments, of which one, Poland, is not conspicuously sympathetic to the problems of the race; and the other, Soviet Russia, is isolated from the world and has other things to think of. For the moment, at least, the economic problem is much more serious in Russia. The Jews in Poland are, as artisans and traders, sharing in the revival of that country. In Soviet Russia, where their political and social status has improved and the ancient discriminations of the Pale have been abolished, Communist policy weighs down heavily on their economic status. The artisan population flowed in large numbers into the nationalized industries. The virtual breakdown of Government industry has created a very serious state of unemployment. Similarly, Government restrictions on trade have heavily affected a population which lived so largely by petty commerce. The Jews, as a predominantly urban element, feel the full effects of the general impoverishment of urban Russia.

The remedies indicated are either the establishment of new channels of emigration—Palestine, South America, South Africa, &c.—craft education or the removal of Jewish town dwellers to the land. In the Ukraine some progress has been made in the founding of Jewish agricultural colonies, and at various times there have been intimations of a plan on the part of the Soviet Government for the assignment of a large region in Southern Russia for Jewish agricultural development. It is a process which is slow at best and which is bound to be hampered by the succession of agricultural crises. Chronic crop failure is not the best kind of advertisement for winning over an urban population to agriculture. But it is not a question of choice. Organizations like the "Ort," which aims to establish Jews on the land or to train them in the handicrafts, have registered a noticeable measure of success.

LAURA JEAN LIBBEY.

America's age of innocence lasted longer than is usually imagined. The author of "Lovers Once but Strangers Now" and "When His Love Grew Cold" made her first contribution to ROBERT BONNER'S Ledger when OWEN DAVIS was in pinafores—or less. But in the first decade of the present century, when the busy pen that produced "Miss Middleton's Lover" had slackened and an interview with Mrs. LAURA JEAN LIBBEY-STILWELL was almost an annual feature in the press, a goodly section of New York and the United States was still thrilling to Mr. DAVIS'S "Nellie the Beautiful Cloak Model." Allow for certain changes in technique in the direction of a superficial sophistication, and the world outlook mirrored in The Family Story Paper and The Fireside Companion is still the world outlook of the semi-monthly all-fiction magazines. The clean-cut millionaire's daughter who surmounts fate and the villain on a desert island and marries the young engineer is sister to the golden-haired daughters of poverty who expended so much energy in evading marriage with wicked black-mustachioed millionaires.

Miss LIBBEY'S audience was more diversified than the audience of Mr. DAVIS'S "Bertha, the Sewing Machine Girl." The reason is simple. It required moral courage to wander down to Third Avenue, where the woes of Nellie and Bertha were on exhibition. It required only a bit of dexterity to intercept a copy of The Family Story Paper and to scan it for contents deleterious to the young woman in the house. By exercising sufficient vigilance over her reading one could follow the vicissitudes of Miss LIBBEY'S heroines from week to week with fair consecutiveness. The transition is gradual from LAURA JEAN LIBBEY to BERTHA M. CLAY, from her to "The Duchess" and so on to MARIE CORELLI; and who used to read MARIE CORELLI is an open secret. Everybody.

In large measure, therefore, the difference in popular literature between the Coolidge Administration and the Rutherford B. Hayes Administration would be in the matter of format. Today nearly everything literary is between covers, whether book or magazine. Forty years ago it was the broadsheet weeklies. The saccharine of Miss LIBBEY and the derring-do of Nick Carter and Old Cap Collier were absorbed so easily because they came in weekly portions. It was an age in which literature could claim a higher status, in one respect, than it can today. It paid its way as literature without the support of the advertiser. Out of The Ledger's circulation income ROBERT BONNER made enough to spend half a million dollars on Maud S. and her famous companions. Fortunes were made out of the weekly "libraries." Deadwood Dick, Old Sleuth, Frank Reed, Golden Hours, Golden Days.

Women of today who may be tempted to think of Miss LIBBEY'S golden-haired innocents as the fine flower of the Victorian enslavement of woman might also think of Mrs. STILWELL as one of the pioneers of the economically independent woman. Her enormous literary productivity is in the tradition of the Mrs. Trollopes, the Charlotte M. Braemes and the Mrs. Hungerfords who wrested something of fortune and something of fame out of an environment in which woman's competition was a much harder thing to wage than it is now.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Better Let It All Come Out.

If the officials and employes of the Standard Oil Company over in Elizabeth withhold knowledge of what happened last week in their Bayway experimental laboratory, they will not show the wisdom usually characteristic of that large corporation. Concealment, or even an attempt at it, will result in making a bad matter worse, or at least in throwing suspicion around what in all probability was merely an unfortunate accident.

Of course, there was no intention to harm the men who have been working with ethylene in an endeavor to find a way to increase the efficiency of gasoline by rendering more nearly perfect its combustion, and presumably what were supposed to be adequate precautions in the shape of gas masks were taken. It seems to have been the general impression that the investigation in progress had its dangers, but these were not taken seriously and were a subject of jesting rather than of apprehension.

Ethylene, which lately came into use as an anesthetic, has been acclaimed as safer than either chloroform or ether, and it has been administered to animals with frequency and for long periods without causing injury. Yet the men in the laboratory reacted in a way that showed them, apparently, to be the victims of a cumulative poison—one, that is, which does not produce noticeable effects until after it has accumulated in the system in considerable quantities.

This peculiarity has suggested that the men suffered, not from the ethylene which in small quantities, in spite of their masks, they had been breathing for some weeks, but from some as yet unknown impurity in the gas as prepared. Their symptoms, after their resistance was overcome, were those of delirium or mania, and one of them has died. Others, less deeply affected, are expected to recover as soon as the mysterious poison can be eliminated.

All these phenomena no doubt will be closely observed by the company's chemists, and the store of knowledge will be increased—not for the first time at deplorable cost.

Plausible, but Not Convincing.

DAVID SARNOFF of the Radio Corporation, speaking as an acknowledged expert, but hardly a disinterested one, presents in defense of his company's desire to establish "super-power" stations arguments the force of which can be determined only by other experts. They sound to amateurs plausible enough, but not entirely convincing, and the now big army of listeners-in will not lose, because of what he says, all their apprehensions as to what super-power stations would do to the outgivings of those already in existence. The present inclination of most of them probably is to believe that they will be better served by many broadcasting stations of normal power than by a few sending out much stronger impulses.

Unlike the telephone, the radio is not, from the popular standpoint, a "natural monopoly," and while it cannot be denied that the few powerful stations could send out more costly and therefore better programs if they would, there is no guarantee that this always would be the only or even the main object of their construction.

Mr. SARNOFF says that if the super-power stations were built only in places remote from the large cities, their waves would be no stronger in those cities than the waves produced by the present stations and that the latter therefore would not suffer any more interference than they do now from each other. He also suggests that as the "state of the art" advances means of overcoming or eliminating all interference will be devised.

Everybody will hope he is right, and certainly it would not be safe to deny that he is. Wonderful as the achievements of radio already are, it is realized that the new science is still only at its beginning, and there even are optimists who believe that some day the demon "static" will be conquered and annihilated. If one trusted the claims of receiving set manufacturers, many of them already have won that victory, but sad experience is to the contrary. All through last week, the demon howled and whistled and roared defiantly through even the best of instruments, and the "fans" have been impatient for a change in the "glorious weather," which for them has not been glorious at all.

Really We Need Some Rain.

It is the city folk who have taken unqualified delight in what for them has been the perfect October weather of the past fortnight. Out in the country, and even no further away than the suburbs, there has been a somewhat apprehensive realisation that bright sunshine and air with only just the proper hint in it of the coming Winter were incidental to a prolonged drought that was becoming somewhat serious.

The gardens, though doing their best to be gay with dahlias, marigolds, hardy chrysanthemums and the other Fall flowers, are so thirsty that they are giving up in despair. Worse still, forest fires are beginning in some parts of the country, and they will get steadily more and more destructive unless there are heavy rains soon.

Another regrettable consequence of the fine weather is that the reservoirs are not storing up the water they ought to have before the ground freezes and precipitation takes the form of snow. Not a few of the artificial lakes on which the cities are dependent for very life already are low. It is too early to be alarmed on this score, but when the weather does "break," mourning over it should be mitigated by the thought that there is a possibility of having too much of a good thing.

Coolidge and the Klan.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am an independent Democrat and admire the editorial fight you are waging for John W. Davis. There is one point I wish that you could hammer home to your New York and Eastern readers, and that is that President Coolidge's silence on the Klan has identified him with them. I live in Kentucky and recently five of my neighbors importuned me to join the Klan. I refused, and they asked if I intended voting for Davis. When I replied yes, they informed me they were all for Coolidge, though life-long Democrats, their reason being that they had received word through their Klan to vote for him—that he, Coolidge, was a Klansman.

Now I don't believe this to be true, and told them so. They said, "Well, we can't vote for Davis; he has denounced us, and the President has not said a word against us."

Therefore you see where the "silence gives consent" leads and the President thus identifies himself with the hooded order. Kentucky is safe for Davis, and my observation is that the tide in Indiana has swung to him. He has a real chance to win.

A Deaf-Mute Protests.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am a firm believer in the policy of electing a Presidential candidate on the basis of his personal record of achievements, his integrity and his ability to handle domestic and foreign issues.

There appeared in Sunday's paper a statement to the effect that there is an organization of deaf-mutes for Coolidge, managed by John H. Kent. He claimed: "The deaf are taking a peculiar interest in the election because Mrs. Coolidge before her marriage was a teacher in a deaf-mute school."

I can imagine no more ridiculous idea than that a man should be elected President because his wife happened to be once a teacher in a deaf-mute school.

The writer is a deaf-mute and he has a right to voice his indignation against such silly movements, and he is backed by other deaf-mutes.

Davis and La Follette are a great deal much more fitted to be President than Coolidge, and the fact that their wives were never teachers of the deaf does not make an atom of difference!

Cleveland and the Navy.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Why all this harping on what Roosevelt did for the navy? It is a well-known fact that the rehabilitation of the navy was started by Grover Cleveland after years of Republican mismanagement. It was the Cleveland Administration that put the navy on the high plane that brought it to the effective efficiency of the Spanish-American War. Roosevelt only continued the plans laid down.

Grover Cleveland's birthday should properly be Navy Day.

MY FRIEND.

Suggested by Barbara Young's Poem, "I Hear It Said."

I am his friend. He has done this and that. But "what Is that to me?" 'Tis much to me; and yet not all
That he has done and is can wean my heart from love
For him. My soul deep yearns for confidence and trust;
But love that's worth the sacred name of "Friend" outlives
Both trust and confidence, and clings more close, the while
It dumbly waits and yearns for opportunity to serve.

There is a reason—yes. But reason lends
No more to logic than to sophistry.
And when
Some overpow'ring urge of vanity or gain
Beset, it may ensnare my friend or even me.
True friendship is not blind, but Justice only is;
And 'tis no mark of constancy to shut an eye
Or turn deaf ear to fault, because enshrined in clay
That we have labeled "Friend."

Because I am his friend,
I would that I and not another might accuse,
And thereby set his feet on firmer ground, and make Him worthy of my confidence as well as love.
I give him room to walk his way and think his thoughts.
I argue myself wrong, perchance, in deference
To judgment more mature than mine. I set no rein
Upon his thought or act; nor claim more for myself
Than I accord to him—right to interpret what
He does and says, and measure him by standards set
Deep in experience, not mine, but graven on
The hearts of men, approved by conscience and sustained
By age-long wisdom of the Race.

I do defend
My friend against assault. Nor can I be his friend
And justify his faults. Nor do I love them. He's
The object of my dear affection, and his faults
Are things apart; and I would shrive him of them that I might present my friend to all the world a man
Approved—a pattern worthy to be copied by
The best. Not perfect, for perfection is not in
The things we say and do, but in the certitude
Of our intent, the deep conviction of the things
That we believe.

RIGHTS OF THE JAY-WALKER

Commissioner Enright's Proposed Traffic Ordinance Is Assailed.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Is the proposed ordinance making it a crime to cross the street in the middle of the block based upon the supposition that traffic is impeded by the bodies of the killed and injured? Or is it a scheme to revive the former criminal offense of attempted suicide?

I challenge the accuracy of the Police Commissioner's statements that comparatively few are killed or injured at crossings, that those killed or injured have themselves to blame and that drivers are doing all they can to avoid accidents.

Within the past two or three years I personally know of not fewer than ten automobile run-downs, all but one having occurred at the crossing. Of the ten, six resulted fatally. In one, serious injury was sustained after the southbound traffic was stopped and the northbound traffic had been permitted to continue. One of the slain, a woman, was hurled twelve or fifteen feet above the crossing and the guilty people have sought to classify the accident as "off crossing."

The charge of jay-walking as an explanation of the great number of casualties is a sample of police camouflage, and the deep concern of drivers for people on foot is apparent only to the Commissioner, who rides around in a department car.

The traffic officer does not relish accidents happening at his post and he is disposed to report them as having occurred away from the crossing and beyond his control.

Too many whistles are blown while pedestrians are on the crossing. A short time ago I was crossing one of the upper Forties, on the east side of Broadway. Three autos were abreast waiting for the signal, which was given as I walked in front of the middle car. The vehicle next to the curb began to move and forced me out into Broadway to get around it. Had I been run down, jay-walking would have been the solution to cover the traffic officer and the chauffeur.

The surface cars have the right of way between streets, but the pedestrian has no right of way even at crossings. The Commissioner's measure would have the effect of extending the right of way between cross streets to all vehicles and, besides practically precluding the pedestrian from recovering damages for injuries sustained off the crossing, it would brand him as a criminal.

It is a wonder the Commissioner has only asked for 1,000 extra men. He would need over 100,000 to enforce the brown derby legislation he recommends.

Regulating Pedestrians.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

From Mr. Enright's remarks in this morning's TIMES I gather that the police force will soon "regulate" pedestrians. It looks to me as if the automobiles make a pretty good job of regulating the pedestrians, all by themselves. But maybe they need help. The contemptuous term "jay-walker" was invented to help keep the pedestrians in line, not to mention some still stronger epithets common to the taxi driver's vocabulary. But in spite of all these, the jay-walkers still inconvenience the motorists, so some more laws are to be passed. Laws are supposed to cure anything these days.

Under the present system the rules for pedestrians seem to be that a man has a perfect right to cross the street at any time and place he desires, provided he does not cause any motorist the slightest inconvenience. Under the proposed system we'll probably have some "jay-cops" to help the taxi drivers enforce this, and then all hands will have some more taxes to pay to cover the extra salaries. * * *

Conditions on Third Avenue.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial on the proposed police regulation of pedestrian traffic is quite to the point. The Police Commissioner seeks authority to strike a fatherly attitude and say to the jay-walker: "Papa spank!" If the Commissioner will take a walk with me on Third Avenue, between Fourteenth and Forty-second Streets, about 5 o'clock some evening I think I can convince him that he cannot cross the avenue more safely at any street intersection he may select than at the middle of the block, and that he cannot cross at any point except at the risk of his life. * * *

What Is a Jay-Walker?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I send you a word of thanks for your editorial this morning on the suggestion of the Police Commissioner that the police be given as complete authority over pedestrians as over vehicular traffic? The suggestion savors much too much of paternalistic government and those Teutonic manifestations thereof which are associated with the word "verboten."

Especially do I like your remark that it would be worth while to inquire what jay-walking is and who are the "jay-walkers." I do not know the etymology of "jay-walker," but it seems to be a particularly flagrant example of the tendency of those people who fancy that they have a mission to boss the rest of us to apply opprobrious epithets to anybody whose views or habits do not conform to their own.

The Rights of the Walkers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I wish to commend you for the editorial in today's issue, entitled, "Police Control of Jay-Walking." For a long time it has appeared to me that traffic regulations were being made solely for the interest of those riding in automobiles and that there would come a time when the large walking population would object to the restraints to their freedom which were being caused by the police regulations of traffic. Should such objections be voiced, I fear the present traffic regulations would have to be completely changed, to the great discomfort of the automobilists.

Injuries at Crossings.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Thank you for your editorial on "Police Control of Jay-Walking." It seems to me unwise for the Police Commissioner to attempt to punish pedestrians who cross in the middle of the block before he has made crossing at the crossings safe.

Forty-five per cent. of the people injured during the first half of this year while crossing the street were injured when doing their duty at the crossings, and one in five of those killed while crossing the streets were killed at the crossings. * * *

GEN. CALLES SEES PROSPERITY AHEAD

Mexico on the Eve of New Era, Says President-Elect, Here on Way Home.

TO PROTECT LABOR RIGHTS

Must Be Considered by Americans and Other Foreigners in Exploitation of Mexican Resources.

A new era of prosperity is directly ahead of Mexico, declared General Plutarco Elias Calles, Labor's President-elect of that country, in an interview yesterday at the Waldorf-Astoria. While, he said, no discouragement would be offered American development of oil and mines, his administration would endeavor to have Mexicans do the development.

"American capital, of course, will be welcome," he said, but added that whatever foreign interests took up exploitation of Mexican natural resources would have to comply with his country's statutes, particularly—and he emphasized it three times—the laws protecting "the rights of labor."

In response to questions about European affairs, General Calles said that the effect of the Dawes plan would be to improve the economic and political situation in Europe. Discussing the labor movement in Great Britain and the fall of the Ramsay MacDonald Ministry, General Calles saw in the latter "only an incident in the fight of labor to assert itself."

"The Labor Party in Great Britain," he said, "is moving ahead and the fall of a single individual like Premier MacDonald would have no effect on the final achievements of the party."

Won't Interfere in Russia.

When asked what attitude Mexico would take toward Russia, he replied: "So far as I can see Mexico has no attitude toward Russia, and we have no right to mix in the difficulties of the political systems of foreign countries."

He merely shrugged his shoulders and smiled when asked to estimate Premier Mussolini of Italy, and when this was followed with discussion of Japanese immigration, General Calles said the Mexican Congress would have to handle that problem, but that his country's policy was one of non-discrimination.

Income taxes under his Administration, he continued, would be paid as usual and no effort would be made to displace the law. He made it clear that there were no efforts made in Mexico to maintain secrecy about the returns filed by citizens. Full publicity, he said, was given the returns, "there being no reason for concealment."

General Calles said that the resumption of relations between Mexico and Great Britain would "be decided more by Great Britain than by Mexico." The tie between Spain and the Latin-American republics up to now had been purely a literary one, but that with the labor movement increasing rapidly in Spain he hoped to forge a stronger link.

When he was asked to talk about the divorce laws of Yucatan, reported to be the easiest in the world, General Calles became more expansive. He even ventured an opinion on matrimony in general.

"Matrimony," he said, "is only a contract made by two parties. When one fails to live up to the contract it is void."

Laws Made Divorce Easy.

He admitted that the Yucatan laws made divorce easy; hasty partings were kept from being too numerous because the law had failed to give consideration to the future of the children of litigants and to defining the question of inheritance rights of divorced parties. When he was asked if the Yucatan statutes were likely to become standard for Mexico, he said that question was one for the various States to decide, since each legislated for itself. He doubted, however, whether it would spread very far.

General Calles will visit Mayor Hylan at City Hall at noon today and at night will be the guest at a dinner at the Waldorf by the American Manufacturers Export Association, the Mexican Industrial Mission, the Mexican Chamber of Commerce and the New York Board of Trade and Transportation. The New York Chamber of Commerce will tender him a luncheon tomorrow and on Thursday night he will extend a greeting to workers at a Socialist meeting in Stuyvesant High School. He will go to Washington on Friday to call at the White House.

Among General Calles's visitors yesterday was Thomas W. Lamont. The visit was solely a personal one, it was announced.

Calles to Visit Coolidge Oct 31

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—Arrangements have been made at the White House, through the State Department, for a visit Friday afternoon by General Plutarco Elias Calles, President-elect of Mexico, with President Coolidge. General Calles arrived in this country yesterday from Europe, en route to Mexico City, where he will assume the Presidency.

DECISION FAVORS RAILROAD.

Supreme Court Denies Woman Bondholder's Contention.

Supreme Court Justice Wasservogel signed an order yesterday upholding the chief defense of the New York Central Railroad in a suit of Ida Small, a bondholder, to compel the railroad to pay $24,000 of bonds held by her, which are not due until 1998, on the ground that the railroad had violated the terms of the bond by consolidating a number of its subsidiaries. The court denied her application to strike out the answer in its entirety, although deciding in her favor as to allegations that she sued too late, and did not make any protest against the consolidation before bringing her action.

The plaintiff's suit, in which other holders of 4½ per cent. bonds, secured by the stock of the Lake Shore & Michigan Railroad as collateral were interested, alleged that the bonds were secured by a mortgage of $50,000,000. The complaint asserted that as a result of the consolidation of the New York Central subsidiaries the value of various stocks was destroyed to the extent of $236,446,000 when these stocks were cancelled, and for that reason the bonds are not protected as provided by the terms of the mortgage. She alleged that instead of having a first lien on the Lake Shore property her bonds are now subject to two prior mortgages amounting to $150,000.

HOSPITALS GET $1,200,000.

Report Made on $1,389,000 Estate of Miss Josephine Williams.

Miss Josephine Williams, who died April 20 last at Hartford, Conn., gave more than $1,200,000 to hospitals, according to an appraisal of her estate filed yesterday. Miss Williams left $1,389,000, of which $189,111 was in New York State. She left a life interest in $50,000 to her second cousin, Mary Thorndike Hutchins, and $10,000 to Mabel Storrs Decatur. All the remainder of the estate went to hospitals except $50,000 to the Y. M. C. A. of Hartford.

The Hartford Hospital received $100,000, and one-third of the residuary estate, or more than $400,000, and an equal sum went to the Massachusetts General Hospital.

WALLACE FUNERAL IN WHITE HOUSE

President, Cabinet and Diplomats Attend Services for Secretary of Agriculture.

JOURNEY TO IOWA BEGUN

Body Will Lie in State in the Capitol at Des Moines Before Burial on Wednesday.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—Funeral services for Henry C. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture, were held in the East Room of the White House today, and tonight the body, in care of members of the family and close personal friends, is being taken back to Des Moines, Iowa, Mr. Wallace's home, for burial there Wednesday.

The funeral party left here at 8:30 P. M. and will arrive in Des Moines late tomorrow. On Wednesday the body will lie in state at the Iowa State Capitol for several hours prior to the funeral services to be held in that city. State business will be suspended while the body reposes in the Capitol.

Accompanying Mrs. Wallace on the journey are her two daughters, Miss Ruth, who was with her in Washington at the time of her husband's death, and Mrs. Angus McLay of Birmingham, Mich.; her three sons, James A. and Harry C. of Des Moines, and John of St. Petersburg, Fla., and John P. Wallace, a brother of the Secretary. Another daughter, Mrs. Charles Bruggemann, is abroad.

Secretary Work, who was designated by President Coolidge to serve as his special representative at the burial services, was a member of the funeral party, which also included Acting Secretary of Agriculture Gore, James C. Stone, Director General of Railroads, and Mrs. Davis, and Major James F. Coupal and Dr. Joel T. Boone, White House physicians.

The Rev. Wallace Radcliffe, pastor emeritus of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church here, conducted the services at the White House, attended by President Coolidge, high officials of the Government, foreign diplomats and friends of the family.

A military guard of honor stood at the casket, which was surrounded by many floral tributes. On top was a wreath of white carnations, white chrysanthemums and pink roses, sent by the President and Mrs. Coolidge, and a wreath of pansies from Mrs. Wallace.

Secretaries Mellon, Weeks, Wilbur, Davis and Work, Attorney General Stone, Postmaster General New and Acting Secretary of Agriculture Gore served as honorary bellbearers. Active pallbearers were officials of the Agricultural Department.

The body was escorted from the White House to Union Station by members of the Cabinet and other high officials of the Government. It was placed in one of the two private cars which were reserved for the funeral party. Mrs. Wallace and other members of the family were escorted by White House military and naval attachés.

LOWDEN SUGGESTED FOR AGRICULTURE POST

President Also Gets Names of Capper and 3 Others—Won't Act Until After Election.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—Former Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, who declined the Republican nomination for Vice President, has been suggested by members of Congress and leaders of the farm movement as Secretary of Agriculture to succeed Henry C. Wallace.

Among other names brought to the attention of President Coolidge by telegrams today were those of Senator Capper of Kansas, Louis J. Taber of Ohio, head of the National Grange; Samuel Adams of Illinois, an editor and former President of the American Agricultural Editors' Association, and John Lee Coulter, President of the North Dakota Agriculture and Mechanics College.

It was indicated at the White House that no appointment would be made until after election, and then the President will exercise the greatest care in making the selection.

COUNTESS SCHOENBORN REPORTED AS BRIDE

Her Marriage to Baron Eugene Rothschild Said to Have Followed a Dispensation.

Copyright, 1924, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Oct. 27.—According to reports that are circulating, the Vienna marriage of Countess Kitty Schoenborn of Philadelphia and Baron Eugene Rothschild took place last week. The reports state that the Countess was obliged to obtain a dispensation from the Catholic Church and adopt the Jewish faith in order to marry Rothschild.

Owing to the Nationalization Property act, Baron Rothschild, as part owner of the famous Witkowitzer works, is leaving Czechoslovakia. The honeymooners are reported to have gone to Prague.

The engagement of Countess von Schoenborn and Baron Rothschild was announced from Vienna last Thursday. The Countess was divorced from Dandridge Spotswood, a New York broker, in Paris in 1911, the same year in which she married Count Schoenborn. Her maiden name was Miss Catherine Francesca von Wolf.

LEONIE COUDERT TO WED.

Her Engagement to Albert Stephen Marzo Is Announced.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Léonce Coudert of 859 West Seventy-first Street have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Léonie Coudert, to Albert Stephen Marzo, son of Chevalier and Mrs. Eduardo Marzo of this city. Miss Coudert is Mr. Coudert's daughter by a former marriage. Her mother was the late Adelaide Lockwood of Brooklyn. She is a granddaughter of the late Louis Léonce Coudert, one of the original members of the firm of Coudert Brothers, international lawyers. She was educated in France and Belgium and later studied at the Finch School.

Mr. Marzo is a graduate of New York University and the Fordham Law School. He served with the First New York Cavalry on the Mexican Border in 1916, with the engineers in the late war, and is now a Lieutenant in the 105th Field Artillery, N. G. His father is an authority on music of the Roman Catholic Church and his compositions have gained for him knighthoods from the King of Italy and the Pope. Mr. Marzo's mother is a sister of the late Supreme Court Justice Eugene A. Philbin.

Pall Mall Supper Club Meetings.

The first of the series of weekly meetings of the Pall Mall Supper Club will be held on Saturday night at the Lorraine, where the club has been having its functions for five years. The meetings will be held each Saturday night during the Winter season, and special holiday dances have been planned as well as special benefits for charities.

EMILY W. WRIGHT TO WED R. C. MYLES

Debutante of 1922 Engaged to Member of the New York Stock Exchange.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilkinson De Forest Wright announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Emily Welles Wright, to Robert Cunningham Myles Jr. at a dinner last night at their home, 525 Park Avenue. Mr. Myles is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Myles of 1,075 Park Avenue.

Miss Wright made her début two years ago at a dance at the Ritz-Carlton. She is a graduate of Miss Spence's school and has appeared in the entertainments for charity of the alumni of that institution and has taken an active part in various other charitable functions.

Mr. Myles was graduated from Yale in 1916 and is a member of the New York Stock Exchange, the Rockaway Hunt Club and Squadron A. The date for the wedding has not been set.

Bronner—Stachelburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bronner, who live at the Plaza, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mildred Bronner, to Charles Stachelburg, son of Mrs. Alfred M. Rau of this city. No date has been set for the wedding.

GEN. McKINSTRY WEDS.

Married to Miss Evelyn Wells in New Haven—Other Nuptials.

Announcement was made yesterday of the marriage of Brig. Gen. Charles Hedges McKinstry, U. S. A., and Miss Evelyn Salisbury Wells, daughter of Professor and Mrs. Horace L. Wells of New Haven, Conn., last Saturday in that city. General McKinstry's first wife died in Miami, Fla., in January, 1920. His home is in San Francisco.

General McKinstry and his bride have come to this city for a short visit and are staying at the Ambassador.

Bleibtreu—Reinthaler.

The marriage of Miss Helen Therese Reinthaler, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Reinthaler of 22 West Eighty-ninth Street, to Jacob Bleibtreu of this city took place last night at the St. Regis. The Rev. Dr. Schulman of Temple Beth-El officiated. Miss Mildred Bernstein attended the bride. E. Lawrence Bamberger was best man. Mr. Bleibtreu is a member of the New York Stock Exchange and is a partner in the firm of Abraham & Co.

Following their wedding trip through Spain and Italy, Mr. and Mrs. Bleibtreu will live in this city.

MISS SULLIVAN'S BRIDAL.

Cardinal Dougherty to Officiate at Her Wedding to A. L. Hoffman.

The marriage of Miss Elaine Sullivan, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Francis Sullivan, to Albert L. Hoffman, third son of Mrs. Francis Burrall Hoffman and the late Mr. Hoffman of this city and Southampton, will take place on Nov. 15 at noon in the private chapel of the residence of Cardinal Dougherty of Philadelphia, the Cardinal officiating.

Owing to the recent death of Mr. Hoffman's father there will be present for the marriage only relatives of both families and a few intimate friends. After the ceremony there will be a breakfast for members of the bridal party at The Woods, the country place in Radnor, Pa., of Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan, which will be completed in time for the event. The place has been built on the site of that destroyed by fire a year ago.

The marriage of Miss Ruby Hazel Keeney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Abner Keeney of 320 West Eighty-seventh Street, to William Devine Wargason will take place tonight in the Fourth Presbyterian Church, West End Avenue and Ninety-first Street. The ceremony will be followed by a reception at Sherry's.

C. M. HOLLAND DIES AFTER BREAKDOWN

Chief Engineer of Hudson River Tunnel Suffers a Heart Attack in Sanitarium.

CELEBRATION IS CANCELED

President Coolidge Will Not Set Off Blast for "Holing Through"—Builder of East River Tubes.

Clifford Milburn Holland, chief engineer in charge of the construction of the Hudson River tunnel between New York and New Jersey, probably the highest authority in America on the building under water tunnels, died yesterday morning of heart disease in Battle Creek, Michigan. His death is attributed by those familiar with his tremendous labors of the last five years, in large part at least, to the strain of the task on which he was engaged. He suffered a nervous breakdown three weeks ago and went to Battle Creek for a rest. The resolution of the Tunnel Commission granting him a month's vacation with full pay, bore a preamble referring to "his continuous devotion, night and day, during the past five years," to the great progress made, the difficult problems that he had overcome.

Soon after the news of his death reached here the announcement was made by Chairman Voettger of the New Jersey Tunnel Commission and by Vice Chairman Bloomingdale of the New York Commission that the celebration planned for Wednesday night had been canceled. President Coolidge was to have touched a button in Washington setting off the final blast, completing the process of "holing through." The work will go on, the "holing through" will take place, but there will be no celebration of the event, out of respect for the man who is most responsible for the successful end of this important stage of the enterprise. General George E. Dyer, Chairman of the New York Commission, now at sea on the Homeric, due here Thursday, was advised by wireless of Mr. Holland's death.

It is said that Clifford M. Holland started working at tunnels the morning after he received his degree of Bachelor of Science from Harvard University in June, 1906. And ever since, for eighteen years, he has been building or helping build tubes under the rivers about Manhattan Island. He was only 41 years old, having been born March 13, 1883, at Somerset, Mass.

GEN. HALDEMAN DIES AFTER SEEING RACES

Former Editor of Louisville Courier Journal Stricken at Churchill Downs.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 27.—General William B. Haldeman, Commander-in-Chief of the Confederate Veterans since April, 1923, died late today at a hospital at Churchill Downs, where he was taken immediately after being stricken while watching the races. General Haldeman was 78 years old, and at one time was part owner of The Courier-Journal and Louisville Times.

General William Birch Haldeman, soldier, editor and former Democratic National Committeeman, was born in Louisville, Ky., July 27, 1846, the son of Walter N. Haldeman, founder of The Louisville Courier-Journal. Exiled with his father during the Civil War, he fought for the South, but after the war returned to the city of his birth.

At the outbreak of the conflict the elder Haldeman was editor and publisher of The Journal. On account of his Southern sympathies his paper was suppressed. The son succeeded in reaching the Southern lines and was commissioned an ensign in the Confederate Navy. He soon decided life in the field offered more excitement than on board a gunboat, so resigned to join the famous Orphan's Brigade, with which he fought throughout the war.

With the coming of peace the Haldemans, father and son, returned to Louisville and revived The Journal. Young Haldeman left a year later to attend college and on his return began his career as editor of the weekly edition of The Courier-Journal, which had been formed by the consolidation of The Journal and Courier and the absorption of The Democrat. Later it became a daily, and in May, 1884, The Times, an afternoon edition, was added to the property. Mr. Haldeman became editor, after the retirement of his father and with his brother, Bruce Haldeman, was principal owner of the property, from which he amassed a fortune.

Although politics was General Haldeman's chief interest, he repeatedly declined public office, it is said, with three exceptions. Through his interest in racing he accepted appointment to the State Racing Commission, and because of his military service was made Adjutant General of Kentucky. The third office was that of Democratic National Committeeman.

It was said that he never missed a reunion of Confederate Veterans. As commander of the Veterans' Association of the Orphan Brigade and Major General in command of the Kentucky Division, United Confederate Veterans, he was widely known through the South.

General Haldeman married Miss Lizzie R. Offutt of Shelbyville, Ky., and to them were born four children, of whom Mrs. Clara Bruce Bonnie of Evansville and Mrs. Anne Espenhain of Milwaukee survive.

MRS. PESHE URDANG DIES AT 114 YEARS

Celebrated Her Birthday Five Weeks Ago—Love Her Philosophy of Life.

Mrs. Peshe Malke Urdang, who celebrated her 114th birthday with a party in her room at the Harlem Home of the Daughters of Israel, 32 East 119th Street, five weeks ago, died yesterday morning. To the other inmates of the institution, wrinkled and stooped, her passing away was accepted as the will of God. They knew they would miss her humor and philosophy, but remembered, too, that she had gone far beyond the "three score years and ten" which is recognized by the Bible as a full life.

The spirit of youth she displayed on her last birthday never deserted her. Although she had remained in bed because of weakness, she never lost consciousness and, until Sunday night, frequently spoke of her happiness. When, on Sunday night, she could no longer speak, she smiled her thanks for some milk her nurse gave her. She had been at the home for six years and was the oldest inmate. The next in line is 103 years old.

When, at her birthday party, she was asked what she would have desired most on her 114th birthday, Mrs. Urdang winked her eyes and answered: "A husband, young." She added: "When a woman loses her husband she has nothing. I still believe that love is the most important thing in life. Happiness is not easy, but for true contentment I advise young women to marry wisely and for love alone and not for worldly wealth."

As for her, she married a poor man, whom she loved, and never regretted it.

Dr. Alfred Russell Starr.

Dr. Alfred Russell Starr, Dean of the New York College of Dentistry, died yesterday at his residence, 10 East Ninety-second Street. He was formerly President of the Alumni Association of the college. Services will be held at the First Presbyterian Church, Fifth Avenue and Eleventh Street, at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

THE SCREEN

By MORDAUNT HALL.

Nazimova Returns.

"MADONNA OF THE STREETS," with Milton Sills, Nazimova, Claude Gillingwater, Courtenay Foote, Tom Kennedy, John T. Murray, Vivian Oakland, Harold Goodwin, Rose Gore, May Bell Carr, Herbert Prior, Fred Kelsey, George Irving; overture, "Tannhäuser." At the Piccadilly.

Alla Nazimova, whose last appearance on the screen was in the film version of Oscar Wilde's "Salome," is to be seen this week at the Piccadilly in "Madonna of the Streets," which was adapted from W. B. Maxwell's novel "The Ragged Messenger." The scenes in this picture are laid for the most part in Limehouse, but except for the information imparted by the captions nobody who knows anything about London's Chinatown would recognize it in this film.

It would be interesting to hear what Thomas Burke would have to say about such a picturization of the squalid district which inspired so many of his clever yarns. There are mounted policemen with caps instead of helmets, and Hollywood colloquialisms are spattered throughout the captions Anglicised. If we had been told that the narrative was centred in the old Bowery, it would have appeared much more fitting.

Fidelity to atmosphere is always a great help in making for the success of a picture, but in this effort Edwin Carewe, the director, has given his own idea of what a Cockney should look like, and so far as the scenes are concerned they really might be almost anywhere.

Milton Sills supports Mme. Nazimova in this melodrama. His actions and facial agony are reminiscent of his work in "The Faith Healer." In such parts he employs strange gestures coupled with continual frowning. He has a habit of sweeping away thoughts with his right arm, which looks at first as if he were about to deliver a blow. This is acceptable when he is emphasizing a point in a discussion with men, but when he does it while on bended knees at the bedside of the woman who is supposed to be at the point of death, it is quite a shock.

Not since he was stoned in "The Faith Healer," has Mr. Sills had to deal with such a distressing rôle. He is chased by Limehouse toughs, who resent his preaching because they know that he has inherited great wealth, in spite of the fact that he is spending it all to aid the sick and the poor.

Mr. Sills impersonates John Morton, a clergyman whose outburst against smart society prompts Lord Patrington (Claude Gillingwater) to ask for his resignation from the fashionable church. He therefore goes to Limehouse to work among the poor, and accidentally encounters Mary Carlson, who is posing as Mary Ainsleigh. She was an intimate friend of Morton's mother, and hears, after her marriage to Morton, that this rich man had left all his money to Morton without mentioning her in his will. It develops therefore that she really sought to marry Morton, so as to benefit by his chance of inheriting the millions. She had not calculated on Morton wanting to devote all the money to the poor, which causes a quarrel, during which Morton does not look as loving or as beneficent as is his wont when preaching to the great throngs.

There are the usual subtitles in this production, always following a movement of the lips of one character or the other. One gathers that although the clergyman's life is rough and stormy, in the end the usual calm will come.

In most of the sequences Nazimova looks quite well. She indulges in too much make-up, and therefore the long close-ups are not in her favor, but her acting is natural and effective, and the chances are that if the story had been handled by a director more familiar with the locale it could have been improved upon. Another weakness of this picture is the obvious comedy, which is frequently so absurd that it causes a frown rather than a smile.

ALBERT J. HATCH DIES AT 83.

Oldest Active Member of New York Stock Exchange.

GERMAN CABLE FOR OUR USE

Emden-Azores Line Gives Rights to Commercial and Western Union.

BERLIN, Oct. 27.—German financial interests who are financing the German-Atlantic Cable Company have perfected arrangements whereby the Emden-Azores cable will be placed at the joint disposal of the Commercial Cable Company and the Western Union.

Berlin dispatches recently announced that the German-Atlantic, the German-South American and the East European Telegraph Companies would be merged into one company and that the new concern would carry out the construction of a cable from Emden to the Azores. It was the intention to connect this with a cable from New York to the Azores.

Clarence H. Mackay, President of the Commercial Cable Company, announced a few days ago on his return from Europe, that he had completed negotiations for the laying of a new transatlantic cable from Germany to the United States by way of the Azores. The section from New York would belong to the Commercial and that from the Azores to Germany to the German company. He added, however, that they would be connected automatically at the Azores and made a continuous circuit. Preliminary work was to begin at once.

From the Founder's Writings

The Indian Summer Glories Have Come

The trees bare their heads and the Autumn winds weave their wreaths of brown-and-gold to lay them softly on mother earth for the bounties she gave the past year.

The women and boys gather the red and yellow apples to store them for the Winter and the men whistle gleefully as they husk the corn.

Contentful peace settles and spreads over the land like unto the Indian Summer haze that fills the air.

The same old sun shines upon us, but its warmth doesn't warm when the breath of Winter comes.

Our wide doors throng with troops of inquirers and buyers of Winter supplies, for which we are prepared liberally.

Welcome and plentifulness here for everybody.

An Exquisite Pot-Pourri

A delightful blending of rose leaves and many other flowers from lovely English Gardens—also flowers from Sunny Spain—and delicious spices from South America.

This happy combination is the result of an Englishman's painstaking efforts covering a period of three years.

The flowers were dried in the sun, but between layers of sand so that the flowers would retain their beautiful natural colors.

This Pot-Pourri may be purchased in a new way—by the ounce—so that you may get just enough for your bowl or jar. 25c an ounce.

Au Quatrième

A Fascinating New Collection of

Lamp Shades & Cushions

Au Quatrième has never opened its season with a more interesting and varied collection of lamp shades and cushions of types decoratively congruous with every sort of room and usage. The cushions range in size and character from very large and simple ones for the deep canapé to small elbow-cushions for the chaise longue, and the shades are equally diverse in treatment.

Old Chintzes, Brocades and Modern Imported Materials

Some of the most decorative of the cushions have been made of taffeta or brocade combined with strips or squares of old needlework. For example a pair of cylindrical ones of negre taffeta with bands of needlework flowers in a vif rose. There is an exceedingly lovely pair with ovals of old needlepoint, and numbers of wholly charming ones, of every possible size and shape, made of pieces of old taffeta, damask chintze or toile, and put together with ribbons, squares of linen and colored tapes in a host of ingenious and engaging fashions. There are also cushions of modern materials—lames, brocades, damasks, velvets, corded silks and printed linens all imported from Paris, and these, too, like the others, of original and very beautiful designs by no means to be found elsewhere.

Very lovely coverlets of quilted silk and taffeta also form a part of this collection.

Stretched Silk Lamp Shades

The silks are imported from Paris and the shades especially made after carefully studied proportions and designs. The shapes, the exquisitely modulated colors, and the interesting new treatments of the ombre and lame ribbons used in these shades are all admirably distinguished from the standpoint of discrimination and taste.

Another Great Purchase of

Floor and Bridge Lamps

$14.50 to $35

For the $20 to $45 Grades

The beautiful new lamps introduced by Wanamaker's in September and since taken into thousands of New York homes. They are hand carved, in modern and modified Period designs, some definitely Jacobean, with gracefully twisted standards, others suggesting the Italian Renaissance, decorated with hand-carved acanthus leaves. All are beautifully finished in the new high-lighted antique walnut. For every floor lamp a bridge lamp to match has been designed.

Decorative brass finials top most lamps. Each complete with two bulbs, silk cord and attachment plug. Second Gallery, New Building

Another Emergency Clearaway of

Exchanged Upright Pianos $95 Up

MASON & HAMLIN — HAINES BROS. — HARDMAN
EMERSON — CHICKERING — LINDEMAN
STEINWAY

Pianos that have come to us from homes of culture and refinement in part exchange for grand pianos and for the re-enacting Ampico. These are the instruments customarily gathered for our semi-yearly sales, but building operations during the expanding of Wanamaker's now in progress make it necessary to gain floor space by offering this entire group at extra savings for immediate clearaway.

And such fine pianos they are! All are instruments of famous makes. All come from homes where music lives and is loved—where instruments of music are given the best of care. And all are reconditioned and tuned in the Wanamaker factory, and guaranteed satisfactory in tone and action. Many so beautifully voiced and finished they cannot be told from new pianos.

ANOTHER MAN DIES FROM INSANITY GAS

Eight Other Standard Oil Workers Suffering From Poison Said to Be Tetra-Ethyl Lead.

EXPERT ISSUES A WARNING

Dr. Yandell Henderson Sees Menace to Public in Use of Lead in Gasoline.

FEARS ITS USE IN AUTOS

Company Issues Statement Denying Negligence—All Laboratory Employes to Be Examined.

The second death from insanity-producing gas at the Standard Oil plant at Elizabeth, N. J., was reported yesterday. The victim was Walter Dymock, who died violently insane at the Reconstruction Hospital in this city, to which he had been removed from Elizabeth. His symptoms were identical with those of Ernest Oelgert, who died of the deadly gas on Saturday.

A total of eight patients were under treatment at the Reconstruction Hospital, all more or less deranged from the fumes which proved to have such a mysterious effect on the brain and nervous system.

Charles Norris, Chief Medical Examiner here, said he suspected from the symptoms that death had been caused by tetra-ethyl lead, but that the autopsy had revealed no evidence as yet. He said the detection of deaths from lead gas was one of the most difficult kinds of biological chemistry and that it might require four or five weeks to establish the agent which had produced death.

Dr. Yandell Henderson, Professor of Applied Physiology at Yale, and one of the greatest authorities on the action of gases on the human body, said the symptoms from which the gas victims had suffered made it evident that the poison had been tetra-ethyl lead. He said the Standard Oil Company was selling gasoline containing this substance in some States, and that he regarded it as one of the greatest menaces to life, health and reason, because of the insidious character of the gas.

No high Standard Oil official could be found last night to reply in his own name to Dr. Henderson's charge, but a representative of the company, who would not be quoted by name, characterized Dr. Henderson's accusation as "bunk." He said it was true that the Standard Oil had used a lead preparation to increase the efficiency of gasoline, but that careful tests had shown it to be safe in such dilution as it could reach the air.

"It has been known for several years," Dr. Henderson said, "that the mixture of tetra-ethyl lead produces this effect. The General Motors Company, two years ago, asked me to make a report on the substance. I reported that it was exceedingly dangerous to life and health, and that it would be criminal to impose so great a hazard on the general public unless prolonged experiments showed that in some form the product might be made absolutely safe.

Poison Attacks Brain and Nerves.

"It produces the most dangerous form of lead poisoning. By being volatilized, the lead is introduced quickly into the blood through the lungs and makes its attack on the brain and nerves. Those who have suffered from mania as a result of breathing the gas in this laboratory have had gas poisoning in its most acute form."

"Are they likely to recover completely?" Dr. Henderson was asked.

"There are not," he said. "They may recover, but in all probability they have suffered permanent damage."

Dr. Henderson said that milder cases of lead poisoning lead to paralysis and other severe symptoms, and breathers of small amounts might suffer from later symptoms.

"This is one of the most dangerous things in the country today," he said, "and although this is the first case that has become widely known, there have been several other similar outbreaks of the gas mania elsewhere. There was such an outbreak in a plant in New York State recently. I have private information on that subject which I am not at liberty to disclose.

"I know from good information that the Standard Oil Company, while it had sold none of this lead-treated gasoline in New York State has sold it in other States. In my opinion, cities like New York City should take energetic measures to protect themselves against the danger which is involved in this.

"If an automobile from another State using this gas should have engine trouble along Fifth Avenue and release a quantity of gas with the lead mixture, it would be likely to cause gas poisoning and mania to persons along the avenue. If gas of this kind were released in a garage, it probably would have disastrous results on those who breathed it.

"The gas has a slight odor, but it is not sufficient to warn the breather that the fumes are dangerous. As the symptoms do not occur immediately, he does not know his danger and the damage may take place later.

"During the investigation of this substance a number of investigators, chemists and others, have been poisoned. I regard it as a matter of vital importance that the health authorities of New York City should protect themselves in this matter without delay."

Dr. Norris said he was cognizant of the danger pointed out by Professor Henderson and that steps were being taken to meet it.

"Dr. Henderson is one of the greatest authorities on this subject and I believe that what he says is correct," said Dr. Norris. "Within the last six weeks I have been warned that there is a menace of this kind. So far as we have been able to ascertain, no automobiles burning gasoline containing this lead have entered New York City.

"I have been informed that they have been putting on the market in some places a gasoline containing about 5 per cent. of lead and that, in my opinion, is not a safe product, especially in this city, in which such quantities of gas are discharged into the air from automobiles all the time."

Five Patients Doing Well.

Dr. Norris said he would call on the Standard Oil Company to furnish all possible information bearing on the cause of death of the man who died in this city.

"But prosecutors and others who may want chemical proof of the cause of death will have to wait possibly a month because of the extreme complexity of the chemical analysis necessary to establish lead gas poisoning."

Dr. C. C. Pilat, house surgeon at the Reconstruction Hospital, said five gas sufferers still were under treatment there.

"They are all doing nicely," he said, "and our expectation is that they will all recover. For the most part they are rational, but they still have fits of insanity. This is a new disease and there is no known treatment for it. The symptoms bear a closer resemblance to delirium tremens than do anything else."

Prosecutor A. J. David of Elizabeth continued his investigation to discover whether there had been any criminal negligence.

"I have found out one thing," he said, "and that is that these deaths took place not in the course of experiments set in the course of manufacture. The Standard Oil Company at this plant is mixing other chemicals with gasoline and putting it on the market to increase the efficiency of the gasoline. This is going on in the course of regular production, not experiment."

Whether the gasoline thus treated was being sold in New Jersey has not been established.

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey denied that it had been guilty of negligence in a statement issued from the main office at 26 Broadway yesterday. This statement follows:

"For several years past the development department of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, under the guidance of the foremost chemists and engineers obtainable, has been engaged in an effort to find a substance which could be successfully used with straight gasoline to overcome certain inherent difficulties of motor car operation. When such a substance was discovered by an outside chemist working along similar lines the development department became interested in the possibilities of its manufacture in commercial quantities. A temporary laboratory was equipped in the research building at the Bayway plant and work was begun there about Aug. 1.

"It was planned to use these quarters for six months only, by the end of which time it was expected that enough would have been learned about the process to warrant the erection of a permanent building specially designed and equipped for commercial production. It had been tentatively decided to erect such a building at Chicago if the experimental work going on at Bayway indicated a successful solution of some unusual manufacturing problems.

"As in the production of benzol, nitroglycerine and certain other chemical substances, the manufacture of the new fluid involves certain dangers. Against these every precaution was taken by the development department. The foremost authority on occupational diseases, acting as medical consultant of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey cooperated with the company's medical department and with the local physicians at the Bayway plant to make the work safe. The doctors arranged for frequent examinations of all those who worked in the laboratory and kept a sharp lookout for symptoms peculiar to gas poisoning. When minor illnesses arose from time to time, the men affected were at once transferred to other work.

Laboratory Ordered Closed.

"On Saturday morning five employes who had been under medical care became seriously ill. The medical department immediately closed the laboratory and ordered that no more men be allowed to work there pending the conclusion of an investigation of the cause of the illness. The patients were sent to the Reconstruction Hospital in New York City to give them the best possible attention. One of the peculiarities of this form of poisoning is that certain men appear to be immune while working alongside others who have become ill. Another is that the cumulative effect of unsuspected exposure to fumes has been impossible of detection until illness sets in.

"As in other big industries, the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey has kept a large force of physicists and chemists employed in experimental studies, some of which are necessarily attended with danger. For this reason it has given a great deal of attention to safety measures and no expense has been spared to safeguard employes against illness or accidents. That such an accident as these deaths occurred in spite of precautions is greatly deplored by the company."

It was also announced that the increased efficiency of this newly invented gasoline combination made it possible for automotive engineers to produce a more powerful engine than any yet in use, and that the first engine of this new engine on the market have advanced simultaneously with the experiment on the lead-gasoline.

The lead is said to lessen the speed of gas combustion, doing away with "knocking" and decreasing carbon deposits. It was said the new motor being made to handle the lead-gasoline could obtain great power from this slow-exploding substance, but would hammer itself to pieces if run on ordinary gasoline.

Forty-odd men were engaged in the experimentation, consisting of three shifts of fifteen men each. All were subjected to the same influences from the new gas. Those that took ill manifested different symptoms, but in general they were first an insomnia, then general restlessness, lowered blood pressure, and finally brain congestion. In some instances the illness came rapidly; in others it was of cumulative character, but progressed so gradually as to escape detection. The medical specialists in charge did not become alarmed until last Thursday, and then believed they had the strange malady well in hand until last Saturday, when a sudden turn took one man's life.

Drs. Benno and Thompson said two physicians were on the ground all the time at the Elizabeth plant, including a staff of nurses, an emergency hospital, and an ambulance service hastening patients on occasion either to the city hospital of Elizabeth or to New York hospitals. Each of the forty-five men employed was watched closely for changes in blood pressure, or other symptoms. The new form of poisoning, they said, had, so far as they could now tell, no antidote, and pending an autopsy it would be impossible to tell exactly what was the cause of death in two instances and of illness in seven others.

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey has had in effect for many years an employe welfare plan calling for annuities, benefits and insurance for persons injured or killed while in the company's service. The families of the two men who died, it was said, would consequently be cared for and no money would be spared in treating the patients now in hospital.

The family of William McSwiney, one of the victims at Reconstruction Hospital, who has been in a straitjacket, were notified to come to the hospital yesterday because there was danger of a fatal termination, but it was later reported that he was improved.

The Standard Oil's development laboratory, where the poisoning occurred, continued closed.

40 Men to Be Examined.

Forty men, all who had been in any way exposed to the "looney gas," were ordered to take a physical examination at the plant today. It was reported that the medical examiners suspected a slight degree of poisoning in several cases. It was reported that many others were to be sent to Reconstruction Hospital for treatment, but this was denied.

Dr. C. O. Johns, Director of the development laboratory, was asked about a report that six rats and six pigeons used to test the gas when the laboratory was opened had all died.

"I don't know about that," he said.

Bernard Rodgers of 442 Cherry Street, Elizabeth, quit work in the laboratory three weeks ago because of illness and has since been confined to bed at his home. Members of his family said today he had shown no improvement and that he continually complains that he is being persecuted and asks them to "drive that band of soldiers away."

Jury Rules Ship Company Sent Crew to Certain Death

The jury that heard the evidence in the suit of Mrs. Adelaide C. Nelson against Charles W. Morse, his son Benjamin W. and Captain Mark L. Gilbert for $100,000 for the loss of her son, Lawrence, gave the plaintiff a verdict yesterday for $20,000. Morse and his codefendants controlled the United States Steamship Company, which owned the steamship Frederick, which sank in midocean in January, 1916, while en route for Russia with a mixed cargo. All the members of the crew were lost.

The complaint alleged that the defendants knew the Frederick was unseaworthy, and that she was bought for $5,000 when she had been practically abandoned as worthless. A year after the vessel disappeared a bottle was found on the sands of one of the Orkney Islands which contained messages from several of the crew. The messages indicated that there was no hope of the vessel ever being able to reach any port, and that those on board had given up hope of rescue. Silas Blake Axtell was counsel for the plaintiff. An appeal will be taken.

FOSDICK TO PREACH UNTIL NEXT APRIL

Says He Does Not Want to Sever Connection During the Church Year.

INSISTS UPON A DATE

Effort Being Made by "Modernists" to Renew the Contract With Preacher.

The Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, a Baptist, whose resignation as associate minister of the First Presbyterian Church, Fifth Avenue and Eleventh Street, was "reluctantly" accepted at a special meeting of that congregation held last Wednesday evening, has accepted the invitation of the First Church to continue to preach Sunday mornings after his resignation takes effect. Dr. Fosdick, however, has set the end of next March as the date beyond which under present circumstances he will not preach in the First Church.

Dr. Fosdick's Letter.

Dr. Fosdick made known his qualified acceptance of the invitation to preach Sunday mornings in the First Church for the next five months by sending under the date of yesterday the following letter to Henry N. Tifft, a lawyer, of 15 William Street, who is the clerk of the Session of the First Church:

Mr. Henry N. Tifft, Clerk of Session,
First Presbyterian Church, New York, N. Y.:

My dear Mr. Tifft—The letter sent me by vote of the congregation of the First Presbyterian Church is before me, and in answer I must first of all express my affectionate gratitude for its personal good-will to me and for the approval of my ministry which it contains. I should be very insensitive if I were not deeply moved by this cordial defense, coming, as it does, from those who for over five years have intimately known me and shared my labors.

That you are seeking by lawful means within the Presbyterian denomination to solve the problem which confronts you, and that, therefore, you accept my resignation as Associate Minister seems to me the only right and wise course to pursue. I should not have consented to be involved in any other method of procedure. Indeed, for this very reason I must unqualify my acceptance of your new proposal which suggests that I should still make it my custom to occupy the pulpit of your church on Sunday mornings.

That you have the right to extend this new invitation I have no doubt. That I appreciate deeply the good-will which prompts you to extend it goes without saying. Nevertheless, it is obvious that the General Assembly in its action last May intended that I either become a formally installed Presbyterian clergyman or else cease to occupy your pulpit. You say that when the next Assembly is informed of your action and fully informed of all the facts you are sure that it will be in sympathy with what you have done. This venture of faith it is your right to make and any endeavor toward its realization is your privilege and your responsibility. But, until such time as your hope has been realized, we surely ought not to take for granted what has not yet come to pass.

In considering your new proposal, therefore, I must insist that a date be set when my relationships with the church, even as casual supply, shall come to an end. For the sake of definiteness, I name the end of March, 1925, the close of the present church year, as a date beyond which, under present circumstances, I must not be present to preach in your church. I name that date as the furthest possible extension of time to which I can consent, and I suggest that it may seem wise to your leaders to fix a date even nearer at hand.

Opposes Disarrangement.

This acceptance of your new invitation, with the qualification which I have named, I consent to because I cannot imagine any one except a man of ill-will, who would demand the abrupt disarrangement of your work in the midst of the church year. I am too deeply indebted to you, too affectionately connected for years past, too vitally interested in the fortunes of your great organization not to wish to help you in every honorable and wise way that I can. Therefore, I will occupy your pulpit when I am able on Sunday mornings after my resignation as associate minister takes effect, which should be very soon, but I must, however regretfully, terminate even this new arrangement on or before the close of the church year.

I shall have opportunity on other occasions than this letter affords to express my loyal interest in the church and my good wishes to you all. You have been my unfailing friends, and never more manifestly so than in this present outspoken defense of my ministry and public adherence to the aims which we together have been endeavoring to serve. Fraternally yours,

HARRY EMERSON FOSDICK.

The Presbytery of New York will hold its Spring meeting the first Monday in April, and at that time will elect its Commissioners to the General Assembly. It is rumored that already the Modernists are starting a movement to elect a solid delegation of ministerial and lay "Modernists." This is in order that they may urge the Assembly to rescind its action of last May regarding Dr. Fosdick and permit the First Church to renew its contract with Dr. Fosdick to be its permanent special preacher, in spite of the fact that, because his conscience would not let him accept the set creed of Presbyterianism, he declined to seek entrance into the Presbyterian fold.

POPE LEO ENTOMBED IN PERMANENT VAULT

Simple but Impressive Ceremony Marks Services in St. John Lateran Basilica.

ROME, Oct. 27 (Associated Press).—The body of Pope Leo XIII, tonight reposed in its final resting place. The ceremonies of entombment took place this morning in the Basilica of St. John Lateran, and were carried out with solemnity but with the utmost simplicity.

The entire Diplomatic Corps accredited to the Vatican attended in full uniform. The service was performed for the first time outside the Vatican since 1870. Other units of the Papal Guard also served, but they were dressed in civilian clothes. Cardinal Pompili, acting both in the capacity of an archpriest of St. John and Papal Vicar General, officiated.

After the requiem mass, which was attended by most of the members of the Sacred College in Rome, workmen placed Pope Leo's casket into a niche in the wall of the nave which had already been prepared. The coffin bore only a simple inscription in Latin giving the name and the dates of birth and death. The marble slab covering the aperture to the tomb was inscribed simply with "Leo XIII."

The body of Leo XIII was recently moved from its provisional tomb in St. Peter's to the Basilica of St. John Lateran. Pope Leo died in 1903. Since then the body had remained in St. Peter's.

The present Pontiff, Pius XI., desired that the body should be in the tomb at St. John Lateran upon the celebration of the sixteenth centenary of the dedication of the great Basilica, in November.

Marx Opens Spirited Fight on Nationalists; Hamburg Election Results Cheer Republicans

Copyright, 1924, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Oct. 27.—The result of local elections held in Hamburg yesterday is held to augur well for success of the Republican parties at the coming Reichstag election. At the Reichstag elections on May 4 last the Nationalist Party lost more than 30,000 votes, Ludendorff's Extremists 14,000 (more than half) and the Communists about 40,000.

Already the campaign is assuming a very heated character, and if collisions between the black, red and gold and black, white and red forces in Potsdam last night at a Republican mass meeting did not develop into regular battles it was simply because the black, white and red bands were afraid of the black, red and gold forces and contented themselves with throwing malodorous bombs from a distance.

Chancellor Marx opened the Centrists' campaign today with a speech here that finds general approval in Republican circles and bitter criticism in the reactionary organs. Among other things the Chancellor said:

"If we strive to have the Versailles self-confession of war-guilt annuled we do so simply for moral reasons. It would be fatal self-delusion to believe that if we succeeded in having that self-confession annuled we should be liberated from the obligations of the Versailles Treaty, as many of our opponents in the reactionary camp seem to think."

He made it clear that after the attitude the Nationalists assumed during the recent crisis it was unthinkable that the Centrists, who had every reason to believe in a Republican victory, would ever ally themselves with reactionaries.

While Chancellor Marx and his party were leaving no doubt where they stood, Foreign Minister Stresemann told the people at Muehlhausen, Thuringia, that he firmly believed in a government of the middle parties only. In another speech at another place he emphasized that of course this government of the middle parties must strive with all its might to induce the "sensible elements" among the Monarchists to join a government supporting itself parties.

Die Welt, commenting on this vacillating attitude says: "If the Junkers fire Stresemann out of the front door he returns through the back door."

Theodore Wolf, in the Tageblatt, comments that Dr. Stresemann forgets in his speeches that he is the Federal Foreign Minister.

"If it were not for that it would not matter much what Stresemann says," he goes on. "He wants his coalition of reactionaries without considering whether such a government would not entirely spoil the good progress we have recently made in our relations with foreign powers. We should like to ask Stresemann if a single German Ambassador or Minister in any of the great capitals has advised him that a coalition or reactionaries in the Government will advance German interests. The word 'Republic' has never passed his lips in public and with a gesture of contempt he has thrown down the gauntlet to the banner of black, red and gold."

FINANCE EXPERTS START WORK IN PARIS

Preparing Ground for Ministers, Who Will Decide Question of Dividing Reparations.

AMERICAN CASE A PROBLEM

Failure to Adhere to London Protocol Is Held to Prejudice Claims of This Country.

Copyright, 1924, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 27—The preliminary conference for a division of the receipts from the Ruhr occupation and proportional distribution of the proceeds of the Dawes reparation plan held its first meeting at the Ministry of Finance today. Colonel James A. Logan Jr., the American unofficial representative on the Reparation Commission, is officially looking after American interests in the conference.

The first taken up was examination of the Ruhr balance sheet. That alone is a formidable task, for the figures are stated to be in a very confused shape.

In his speech before the Senate on Aug. 26 former Premier Poincaré announced that the profits from Ruhr operation during the first four months of this year were 1,267,000,000 francs. This figure did not take any account of the cost of operation during 1923, which even M. Poincaré admitted was likely to exceed the receipts.

Premier Herriot, the same day, declared that M. Poincaré's figures did not at all correspond with those he had in his possession. These showed total receipts from exploitation of the Ruhr to be 3,162,000,000 francs. What the expenses of France and Belgium had been the Premier did not state.

The question for the present conference to decide is, first, the amount of total costs and total revenues; second, who is to bear the costs and who share the revenues, and, third, whether these revenues are to be entirely devoted to meeting the costs in so far as they can do so or whether they are to be accounted as reparation payments and allocated according to the established schedule, taking account of Belgian priority and American priority for the costs of the army of occupation.

Owing to the British elections and the amount of preparatory work to be done the present conference is only preliminary. It will be well into next month or even later before the Finance Ministers plus the American representative can begin the debate on the schedule of distribution and on the big question of how the Wadsworth agreement for payment of American army costs is to be changed so as to provide for payments to America under the Dawes plan.

In regard to the sum owing for losses of American private citizens arising from the war, it is specifically laid down in the Dawes report, which was adopted by the Allies and Germany at the London conference, that the scheme should cover "all charges payable by Germany to the allied and associated powers for war costs"; but the fact that America has not signed the protocol of London undoubtedly prejudices the American case.

The French, burdened by their debt to America, may find themselves in the position to oppose a claim for such inclusion of American costs, but they are prepared to oppose any attempt to include the full American bill, either of army costs or personal loss, while they are convinced that payments from the Dawes plan will fall such a long way short of their own just and reasonable claims.

Writers to "Try" Enright.

A group of writers, critics and the like will "try" Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright at the University Club at luncheon on Thursday on the ground that the Commissioner, being the author of a new book called "Vultures of the Dark," stands accused of being an author and therefore must defend himself before the book makers of the State of New York. Subpoenas calling for attendance at the event, indicate that Irvin Cobb is at the bottom of the disturbance, his name being signed to them.

HERRIOT'S SUPPORT SEEN AS WAVERING

Socialists Said to Be Ambitious to Try Their Own Hand at Government.

DISSATISFIED WITH BUDGET

Pressure Brought Upon Deputies—Premier's Position Analagous to That of Prime Minister MacDonald.

Copyright, 1924, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 27.—There is every appearance of the beginning of a split in the ranks of Premier Herriot's supporters. Just as Prime Minister MacDonald was able to hold office during nine months in England with the tacit support of the Liberals, M. Herriot holds office here only because of Socialist support. But there are signs that this support is weakening.

The budget which M. Clementel is proposing does not meet with the entire approval of the Socialists. Those of their number who are members of the Finance Committee of the Chamber have already forced the acceptance of certain measures of which M. Clementel himself did not approve. He is trying to tackle his task as a business man with an eye to the possibilities of the situation.

His Socialist colleagues are more concerned with the promises they made their electors last May. But the Minister is well aware that without the Socialist vote and the united force of the whole Left he will be unable to get a majority and hence will be compelled to make concessions which otherwise he would have resisted.

Pressure From Outside.

Now pressure is being brought from the outside on the Socialist Deputies to abandon or limit their support of the Radical Socialists, and there is danger that even the moderate men of the party may be forced to change their attitude toward the Government.

Though the Socialists are only the third largest single party in the Chamber, some of their number are ambitious to try their hand at forming a government including with them some of M. Herriot's Radical Socialists. They are unwilling to serve in the Radical Socialist government under M. Herriot, but they are prepared to allow the Radical Socialists to participate with them. Besides differences over the budget matter M. Herriot's slowness in the recognition of Russia and his ineffective efforts to lower the cost of living led to the gradual formation of this ambition.

The greatest danger in withdrawing their support is, from their point of view, that it might lead to the formation of a government even more to the Right than M. Herriot's now is. They are maneuvring hard to avoid such a possibility and until they see a way of avoiding that danger are unlikely, it is thought, to come out openly against the policy of tacit support.

Unless M. Clementel can have his budget ready for debate when the Chamber meets Nov. 4 there may be some dangerous days for the Government. Some Socialist federations in the country have during the week-end voted to continue support of the Government, but in Government circles it is today very fully realized that these expressions of approval were not unanimous and that they do not remove all danger of a sudden reverse during the first days of the session should the budget not be ready for immediate discussion and have been approved by then by the Socialists in the Finance Committee.

Herriot Eager for Russian Trade.

LYONS, Oct. 27.—France's need for the restoration and extension of trade relations with Germany and Russia was voiced by Premier Herriot in a speech last evening before a banquet of foreign trade councilors here. The time had come, said the Premier, to create anew international trade currents in which France should have her proper place.

"Negotiations for a commercial treaty with Germany had begun, and within a few days, if there were no untoward incident, the French would see the roads to the East reopened to them.

"For allow me to say personally," the Premier went on, "that it is well for us to think of buying in the East so as to be able to struggle against the unfavorable situation created by our constant buying in the West. I am partisan to buying in the East—buying cereals, wood and petroleum."

COUNTESS CLEARED; WELCOMED ASHORE

Charge of "Red" Activity Fails, and Wife of Count Karolyi Leaves Liner.

EXILED, ESTATES SEIZED

Visitor, Here to Lecture, Tells of Flight From Hungary—Guest of Well-Known Women.

Countess Catherine Karolyi, wife of Count Michael Karolyi, once President of Hungary, stepped ashore early yesterday, officially exonerated of Bolshevistic or other "Red" tendencies charged against her by S. Stanwood Menken, President of the National Security League.

In a shipboard examination, an agent of the Department of Justice convinced himself that the timid, slender Hungarian aristocrat had not arrived on the steamship George Washington to deliver lectures dangerous to American institutions. He so informed Inspector King of Immigration Commissioner Henry H. Curran's staff, and the Countess merely went through the ordinary routine of non-citizens entering America.

Greeted by the distinguished committee awaiting her, Countess Karolyi was guest at luncheon in the Metropolitan Club. Later, having called the charge against her "ridiculous," she traced agitation against her to propaganda because of the stand she and her husband took for the Allies in the war. Her own denial was supported by one expressing the view of the Reception Committee, signed by Charles P. Howland, Dr. Abraham Flexner, Charles C. Burlingham, R. Fulton Cutting and Raymond B. Fosdick.

Mr. Menken, who urged the deportation of the Countess in a statement issued on Sunday, supplemented his earlier charge with excerpts last night from the works of Miss Cecile Tormay, Hungarian author, who is President of the National Association of Hungarian Women. Mr. Menken, who said that he did not wish to get into a controversy with a wofan, decided, as he put it in his statement, to "omit detailed reference to the things I heard while in Budapest last year."

Countess Explains Plans.

"I was treated with the utmost courtesy in landing," Countess Karolyi said. "My passport was examined, and I was asked the usual questions as to why I was coming here and how long I planned to stay. I replied that I had been invited to deliver some lectures and that I would remain in America three months. There were no difficulties of any kind. There was no reason why there should be. It was a simple formality, courteously performed, and no objections were raised to my entering the country. Friends were waiting for me and I left with them.

"Perhaps I should say that my visit is a delayed one. My husband has been here three times, but this is my first trip to America. I planned it a year ago when Mr. Caldwell met me in London and suggested that I deliver a few lectures here. I agreed and applied for a passport. I was granted the necessary papers and the American State Department gave the necessary vise. At the last moment I postponed my visit.

"My passport was effective until September. Last August the American State Department canceled its vise and I was informed that its action was based upon the representations of the Hungarian Government, through its accredited Minister at Washington. Steps were taken at once to correct the wrong impression and it had been cleared at Washington and when the matters were placed before the State Department there was a complete change about and the vise was granted once more.

"That is typical of the petty prosecution to which my husband and myself are constantly subjected by the Hungarian Government. We are exiles. Our estates have been confiscated. We were driven from Italy. Efforts were made in England to prevent us from obtaining a permit of permanent domicile and then the State Department was matching British against Hungarian vise.

"Our troubles arise from our views, which were accentuated in the war. Both my husband and myself are liberal-minded. We hated the feudal system.

"In 1918, when the people saw they were beaten, they realized that my husband had seen clearly from the beginning. There was a great turning toward him and finally King Charles appointed him Prime Minister, in the hope that through this step he might save the Hapsburg dynasty. But it was too late. Within two weeks the people wanted a republic. King Charles fled. A republic was established. My husband was its first President. It has been said his Cabinet was a Socialist Cabinet. This is untrue. It was a Coalition Cabinet and three of its members were Socialists.

"But the country was in a turmoil. The Bolsheviki were trying to get into power. The food riots and many murders caused the arrest of Bela Kun and he was placed in prison to await trial. I think that is important to bear in mind when at this time they call us Bolsheviki. But the efforts of my husband to establish order were unsuccessful. The Hungarian soldiers returning from the war were very largely under the influence of Bolshevist propaganda. They were not satisfied with the democratic Government my husband was trying to work out. In March, 1919, the Bolsheviki began their uprising. They released Bela Kun from prison. They seized the Government. They established a Soviet State, and we fled.

Charges Against Karolyi.

"American people may be interested and perhaps impressed by the charges made against my husband by the present government in Hungary. They accused him for his pacifist activity. They accused him as responsible for the Constitution of the National Council. They accused him of issuing the decree of disarmament, and for having arranged the armistice with the Allies.

"In these matters my husband and I were one. I shared his views and joined in his activities. We fought feudalism and feudalism is fighting us. It will not let me stay or speak in Hungary. It seeks to prevent me from staying or speaking in Democratic America. They accuse me of coming here for political purposes. I come merely to tell of the very significant experience that I passed through and that I had a very little in making."

Countess Karolyi's first lecture will be in White Plains on Nov. 5. She will tell why she is an exile, and she will repeat the lecture on her first public appearance in New York on Nov. 8, at Town Hall.

"I wonder," said Robert J. Caldwell, who is a member of the Karolyi Committee, "whether Mr. Menken has met the gentle, timid Countess Karolyi from whom he fears such dire things. An opportunity is afforded by her appearance at Town Hall. The State Department and the Shipping Board did not seem to share the fears which the Italian Fascisti and Hungarian monarchists have inspired in Mr. Menken, and if the country can survive the shock until Mr. Menken can see the Countess for himself it is hoped he may change his mind."

Countess Karolyi will attend a dinner tonight at the Ambassador Hotel to be given by Mr. and Mrs. George Gordon Battle. Tomorrow she will be the luncheon guest of Mrs. T. C. Desmond at the Plaza and will be entertained by Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw, R. Fulton Cutting and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ewings Ely.

Milk to Go Up Another Cent A Quart on First of Month

On Nov. 1 the price of milk to consumers will be advanced another cent a quart.

This announcement was made yesterday by John J. Fitzpatrick, manager of the Borden's Farm Products Company. He said that dairymen had boosted the price and the company had been compelled to pass the increase along. The announcement said:

"The price of milk, effective Nov. 1, to the public residing in Manhattan, Bronx, Kings and Queens will be: Grade B, bottled, 15 cents a quart; Grade A, bottled, 18 cents a quart. The price of pints, cream and certified milk will remain unchanged."

ANGLO-TURK CRISIS TAKEN UP BY LEAGUE

Lord Parmoor and Fethi Bey Heard by Council in Session at Brussels.

IRAQ BOUNDARY THE ISSUE

Council Will Also Consider Dispute Between Greece and Turkey Over Exchange of Populations.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
Copyright, 1924, by The New York Times Company.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 27.—Lord Parmoor and Fethi Bey appeared to plead the cases of Great Britain and Turkey before the Council of the League of Nations, which met here in special session today to settle the Iraq boundary dispute between the two nations. Both read detailed statements.

Turkey took the new stand that she would accept and abide by the status quo of the frontier at the time of the Lausanne Treaty. This was by no means a concession, however. She is willing to accept that status quo, but Fethi Bey went on to explain that the frontier line Turkey is willing to accept is by no means the boundary Great Britain is arguing for. He asserted that the Iraq boundary in the Mosul district had been changed three times since the end of the war by Great Britain.

When Turkey signed the peace after the great war, he said, she believed the boundary of Iraq to be the boundary existing at the time of the Mudros armistice. The British General Marshall, however, advanced the line to include the localities in Mosul, the Kouy Sandjak, Erbily and Suleyman. Later by Article III. of the Treaty of Sèvres the line was again pushed forward to the northern limit of the Vilayet of Mosul and modified to pass south of Amadia. This boundary was marked on Map 2 annexed to the treaty.

Frontier Pushed Further North.

On Sept. 29 last Great Britain notified Turkey that the frontier was still further north. Articles in the London Times regarding the evacuation and reoccupation of Suleyman were quoted to show that it was not in British hands at the time the Lausanne Treaty was signed.

"In view of these facts, said Fethi Bey, Turkey was willing to accept the finding of the Council of the League whatever it may be, but it the finding fixes the status quo as that of July 24, 1923, then all the localities occupied by the British in Mosul after that date must be immediately evacuated and the conditions which existed at that date must be re-established.

The British case would seem to rest largely on the contention that a certain strip of land near the boundary, because it was not occupied militarily by Turkey, was "no man's land" and not under Turkish sovereignty. It is the occupation of and fighting on this territory which are responsible for the present session of the League Council. In Fethi Bey's memorandum mention is made of the British contention that a nation does not retain sovereignty over territory except by military occupation, and the idea is scouted.

The cabled report that Turkish troops, after invading this district on Sept. 14 this year, continued on into the mandated territory of Iraq. At the same time the British brief denies Turkish charges that British airplanes flew over Turkish territory. It says the planes only surveyed districts which the Turks were occupying unlawfully.

This contention is attacked by the Turks on the ground that the districts in question were not in the hands of the British in July last year.

After the briefs had been read Council adjourned till Wednesday, after requesting Hjalmar Branting, the Swedish member, to study the problem and submit a report with suggestions for a settlement of the controversy.

WOMAN AND 11 MEN GUILTY IN TARRING CASE

Maryland Judge Sentences Them to Jail for Attack on 20-Year-Old Girl.

FREDERICK, Md., Oct. 27.—Condemning in strong terms the conduct of the mob which last July tarred and feathered Dorothy Grandon, 20 years old, of Martinsburg, W. Va., Chief Judge Hammond Urner in Circuit Court here today imposed sentences upon one woman and eleven men, suspended sentence upon two and declared five other men not guilty. The woman sentenced was Mrs. Mary Shank, who pleaded guilty and confessed that in a jealous rage she tore the clothing from Miss Grandon and daubed her with tar and feathers. She was sentenced to nine months in Frederick County Jail.

Harry N. Leatherman of Myersville, where the assault took place, was sentenced to two years in the House of Correction. Mrs. Shank testified that Leatherman furnished her with the tar and feathers for the "tar party." A like sentence was imposed in the case of Arthur Rice.

Both these sentences were for rioting. The men were also convicted of tarring and feathering Miss Grandon.

Nine other men convicted of rioting were sentenced to one year in the House of Correction.

Prices realized by Swift & Company sales of carcass beef in New York City for week ending Saturday, October 25, on shipments sold out, ranged from 8.85 cents to 21.00 cents per pound, and averaged 11.67 cents per pound.—Adv.

FENG GATHERING AN ARMY

Japan Is Ready to Increase Its Force in China, but Will Not Take Sides.

TIENTSIN, Oct. 27 (Associated Press).—A force of 100 American marines was landed from the American cruiser Huron at Taku this morning and left immediately for Peking, 105 miles away. Rumors of developments at the capital are circulating everywhere, but reliable news cannot be obtained.

One persistent report was that Shensi Province troops were looting Tungchow, an important city on the Grand Canal, fifteen miles west of Peking.

Further reinforcements for Wu Pei-fu went through Tientsin today, coming by train direct from Chinwangtao, and others landed at Tangku from transports. All proceeded up the railway line toward Peking.

Admiral Sir A. C. Leveson of the British Navy, who was detained in Peking by the change in the Government and the subsequent interruption of communications, returned here by automobile this evening. Tomorrow he will rejoin H. M. S. Hawkins, his flagship.

PEKING, Oct. 27.—Part of the forces of Feng Yu-hsiang are at Langfang, halfway between Peking and Tientsin, and other troops are coming to his support by the Pukow-Hankow and Suiyuan railways. Feng evidently intends to defend himself against Wu Pei-fu, who is holding Tientsin and has posted troops at all approaches to the capital.

The train from Tientsin, guarded by international troops, arrived tonight, thus maintaining open communications as provided by the protocol of 1901.

Chang Backs Anfu Leader.

MUKDEN, Oct. 27 (Associated Press).—The independence of the three Eastern provinces will shortly be annulled, Chang Tso-lin, Manchurian war lord, is quoted as declaring in an interview.

Chang also recommended the deportation of Wu Pei-fu, military commander for the deposed President, Tsao Kun, and pledged himself to support the candidate for the Presidency of the former Anfu Premier, Tuan Chi-jui.

MUSIC

By OLIN DOWNES.

Beethoven Association.

The predominating factor of the Beethoven Association's opening program of the season last night in Aeolian Hall—a concert which assembled an exceptional number of distinguished performers—was the music of J. S. Bach. It is a striking fact that his composition should receive unprecedented attention in the course of a season which sees a Stravinsky at the height of his popularity in America, and that includes special attention, in many quarters, to ultra-modern works. This does not prove that Bach and no ultra-modern is immortal, any more than it proves that a love of modern music implies an understanding of Bach. But it does seem to indicate a heartening development of musical taste and breadth of appreciation hereabouts, with a public interested in the expressions of many composers.

Bach was the predominating factor last night of a concert devoted to the music of the three B's. This consort assembled an exceptional number of distinguished performers. It opened with the Brahms C minor piano quartet, played by Harold Bauer, pianist; Paul Kochanski and Albert Stoessel, violinists, and Felix Salmond, 'cellist. Fraser Gange, the accomplished baritone, then sang, with Mr. Kochanski and Harold Samuel, two arias from the sacred cantatas of Bach, the first, "Hier in meines Vater's Staette," from the cantata "Wo Gott der Herr"; the second, "Gleichewie die wilden Meereswellen," from the cantata, "Liebster Jesu, mein Verlangen." Next came Beethoven's sonata in G, Opus 29, for violin and piano, played by Messrs. Bauer and Kochanski, and finally the D major concerto for orchestra of strings, with solo piano, violin and flute. This concerto was conducted by Professor Auer. The solo parts were taken by Messrs. Samuel and Kochanski and George Barrere, flutist. Mr. Samuel receiving salvos of applause after the first movement, in which, among other tests of his powers, was the long and rich cadenza which is one of the distinctions of this work. The hall was packed for this concert and much enthusiasm was manifested throughout a long and substantial program.

Clara Clemens's Recital.

Clara Clemens opened a series of seven historical song recitals yesterday afternoon in Town Hall. Her first program consisted entirely of folk songs. These songs, of French, German, Swedish, Italian and Russian origin, had been well selected for their expression of racial musical characteristics and for their inherent simplicity and distinction. Furthermore, the majority of the arrangements had musicianly merit; they were seldom elaborate or in any way out of keeping with the songs.

The singer did her utmost to worthily interpret their meaning. She was heard to best advantage in such songs as the German love song and the "Necken's Polka." Unfortunately, however, Mme. Clemens continues to be embarrassed by a faulty manner of tone production. The audience listened cordially and applauded with friendly feeling.

Drive for Brooklyn Little Theatre.

A meeting in furtherance of the drive for the Brooklyn Little Theatre Fund will be held at the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce on Tuesday night, Nov. 11, with Otto H. Kahn as the principal speaker. The movement for a Brooklyn Little Theatre was launched last winter by Galli-Curci, who gave the proceeds of a concert at the Academy of Music.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"In Heidelberg," the musical version of "Old Heidelberg," opened last night in Atlantic City. It will come to New York in about five weeks.

"The Imported Wife," by Crane Wilbur, was produced in Newark last night by the Shuberts.

The production of "Louis the Fourteenth," in which Leon Errol will be starred, has been postponed for six weeks. In the meantime Errol will play his old role in a film version of "Sally."

Grace Moore will appear in the new "Music Box Revue."

"The Money Lender" was placed in rehearsal yesterday by Sam H. Harris. James Dale will have the leading role.

Six American players will sail on the France tomorrow to appear in "Just Married" in London. They are Vivian Martin, Lynne Overman, Dorothy Mortimer, Marcelle Carroll, Winifred Harris and Peter Davis.

"Ashes," now at the National Theatre, will be produced in Australia with Muriel Starr in the leading role.

Ruth Draper will give a program of monologues at the Neighborhood Playhouse on Sunday afternoon, Nov. 2.

Rosamond Pinchot will play the Madonna in "The Miracle" for the first time next Monday night. Maria Cherer-Bekeff will join the cast on Thursday night of this week, playing the Madonna.

"The Busybody" will return to the Bijou Theatre from the Times Square next Monday night.

I found myself with nothing to do of a Friday evening and so I went to the cinema, "The Ten Commandments." It is almost a year since its premiere, a few weeks short of the span of a twelve-month since hoarse voices sought to render the passing tribute to a director who evolved in this silent drama a message profound and stirring in its eloquence. I fancy when it has reached its second year I shall want to see it again, and that my grandson will find his interpretation of the Decalogue in its vivid and inspiring episodes. —Dimitri Stephon in "Town Topics"

THE PLAY

By STARK YOUNG.

Ethel Barrymore's Triumph.

THE SECOND MRS. TANQUERAY, a play in three acts by Sir Arthur Wing Pinero. Staged by Arthur Hopkins; settings by Clara Fargo Thomas. At the Cort Theatre.

Aubrey Tanqueray	Henry Dantell
Paula	Ethel Barrymore
Ellean	Helen Robbins
Cayley Drummle	Lionel Pape
Mrs. Cortelyon	Jane Wheatley
Captain Hugh Ardale	Geoffrey Saxild
Gordon Jayne, M. D.	Mortimer White
Frank Misquith, Q. C. M. P.	J. Colvil Dunn
Sir George Orreyed, Bart.	G. P. Huntley
Lady Orreyed	Margot Kelly
Morse	Harold Webster
Willis	Walter Howe
A Maid	Edna Peckham

The play presented by Arthur Hopkins last night at the Cort Theatre was the famous tragedy of "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," but the interest in the event rested in Ethel Barrymore. And certainly the many people who have felt for some time that Miss Barrymore possessed a power and a personality quality and distinction that had never quite got itself wholly expressed in her art, must last night have been made very happy by her achievement. Her triumph in her playing of the rôle of Paula Tanqueray was complete, from the standpoint both of the audience and of the acting itself.

To this success of Miss Barrymore's, Sir Arthur Wing Pinero's play was a worthy support. "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" came like a thunderbolt into the English theatre a generation ago. Pinero, who up to that time had been known as the authors of facile and highly prosperous stage pieces of the made-to-order sort, brought suddenly to his public work studied from the school of Ibsen, and in it he managed not only to deepen his substance to what seemed to be a most serious concern with life, but also to keep his stage facility and his theatrical appeal.

The theme of the play sounds a little old-fashioned nowadays in the light of modern thought, but at bottom it retains its plausibility; it turns on the question as to whether a woman once tainted with a past can be without it; whether a woman once tainted, as Paula herself puts it, will not always be tainted.

This theme is worked out with the most evident underscoring and animation, something at times that might even sheer off into superficial vivacity. It is constantly pointed up and constantly theatre in every sense. Last night at times the playing tended to slur this theatricality, to soften the pointing up; but the play remained highly marked, recognisably and restfully so; and marched through its course with a surprising amount of its old values at least still emerging.

As for the acting of "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" last night none of it was especially bad. It was understanding and it offered possibilities for improvement. What it lacked most of all was pressure, force, attack. Henry Daniell's playing was the best illustration of this. He showed refinement of perception, intelligence and a sympathetic rapport; what he needed all through was a better projection over the footlights, and in his last scene a vast amount more of strength and impulse. Lionel Pape had bestowed upon him the part of Cayley Drummle, gloriously made known to this country twenty-five back by George Arliss. It is a rôle of the familiar bachelor good fellow, but so freighted with happy and lovable items and so edged and trimmed up for effect as to lead an audience easily to confuse it with the author behind it. Mr. Pape blurred many of his opportunities; he could not even be understood now and then in what he said, but played nevertheless agreeably enough. Helen Robbins as Ellean was well cast in the points of inspiration. G. P. Huntley's Sir George Orreyed was good.

Ethel Barrymore in her first act, where Paula comes unexpectedly to Tanqueray's apartment, at the end of a farewell bachelor dinner, made a dazzling entrance, but through the rest of the scene seemed perhaps a trifle flustered and played rather too fast. If the men in the preceding scene, as they should, their lines faster and more continuously there might wisely be more time to bestow on Paula's visit.

In the second act we see Paula Tanqueray in the country house, bored to extinction, jealous of the affection between her husband and his daughter by the first wife, starving for some warmth and love between the girl and herself. A neighbor, an old friend of Tanqueray's and of the first Mrs. Tanqueray, calls, after two months' snubbing of Paula, to ask forgiveness and at the same time to invite Ellean to come away with her and so gives Paula a chance to snub. Miss Barrymore in this scene was delightful, witty and deeply moved. She used remarkably in this scene her remarkable comic talent, and she interwove this with fine transitions into the tragic, the grotesque and the satirical.

From this on her work was steadily in the ascendent. The diction still needs study and is not rarely unequal to the superb voice that Miss Barrymore possesses, one of the most beautiful and dramatic voices to be heard in the theatre anywhere. The scene with Ellean, where she is made happy by the girl's turning to her with her secret and the long-delayed satisfaction of her hunger for Ellean's affection, was acting to the limit of pathetic feeling, with power, and with a beautiful, dying cadence and wistfulness of tone. And all the last passages, where Paula, desperate, clear in her vision of the future from her own limited but inevitable point of view, says a kind of farewell to life and happiness before she goes out to kill herself—these Miss Barrymore read with a fresh and powerful beauty and passion.

The part of Paula Tanqueray was played first in 1893 by Mrs. Patrick Campbell, who walked almost out of her drawing room on to the stage and electrified London with her performance. Mrs. Campbell's Paula, often repeated, was brilliant and unforgettable; she moved and read her lines, as she played the piano, with a wonderful rhythm and security that made her Paula Tanqueray depressing and entertaining at once. Miss Barrymore played the part with less of these admirable qualities no doubt, but with an equal sincerity, with more depth of emotion, and as the scenes progressed, with a finer dramatic harshness, with a larger beauty and a nobler reality.

"ALLOY" A DRAB DRAMA.

Realistic in Intent, It Is Set in a Sordid Pennsylvania Mill Town.

ALLOY, a play in three acts by Robert Ritz. At the Princess Theatre.

Fanny Jorgan	Minna Gombel
Bill Jorgan	Byron Beasley
Mrs. Rafferty	Mattie Keene
Micah Quigley	Milton Nobles Jr.
Marie Rafferty	Jill Middleton
John Walton	Ivan Miller

A dull play occasionally made endurable by consistently good acting and flashes of penetrating dialogue, came to the Princess last night. A realistic play in intent, it moved slowly and at times the mirror it was so carefully holding up to nature showed a complete absence of the moisture of life.

"Alloy" plays in a sordid Pennsylvania mill town and has for its theme the drabness and pathos of existence for the beings who have to spend their lives there. Thus the heroine of the piece seems destined to an undeserved fate of eternal bickering with her mill-hand husband, unrelieved by beauty or romance, until there comes along a young man whom she loves and who loves her. But this young man, as written and as played, is made out, for at least one observer, to be such an unbelievable and bromidic bore that the denouement of the lady's departure with him into the great world of love and laughter seems but an accentuation of her already unhappy lot. And the trick by which the author justifies her extra-marital excursion is so palpably artificial that it spoils rather than helps the point he is trying to make.

Minna Gombell, seen here last year in "Mister Pitt," does excellent work as the emotional heroine. Engaged in what used to be called running the gamut of the emotions, she at all times manages to bring a sense of plausibility to a rôle that must have been frequently without it in the script. Byron Beasley, as her husband and the possessor of a sour nature that has curdled under the oppressive monotony of life, is also excellent, though ever and again too obviously mindful of the fact that this is, after all, a play and he an actor.

In minor rôles Mattie Keene, Milton Nobles Jr. and Jill Middleton are thoroughly acceptable. Ivan Miller, as the young man who, we are asked to believe at the final curtain, is about to lead the distressed heroine to the finer values of life, is miscast or something. At all events, his work is very poor.

MME. SIMONE ACTS A PIRANDELLO ROLE

She Suffers Bravely in "Naked," a Rather Slight Play Lacking in Spontaneity.

NAKED, a play from the Italian of Luigi Pirandello, translated to French by Benjamin Cremieux. At Henry Miller's Theatre.

Ersilia Drei	Mme. Simone
Ludovico Nota	André Bacque
Cantavalle	Pierre Aldebert
Franco Laspiga	Paul Amiot
Consul Grotti	Raoul-Henry
Madame Honorine	Mme. Jeanne Grumbach
Emma	Blanche Martal

Last evening at Henry Miller's Theatre an Italian play was performed by French actors for an American audience. The play was Pirandello's "Naked"; the French troupe was led by Mme. Simone, and the audience was as may be. And, generally speaking, the occasion was as interesting as it was noteworthy. For Pirandello's play, whatever its qualities as a drama, is a genuine bit of "Pirandellianism," cerebral to the extreme. Yet on the stage last evening it seemed more philosophical lucubration than drama. It is duly equipped with characters, incidents, clashing purpose, lights and shades and all the lumber of the stage; but it lacks spontaneity of the theatre. As an exposition of a lucid metaphysical mind "Naked" piques the interest, without stirring the sensibilities.

To speak abstractly, the point of "Naked" seems to be that truth is a relative matter, that it changes with events and with people, that a truth firmly established this morning may be a falsehood by tomorrow. To speak more concretely, Ersilia Drei, by virtue of a lie told on the verge of an unsuccessful attempt at suicide and intended to cover the nakedness of her character, is all—things to all people and all things, even to herself. In the first act she is merely an unfortunate girl, but recently from the hospital, and given shelter by Ludovico Noto, a novelist, interested in her plight. But as the play runs on it develops that Ersilia, without changing in any respect, is generous and selfish, moral and immoral, and heaven knows how many other paradoxical things. As Pirandello develops the theme of his drama she changes color with each new situation, yet in the first two acts at least she does nothing more positive than swoon and sob.

The modern passion for mind dissection can go no further on the stage than Pirandello pushes it in this rather slight play; but the technique, strangely enough, belongs to a very old tradition of the stage. And although "Naked" is a tragedy, concluding in good taste with the death of the heroine at the final curtain, its structure is the "entrance and exit" school of farce, which served Tom Robertson and his fellows, and for many years Pinero. The different women that develop one by one in this same Ersilia Drei appear with the introduction of each new character and the revelation in each instance of more of that essential truth which the playwright has been artfully concealing. Alfredo Cantavalle, newspaperman, first indicates that Ersilia's death-bed confession has not told the whole truth truthfully. Franco Laspiga, who once betrayed her and then deserted her, wants her again when he knows part of her story and then despises her as he learns more. And finally Grotti, an Italian Consul, merely reverses the order of Laspiga's emotions. Pirandello keeps on telling the story almost to the end of the play. And contrary to the old French proverb, the more change there is, the less there is of the same thing!

In a part which did not give her a single merry moment as Ersilia Drei, Mme. Simone suffered bravely through three acts and died (without medical assistance) in the end. Through all the performance her acting was on the same brittle key. Pierre Aldebert, as the affected newspaper reporter, was amusingly ecstatic, and as the worldly lodging-house keeper Mme. Jeanne Grumbach, sometimes entertainingly vulgar. The company gave a nicely-balanced performance. One setting of a lodging-room in Rome served for all three acts; it was designed without distinction.

"THE RISING SON" PLEASING.

The Nugents Appear in a Whimsical Play of Baffling Moods.

THE RISING SON, a comedy in three acts by J. C. and Elliott Nugent. Settings by Sheldon K. Viele; produced by Marc Klaw, Inc. At the Klaw Theatre.

Miss Gray	Marie Curtis
Willis	Thomas MacLarnie
Beau Colfax	Ruth Nugent
Ted Alamayne	Elliott Nugent
Mrs. Malone	Mary Shaw
Jim Alamayne	J. C. Nugent
Judge	Helen Carew
Mr. Peterson	Edward Fielding

There is a good deal that is genuinely entertaining in the strangely mixed little comedy that opened at the Klaw Theatre last night. The name of it is "The Rising Son," and it is the work of the same two Nugents, father and son, who wrote the well-remembered "Kempy." As in that earlier work, they also play the leading rôles.

At its best the new play is whimsically gentle and equipped with not a little understanding. It is when it endeavors to be robust that it is less successful. There is at least one highly surprising turn of plot—so surprising as to be quite incredible—and there are sometimes lines so "wise," particularly when considered in the light of the play's occasional fairy-tale quality, that it seems impossible that the same playwrights were responsible for it all. No play quite so baffling in its varied moods has been presented here this season.

In the main, however, it is a play that has a decidedly pleasant quality. It relates a simple story of three generations—of a father's ambitions for his son, and of the grandfather who had had ambitions for the father in turn. It is about seven different kinds of play rolled into one, and as a job of playwriting it is pretty bad; but, strangely, the quality of entertainment persists.

As played at the Klaw Theatre it is distinguished primarily for a thoroughly delightful and delicate performance by the third of the Nugents—Ruth, daughter of one of the playwrights and sister of the other. She, too, appeared in "Kempy," so these few words of appreciation are not written in the mood of discovery. In a word, she is perfect. Moreover, she achieves the astonishing trick of looking and acting like both Lola Fisher and Gregory Kelly simultaneously.

The insurgent son, of course, is played by Elliott Nugent, and played at all times pleasantly and capably. The father was to this observer a thoroughly incredible character—in him are concentrated many of the play's contradictory moods. The elder Nugent is quite miscast in the rôle, but so, probably, would have been almost any other actor in the world. It is a rôle that could hardly have been made believable by any one.

There is certain to be something in "The Rising Son" that you like, and some things that you do not. It is too comprehensive a play not to hit the mark at times.

New O'Neill Play for the Greenwich.

"Desire Under the Elms," a new play by Eugene O'Neill, will be the next offering by the Provincetown Playhouse group at the Greenwich Village Theatre. It will open early next month.

Under the title of "S. S. Glencairn," four of O'Neill's short plays of the sea, will be produced in one bill at the Provincetown Playhouse, opening on Nov. 3. These plays are "The Moon of the Caribbees," "The Long Voyage Home," "In the Zone" and "Bound East for Cardiff." "The Crime in the Whistler Room," now at the Provincetown Playhouse, will close tomorrow night.

MUSIC NOTES.

Miss Gabrielle Leschetizky's first piano recital, announced for last evening at Carnegie Hall, was postponed because of illness to a later date.

Mme. Pavlowa and her company began their final fortnight at the Manhattan last evening with a repetition of the Spanish dances of "Don Quixote."

Giovanni Fobert sang the title rôle in "Rigoletto" last night at the Metropolis Theatre, in the Bronx, as a benefit for the Radium Institute.

Ernest R. Satterlee, President of the Franklin Savings Bank, gives an informal organ recital at the Lutheran Church, West Forty-sixth Street, near Eighth Avenue, at noon today.

Enjoyable volume—marvelous clarity with the FADA Neutroceiver
AS YOU turn the dials the stations roll in, one after another, with enjoyable volume and marvelous clarity. Broadcasting stations hundreds of miles distant are perfectly clear and distinct.
When you buy a radio set, investigate the FADA Neutroceiver. You'll find it is a five-tube Neutrodyne that will meet your every expectation, every requirement. It is very selective—local stations do not interfere with distant programs. It is easy to control—stations are always found at the prelocated settings. It has wonderful volume. Its tone is as pure and clear as life itself. The cabinet of solid mahogany is a joy to the eye—its lines are so artistic and graceful.
You have a range from $75 to $295 from which to select—six models; each extraordinary in results; each a remarkable value. See them at your dealer's.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Prices Lower on Stock Exchange—Call Money 3%—Sterling Rises Again.

Different markets moved yesterday without any uniform impulse, each under its own particular influence. The stock market's decline was ascribed by Wall Street to a 3 per cent. money rate. The grain trade professed to explain a 3-cent rise in wheat by the action of the Argentine market. For an advance of 1¼ cents a pound in cotton, the Cotton Exchange had accounts of "trust in Texas." Nothing more definite than Wednesday's election in Great Britain was assigned as the cause for a rise in sterling exchange above $4.80, after its reaction to nearly $4.48¾ last Friday.

It was perhaps a sidelight on the character which speculation has taken, in almost every market, that these explanations should have had for the most part so trivial a basis. The 3 per cent. rate for call money was a perfectly natural and purely temporary result of the $5,800,000 deficit reported in the New York Associated Bank reserves on Saturday, coming as it did at the time when all the banks were preparing for the month-end settlement. The really essential fact of the money market is that, when these first-of-November payments are effected, we shall be nearly at the time when the season's commercial demands always relax automatically.

A sharp advance in wheat at Buenos Aires need have no other significance than as illustrating the perfectly well-known grain trade policy whereby England and other consuming countries, when confronted with a close alignment of wheat supplies and wheat requirements, shift their buying orders alternately from one producing market to another. Two weeks ago it was Chicago; last week it was Winnipeg; now, very probably, it is Buenos Aires. This shifting process is invariably the course of action in such a world-situation as exists today; it is Liverpool's traditional recourse to keep clear of "runaway markets."

It is possibly a little late for the market to grow excited over frost reported at scattered localities in the Western cotton belt, but the speculator in cotton is habitually more stirred up by "frost reports" and "tropical storms" than even by crop estimates, and the intrinsic value of cotton, under the varying influences of known production and unknown consumption, is still debatable. There remains yesterday's sterling market, in which it is not improbable that speculators were trying to "discount" the effect of a Conservative victory. But in sterling, as in the other markets, causes so much more weighty are in visible operation that it might reasonably be doubted if this were the actual explanation.

Yet sterling is not the less interesting a market because of the infinite variety of the influences which play upon it. After all, the fall in sterling from $4.83 in October of last year to $4.38 in December was imputed by London almost exclusively to the fright of British capital, first over Baldwin's reckless political policies and then to the Labor Party's left-handed victory, and it may not be illogical if a contrary movement in the rate should be expected in the event of a definite defeat of Labor. The market will at all events be interesting later in the week, when election results are known.

On the stock market the day's decline was more widely distributed than on any day of last week. It was, however, much more probably another feeling of its pulse in regard to "election scares" than a response to 3 per cent. call money. Industrial and railway shares participated equally in the weakness. No attention seemed to be paid to the September railway statements; which thus far, though showing barely 6 per cent. increase in gross receipts over 1923, have increased net income more than 20 per cent.

MONEY.

MONDAY, OCT. 27, 1924.

Stock Exchange call money went up to 3 per cent. just before close, after renewing at 2, and interval of 2½. Federal money, for which there was keen demand, advanced from 1¾ to 2¼ per cent. Firmness was attributed to calling on loans to replenish reserves, a deficit in which was shown in Saturday's actual statement of Associated Banks. Fixed period money, however, was quiet, day's business being confined to ninety days at 3 per cent. and a moderate amount loaned in the afternoon, five-six months' at 3¼ per cent. Accceptances and commercial paper markets were unchanged.

RAILROADS PURCHASE MUCH NEW EQUIPMENT

Additional Cars and Locomotives Cost $1,600,000,000 Since 1921.

Since 1921 this country's railroads have invested more than $1,600,000,000 in equipment, according to an analysis made by Robert S. Binkerd, Vice Chairman of the Committee on Public Relations of the Eastern Railroads. This, he pointed out, was only one item in the improvement of transportation facilities since the war.

"During the first nine months of this year 120,727 new freight cars and 1,657 new locomotives were installed by the Class One railroads. There are still on order 49,702 freight cars and 335 locomotives.

"This means," Mr. Binkerd says, "that in the three years since 1921 the railroads have bought 494,654 new freight cars and 7,348 new locomotives. As the average price of a freight car is about $2,250, this freight car purchase means an investment of more than $1,000,000,000. The average price of a new locomotive is about $250,000, so that the locomotive investment is $350,000,000."

Purchase of 8,000 all-steel passenger cars at $30,000 each represents an investment of $240,000,000, making the total more than $1,600,000,000 in new cars and locomotives.

GASOLINE EXPORTS SHOW BIG INCREASE

Shipments Abroad Gain 41.9 Per Cent. in First Nine Months of 1924.

Exports of gasoline from the United States in the first nine months of this year were 960,940,082 gallons, a gain of 266,144,641 gallons, or 41.9 per cent. more than the same period last year. Exports for September were 114,165,462 gallons, a gain of 41,206,453, or 56.6 per cent. compared with September last year.

Kerosene exports increased to 81,307,328 gallons in September from 66,956,168 in August and were 853,961 gallons above September, 1923. Gas and fuel oil exports in September were 153,117,163 gallons, a gain of 36,316,331, or 30.4 per cent., compared with the same month of last year. Export of lubricants declined to 24,617,782 gallons in September from 30,211,770 in the same month of 1923.

In the first nine months of this year all refined products showed increases compared with the same period of 1923. Gas and fuel oil exports of 1,088,444,311 gallons were 214,320,956, or 24.6 per cent. more than in the same period of 1923. Total oil exports in this period were 2,620,496,302 gallons, compared with 2,913,635,995 exported in the same period last year.

DENIES BANKERS CONTROL THE B. & O.

Daniel Willard, President, Issues a Statement in Reply to La Follette.

INFORMATION FOR WORKERS

Reduction of Rates as Proposed by Senator Would Affect Wages, Executive Points Out.

Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and Speyer & Co., recognized agents for the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, have no holding whatever of Baltimore & Ohio stock, nor is any member of either firm a stockholder of record or a director of the railroad, according to a statement issued to employes by Daniel Willard, President. This statement was made by the head of the Baltimore & Ohio in answer to a speech made by Senator La Follette at Omaha, Neb., on Monday, Oct. 20.

Referring to the phrase credited to Senator La Follette, "The organized banking interests which own the railroads * * *," President Willard said:

"While I do not know exactly what is meant by that phrase, I assume that Senator La Follette wishes to be understood as saying that there are organizations among bankers which own sufficient railroad securities, meaning, of course, railroad stocks, to control the management. In this connection I can speak with personal knowledge concerning the Baltimore & Ohio Company. The control of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad rests primarily with the 34,000 shareholders who own the capital stock of the company, this control being exercised through a board of twelve directors chosen each year by the stockholders at their annual meeting.

No Combination in Control.

"For more than twenty-five years the banking houses of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and Speyer & Co. have been the recognized fiscal agents for the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, but neither one of them at the present time has any holding whatever of Baltimore & Ohio stock, nor is any member of either of the firms above mentioned a stockholder of record or director of this company. No combination of banks or individuals controls the Baltimore & Ohio Company. The President of the company is responsible to the Board of Directors, and they in turn are responsible solely to the 34,000 stockholders. The statement, therefore, that 'the organized banking interests own the railroads,' and presumably control them, is definitely untrue so far as it applies to the Baltimore & Ohio Company."

A recent list shows the following as members of the Board of Directors: G. M. Shriver, R. Brent Keyser, Robert Garrett, Paul M. Warburg, John R. Morron, C. A. Peabody, J. E. Widener, F. H. Rawson, J. J. Cornwall, Henry Ruhlender, Newton D. Baker and John F. Stevens.

The head of the Baltimore & Ohio calls attention to a number of other statements made in Senator La Follette's speech and in the La Follette-Wheeler textbook.

"There are many statements about the railroads," he said, "which I know to be absolutely untrue, and it seems to me that in fairness to Baltimore & Ohio employes I ought not to remain silent concerning them, although I know very well that whatever I may say in this connection will be designated as 'vicious propaganda.'"

Warns of Bankruptcy.

After attacking one after another of the statements made by the leader of the Third Party, President Willard concludes his letter to his employes by saying:

"It is difficult to understand how railroad employes can expect even to retain the wages and working conditions which they now have, much less hope for any improvement therein, if railroad rates should be reduced to the basis in effect before the war, while taxes and all other expenses remain as they are. Such a reduction of rates as Senator La Follette proposes could only have the effect, under existing conditions, of forcing a great majority, if not all, of the railroads into bankruptcy. Inasmuch as Senator La Follette must know what the result would be if rates were now reduced as he suggests, one can only suppose that he hopes by that process to force Government ownership of the railroads upon the people of this country regardless of whether they want it or not.

"I have said and repeat that a reduction of railroad rates at this time to the level of 1913, as advocated in the La Follette-Wheeler text book, would mean bankruptcy to this railroad, indeed to most railroads, unless there should be a corresponding reduction in wages as well as in the cost of materials and supplies, neither of which is now possible or desirable. I believe further that the success of such a program as is advocated in the text book concerning the railroads, would be very harmful to this railroad, as well as to similar properties, because of the adverse influence it would undoubtedly have upon persons who buy railroad securities. Such a result would eventually bring this railroad, as well as others, to a condition where, because of impaired credit, it could not provide the additional facilities necessary to properly handle the business offered, and would also mean a direct monetary loss, not only to the shippers, but, because of the effect upon the stabilization of employment, to its thousands of employes as well.

"It is because I believe the interests of the employes and of the owners of this property are mutual, and because I believe that the acceptance of a program based upon such erroneous statements as those to which I have referred, would be injurious to the employes as well as to the company and to the public, that I feel justified in addressing this communication to the employes and officers of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company."

$4,000,000 STOCK OFFERING.

Continental Gas and Electric's Prior Preference on Market.

Offering of $4,000,000 Continental Gas and Electric Corporation 7 per cent. prior preference stock is made today at $92 a share to yield 7.61 per cent. by Otis & Co., Howe, Snow & Bertles, Inc., and Peirce, Fair & Co. The Continental Gas and Electric Corporation will become presently a subsidiary of the United Light and Power Company. It is a holding company having control of electric power and light companies operating in four States and in Canada and serving 192 communities, among which are cities in Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska and Ohio.

The United Light and Power Company has recently contracted to purchase 75 per cent. of the common shares of the Continental Gas and Electric Corporation. The bankers state that the Continental's prior preference stock offered is entitled to receive dividends before the United Light and Power Company derives any return from its holdings.

MALLINSON FIRM'S YEAR.

Current Asset Ratio 8 to 1, Compared With 3½ a Year Ago.

Preliminary figures of the financial condition of H. R. Mallinson & Co. for the fiscal year ended Oct. 31 were announced yesterday. The current asset ratio is approximately 8 to 1, compared with 3½ to 1 a year ago. Current liabilities are approximately $500,000, against $1,588,508 in 1923, $2,761,131 in 1922 and $3670,929 in 1921. The payables now consist entirely of current accounts. All bank loans have been wiped out.

Cash has increased from $266,569 to about $750,000. Inventories which a year ago were $2,244,927 now are approximately $1,000,000.

Rail Extensions Planned.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—The Beaver, Mead & Englewood Railroad applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission today for authority to construct a 175-mile line from Hooker, Okla., to Des Moines, N. M. The Los Angeles Junction Railway applied for authority to construct eight miles of road near Vernon, Cal.

FOREIGN LOANS THIS YEAR PAST BILLION

Americans' Investments Abroad for Full 12 Months Likely to Reach $1,500,000,000.

EIGHT BILLIONS IN 5 YEARS

Holders Receive $400,000,000 Interest Annually—Vast Loans to States and Cities.

With $1,007,919,000 subscribed by American investors to foreign loans so far this year, bankers said yesterday the full year's figures might reach $1,500,000,000. Yesterday's new Swedish Government loan of $30,000,000 carried the total past the billion figure. The billion-dollar mark had not been approached in foreign loans in the past, although in three years the total of State and municipal financing passed that mark, and this year probably will repeat.

The following table lists the most important of the foreign loans placed so far this year in the United States:

Japan	$150,000,000
Switzerland	30,000,000
Netherlands	40,000,000
Czechoslovakia	9,250,000
Mortgage Bank, Finland	12,000,000
Consolidated Electric Power Co. of Japan	15,000,000
Canadian National Railways	29,500,000
Norway	25,000,000
Argentina	20,000,000
Canadian Pacific	10,000,000
Ontario	17,000,000
Industrial Bank of Japan	22,000,000
Canadian Railways	26,000,000
Paris-Orleans Railway	10,000,000
Mexico	50,000,000
Paris-Lyons-Mediterranean Railway	20,000,000
Nord Railway	15,000,000
Sweden	30,000,000
Germany	110,000,000
Toronto	1,000,000
Montreal	9,700,000
Buenos Aires	8,400,000
Rotterdam	6,000,000
Hungary	7,500,000
—	$675,150,000
All others	332,769,000

Foreign Government financing done in the United States amounted to $242,845,000 in 1923, $431,305,000 in 1922, $370,270,000 in 1921 and $291,000,000 in 1920.

At the end of 1923 American money invested abroad, exclusive of loans made by the Government, amounted to $8,000,000,000, of which $5,500,000,000 was in industrial securities and $2,500,000,000 in Government obligations. Interest and profits to the holders of these investments was estimated at the close of 1923 by the United States Government at $400,000,000 annually.

The following information is summarized from the letter of C. S. Eaton, Esq., Chairman of the Board:

HISTORY: Continental Gas & Electric Corporation is one of the large and successful public utility holding companies. Organized in 1912, the Corporation controls a group of electric power and light companies operating in 4 states and in Canada and serving 192 communities. The principal companies controlled are as follows:

Kansas City Power and Light Co., Kansas City, Mo.
The Columbus Railway, Power & Light Co., Columbus, O.
Nebraska Gas and Electric Co.
Iowa Service Co.
Lincoln Gas and Electric Light Co., Lincoln, Neb.

Cash dividends have been paid on the preferred stocks of the Continental Gas & Electric Corporation uninterruptedly since organization in 1912.

EARNINGS:

Year ended June 30,	(Comparative) 1923	1924
Gross earnings of subsidiary companies	$20,033,761	$21,411,644
Net earnings of Continental Gas & Electric Corporation (including undistributed income for the same period of subsidiary companies accruing to it) after operation, maintenance and taxes, and after interest and dividend charges on subsidiary companies and other prior deductions	4,734,352	5,411,052
Total present annual interest charges on funded debt		1,690,317
Balance before depreciation and dividends		$ 3,721,435
Dividends on $10,047,400 7% Prior Preference Stock (including stock now being offered)		703,318
		$ 3,018,117

Balance of $3,721,435 before Prior Preference dividends as shown above, during the 12 months ending June 30, 1924, was in excess of 5¼ times the dividend requirements on the total amount of Prior Preference Stock outstanding, including stock now being offered and, after making deductions for maintenance, depreciation and sinking fund charges at the rates provided in the Indenture securing the recently issued Secured 6½% Bonds of the Corporation, was in excess of 3¾ times such dividend requirements.

MARKET EQUITY: The Prior Preference Stock is followed by $1,920,600 of 6-8% Participating Preferred Stock and 144,057 shares Common Stock which on the basis of present quotations represent a market equity junior to the Prior Preference Stock of over $14,000,000.

CONTROL: The United Light and Power Company, through a subsidiary, has recently contracted to purchase over 75% of the Common shares of the Continental Gas & Electric Corporation. Based upon the completion of the acquisition of all of the outstanding Common shares of the Corporation, the Preferred and Common Stocks of The United Light and Power Company then outstanding, at present market quotations, will represent a market value in excess of $33,000,000, and The United Light and Power Company's combined gross earnings will be in excess of $33,900,000, of which over $21,000,000 will be derived from the Continental Gas & Electric Corporation division.

The Preferred position of the Prior Preference Stock entitles it to receive current or accrued dividends before The United Light and Power Company derives any return from its holdings of Continental Gas & Electric Common Stock.

MANAGEMENT: The progressive and successful management of the Corporation, including that of its subsidiaries, continues unchanged and will be further strengthened by the co-operation of the highly efficient management of The United Light and Power Company.

This Stock is offered when, as and if issued and received by us and subject to the approval of proceedings by our counsel. Temporary stock certificates will be ready for delivery on or about October 31, 1924.

All legal matters in connection with the issuance of this stock will be passed upon by Messrs. Tolles, Hogsett, Ginn & Morley, Cleveland, Ohio, for the Corporation and Messrs. Humes, Buch & Smith, New York City, for the Bankers.

COPPER, LEAD, ZINC AND TIN ARE HIGHER

German Loan Results in Foreign Demand for Non-Ferrous Metals.

COPPER ADVANCES TO 13⅜

Lead Is Quoted at 9 Cents, Zinc at 6.47½ to 6.52½ and Tin at 52⅛.

Reflecting the gradual improvement in the demand for non-ferrous metals, advances were made yesterday in the prices of copper, lead, zinc and tin. The principal factor in this demand, especially for copper, is the buying by foreign countries. Since the flotation of the German loan there has been a considerable increase in the number of inquiries for the account of German concerns, including the German electrical manufacturing industry.

Spot copper in the New York market advanced one-quarter of a cent to 13⅜ from last week's closing quotation on the Metal Exchange, while asking prices were as high as 13⅝ cents. A sale of copper for export has been closed at 13.40 cents a pound f. a. s. New York harbor, which is equivalent to 13.65 cents c. i. f. London, Hamburg or Havre, delivery to be made late in November and in December. Most of the leading selling agencies were said yesterday to be holding firm at 13½ cents New York and 13¾ European ports.

Consumers of lead who refused to build up reserves at 7 cents a pound last Summer are now reported to be going into the outside market to cover current requirements as larger producers cannot meet the demand on average price contracts. For the fourth time in about a week the American Smelting and Refining Company has advanced the price of lead. A price of 8.65 cents quoted by this company yesterday compared with 8.50 cents on Saturday, 8.40 on Friday, 8.25 cents Monday a week ago and 8 cents on Oct. 18. The New York Metal Exchange yesterday, however, quoted a settling price of 9 cents a pound for lead during the day.

The foreign demand for lead also continues large. The Mexican output, although stimulated by high price of silver as well as better prices for lead, has yet to show any material increase, being at present about 15,000 tons a month.

inc was selling yesterday at 6.47½ to 6.52½ for prime Western at East St. Louis, being priced according to shipment date, with the promise of a further advance under the stimulus of foreign buying. These prices compare with 6.42½ cents last week. Tri-State zinc concentrates are $44 a ton, the highest of the year, compared with a price of $43.50 early last week. Tin was up an eighth of a cent to 52⅛, the settling price.

RAILWAY MAN TO HEAD SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO.

C. M. Kittle, Who Will Succeed Julius Rosenwald, Began Career as a Water-Boy.

Because the shares of Sears, Roebuck & Co. are heavily traded in on the New York Stock Exchange the financial district evinced interest yesterday in the election which will take place today of Charles M. Kittle as the new President of the company. Mr. Kittle will succeed Julius Rosenwald, who has been head of the big Chicago mail order house since 1908. Mr. Rosenwald at the meeting of directors today will be made Chairman of the board.

Mr. Kittle, who is now 44, started as a water boy for a railroad section gang at the age of 14. At 17 he was a telegraph operator, rising rapidly through the positions of cashier, chief clerk, superintendent and assistant to the general manager. In 1910 he became associated with the Illinois Central Railroad, serving successively as superintendent of claims and damages, assistant to the President, and then Vice President in charge of purchasing, operating maintenance, mechanical engineering, accounting, traffic and legal departments. During the war, when the railroads were under the Federal Government, he was general manager of the Illinois Central system and three other railroads, and his present position is senior Vice President of the Illinois Central.

Julius Rosenwald was in business in New York from 1879 to 1885, and was head of the firm of Rosenwald & Weil, clothing manufacturers of Chicago, from 1885 to 1895. He became Vice President and Treasurer of Sears-Roebuck & Co. in 1900 and was named President in 1908. He is a large contributor to civic and educational enterprises and has maintained for years a number of schools for negroes in the South. He is 62 years old.

POWER COMPANY EARNINGS.

Tennessee Electric Nets $4.31 Per Share on Common.

Earnings of the Tennessee Electric Power Company for the fiscal year ended Sept. 30 were $1,311,965, after allowance for fixed charges and dividends on first preferred stock. This is equivalent to $36.24 per share on the 6 per cent. second preferred stock and $9.69 per share on the common, before provision for depreciation. Earnings after depreciation were $19.44 per share on the 6 per cent. second preferred and $4.31 per share on the common, as compared with $14.10 and $3.59 a share, respectively, for the preceding year, an increase of 38 per cent. on the second preferred and 66 per cent. on the common stock.

The company declared an initial dividend of $1.50 on the second preferred stock, payable Aug. 1 this year, and a second such payment will be made on Nov. 1.

Earnings of the Commonwealth Power Corporation and subsidiaries for the year ended Sept. 30, applicable to dividends and after depreciation, were at the rate of $14.15 a share on the preferred and $11.32 on the common, as compared with $12.20 and $8.82, respectively, for the same period last year.

PLAN FOR RED CROSS DRIVE.

Investment Bankers Form a Committee to Manage Campaign.

A committee was formed in Wall Street yesterday to organize the investment bankers of the city for the annual Red Cross drive. Landon K. Thorne of Bonbright & Co. is Chairman. On Nov. 1 a letter will be sent to each banking house, asking for the appointment of a house captain to secure subscriptions. Every member of Mr. Thorne's committee will be responsible for the organization of his own firm and for nineteen other banking houses.

The committee members are Everett Bacon of Spencer Trask & Co.; Derby Farrington of Lee, Higginson & Co.; Clement Ford of Tucker, Anthony & Co.; Harold Fowler of White, Weld & Co.; George Greene of E. H. Rollins & Sons; William Higgins of Kissel, Kinnicutt & Co.; Horton Hume of J. P. Morgan & Co.; Gilbert Jones of the Guaranty Company; W. G. Kelso Jr. of Halsey, Stuart & Co.; W. A. Read of Dillon, Read & Co.; Frank Stanton of Harris, Forbes & Co.; R. A. Tompkins of the Bankers Trust Company and Frederick Warburg of Kuhn, Loeb & Co.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

Sterling Moves Higher on Short Covering and Fresh Buying —Continentals Dull.

An advance of one cent in sterling exchange to $4.50⅛ proved the feature of yesterday's trading in the foreign exchanges. Interest in the Continentals was nominal, as the irregular fluctuations in these currencies showed.

Strength in sterling, which was substantial in face of the reactionary markets of last week, was the result of hasty covering by previous speculators for the decline who were aided in their selling by the seasonal pressure of cotton and grain bills and the recent upset in the British Government. It was also noticed that some of the important banking institutions were good buyers, the combined inquiry which started soon after the opening carrying sterling steadily over the $4.50 mark just before the close.

The movement in French francs was slightly over a full point, but the close at 5.21 cents showed no variation from Saturday. Holland, Spanish, Swiss and Scandinavian remittances also developed meaningless changes, but the Italian lire dropped 1½ points to 4.31 cents on heavy purchases of grain for that country. South Americans and Far Easterns were dull and the Canadian dollar continued at par.

2 YELLOW CAB STOCKS HAVE SHARP DECLINES

Manufacturing Company Drops 8⅛ Points and Operating Concern 4½ Points.

Unsettled conditions in the automobile industry, and particularly in the manufacturing of the taxicab, were responsible yesterday for an extremely sharp break in the Yellow Cab Manufacturing Company, a producing unit, and the Chicago Yellow Cab Company, the operating unit. Both stocks are listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

The stock of the Yellow Cab Manufacturing Company declined 8⅛ points net, while that of the Chicago Yellow Cab Company declined 4½ points. The declines were coincident with the announcement of the quarterly earnings of the company. The Yellow Cab Manufacturing Company's earnings were $540,641 for the third quarter of the year, equivalent to 88 cents a share for the common stock. This compares with $1,005,022 in the first quarter of the year. Earnings for the first six months of the year were $1,800,480, or $2.99 a share on the 600,000 shares of "B" or common stock. This fully covered the dividend payments of $1.25 a share on this issue up to the end of the second quarter.

Earnings for the third quarter were considerably below dividend requirements. Earnings of the third quarter were approximately 52 per cent. of those in the third quarter of last year, and for the first nine months they were approximately 75 per cent. of the total last year.

Earnings of the Chicago Yellow Cab Company for the third quarter were $426,193, or $1.04 a share, against the dividend requirements of $1. In the first nine months of this year the operating company earned $1,570,976 or $3.92 on its 400,000 shares of no-par stock, compared with $1,529,227, or $3.82 a share in 1923.

A decline in the demand for original equipment coupled with "taxicab rate wars" such as have occurred in many parts of the country are reported to be responsible for the decline in earnings. The stocks, which were listed on the New York Stock Exchange early in the year, have been chiefly characterized by extremely violent fluctuations since their listing.

Principal and interest guaranteed by written endorsement on each bond by AMERICAN WATER WORKS & ELECTRIC CO., INC.

This offering of bonds is made subject to the approval of the Alabama Public Service Commission.

The Birmingham Water Works Company supplies water without competition to the City of Birmingham and environs. The population served is in excess of 238,000. Birmingham, the largest city in Alabama, is one of the most important iron and steel manufacturing centers in the country, as well as the largest industrial center in the South.

This issue, which constitutes the only funded debt of the Company, is, in the opinion of counsel, secured by a first mortgage on the entire physical property of The Birmingham Water Works Company. The value of this property, as fixed in the contract now in effect between the Company and the City, on August 31, 1924, was $9,152,315.

The earnings of the Company for the year ended August 31, 1924, are reported as follows:

Gross Revenue	$1,174,371.14
Operating expenses, maintenance and taxes	411,298.16
Net Earnings	$ 763,072.98
Annual interest on Company's entire funded indebtedness (this issue)	$ 302,500.00

The contract with the City, under which the Company is operating, entitles the Company to a net return of not less than $718,000, or over 2.37 times interest charges on the entire present funded debt of the Company.

The Birmingham Water Works Company is controlled through ownership of its entire common stock by American Water Works & Electric Co., Inc., which operates the largest system of privately owned water properties in the United States. Total assets of American Water Works & Electric Co., Inc., with that of its subsidiaries, on December 31, 1923, was $251,116,921.

These bonds are offered for delivery when, as and if issued and received by us and subject to the authorization of the mortgage by the stockholders and to the approval of counsel, Messrs. Sullivan & Cromwell and Messrs. Chapman, Cutler & Parker.

Legal Investment for Savings Banks and Trust Funds in California

Organization: The Imperial Irrigation District was organized as a municipal corporation in 1911 under the Wright Act of California, which created the irrigation district as a political subdivision of the State. The legality of the present California Irrigation Act has been fully sustained by the Supreme Court. Bonds of the Imperial Irrigation District are a direct obligation, principal and interest being payable out of taxes levied against all the lands in the district on an advalorem basis under the sovereign power of taxation inherent in the State of California, and are secured by a tax lien against the land, ranking ahead of all first mortgages.

Location: The Imperial Irrigation District includes a gross area of 603,840 acres (approximately 1,000 square miles) located in Imperial County in the southeast corner of the State. Water for irrigation and domestic purposes is taken from the Colorado river. The main line of the Southern Pacific Railroad and the San Diego and Arizona Railroad run through Imperial Valley providing splendid transportation facilities.

History: Water was first turned into Imperial Valley in 1901 and almost unparalleled agricultural success immediately followed. Adding water to the naturally fertile alluvial soil of the valley produced astounding results. Rapid and consistent growth in property values, population and annual production followed. This growth is indicated by the following table:

Population	50,000	13,591
Total Assessed Property Values	$44,753,084	$12,148,180
Value of School Property	2,600,000	279,978
Value of Products (estimated)	65,000,000	5,000,000

At the present time the Imperial Irrigation District has the largest area of any irrigation district in California, the largest population, the longest growing season (practically twelve months every year), an ample water supply using gravity only for both irrigation and drainage, an exceedingly fertile soil and an almost unlimited variety of crops.

Purpose of Issue: These Bonds are a part of an authorized issue of $2,500,000 voted in 1922, to complete the drainage system.

24 RAILWAYS SHOW AN INCREASE IN NET

Their Total for September Is $57,261,220, Compared With $46,183,312 a Year Ago.

ANTHRACITE LINES IN LEAD

Their Gross Is Large, While Other Carriers Make Good Showing by Cutting Expenses.

The income of the twenty-four railroads which have made public their September reports show increases when compared to the same month of last year. The gross income of these twenty-four railroads was $256,154,604 in September, as against $240,082,439 in the same month last year. The same railroads reported net earnings of $57,261,220, compared with $46,183,312.

Although the carriers of anthracite indicate increased gross revenues compared with the same month of last year, the general tendency in the other reports was for gross incomes under the same month a year ago, accompanied by cuts in expenses, which permitted the roads to report higher net incomes. The gross incomes of the anthracite carriers were greater than a year ago because in September 1923 they suffered a decline in traffic as the result of the coal strike.

Typical of the anthracite railroads was the Lehigh Valley, which reported gross income for the month of $6,460,606, compared with $5,283,224 a year ago. Despite this increase in gross, the expenses of the road were only $300,000 greater than in September, 1923, and the result was net operating income of $1,983,118, against $424,136, an increase of almost 150 per cent.

Report of the Erie.

Th Erie reported gross of $10,985,902, compared with $10,063,633, and a net operating income of $2,199,559, against $1,488,049.

In its report the Baltimore & Ohio shows how some of the roads were able to report a sizable increase in net operating expenses despite large decreases in the gross business of the railroad. The gross of the Baltimore & Ohio for September was $19,355,865, compared with $21,527,022. Both of these months were substantially higher than September, 1922, when the road earned $13,619,380 gross, and 1921, when it earned a gross of $17,468,612. By cutting its expenses the Baltimore & Ohio showed net operating income of $4,268,449, compared with $3,977,152 in the same month last year.

Some indication of the conditions in the Southwest are contained in the report of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe with a gross income of $23,539,701, compared with $20,302,668 in September, 1923, and net operating income of $7,083,094 against $3,945,162. On account of the failure of the crops west of the mountains the Northern Pacific reported a gross of $9,176,637, against $9,824,938 last year and a net operating income of $2,732,190, compared with $2,879,894. The Chicago Great Western reported September gross of $14,631,856, against $14,062,408, and net operating income of $2,603,823, against $1,980,028 in September 1923.

New Haven's Net Is Higher.

By continuing its policy of saving wherever possible the New York, New Haven & Hartford was able to report an increase in net operating income of $417,949 compared with the same month a year ago. The gross business of the property was $10,722,647, compared with $11,190,591, and the net operating income $1,910,053, compared with $1,492,104. Net income for the month was $588,483, thus bringing the net income for the first nine months of the year up to $1,370,317, according to a statement issued by the company.

On accountof the large refunding program ahead of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul the financial district took especial interest in the report of that railroad, which showed gross income of $15,127,381, compared with $14,804,028 in the same month of last year. The net operating income was $2,024,941, compared with $2,664,107. As the result of this increase the net operating income of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul for the first nine months of this year was $10,824,216, against $12,602,078 in the same period a year ago.

WOULD ABOLISH PASSPORTS

Bankers' Committee Asks Government to End Burden on Travel.

The Commerce and Marine Commission of the American Bankers' Association has issued a report recommending that the United States Government enter into agreements with foreign Governments to abolish passports and visa requirements. The commission, of which Fred I. Kent is Chairman, declares that "high fees for passports and visas are a burden upon international travel, which is so necessary to foreign commerce, and the formalities incident to visas and to police control of passports, which were appropriate in time of war, are now an interference to commerce."

The commission urges that the Government reduce its fees for passports and visas "to a reasonable charge for the service it performs," and to enter as promptly as possible into reciprocal agreements with foreign Governments for the complete discontinuance of visa and passport requirements as conditions warrant.

Central Arizona Light Dividend.

The Central Arizona Light and Power Company has declared an initial dividend of $1 on the new common stock, payable Nov. 1 to stock of record Oct. 25, and the regular quarterly dividend of 2 per cent. on the preferred, payable Nov. 21 to stock of record Nov. 15. Quarterly dividends of $3 were being paid on the old common, which, until the split-up in the ratio of four for one, had a par value of $100 a share.

FOREIGN NATIONS PAY A BILLION ON WAR DEBT

Four of Twenty European Debtors Have Funded Their Obligations—Others to Follow.

With the Dawes plan now functioning, much attention has again been turned to wartime debts owed by European countries to the United States. A widespread impression has prevailed, according to bankers, that America's debtors were not taking their debts seriously, but facts and figures gathered recently have indicated that considerable attention has been paid to the matter and, thanks to the British debt funding program, about 40 per cent. of the total debts owed by these countries to the United States has been funded. In addition, the debtor countries have paid in $850,000,000 of interest and in excess of $200,000,000 on principal. Russia, from which little is expected, has paid in $8,000,000 in interest.

Commenting on debt funding The Index, published by the New York Trust Company, makes the point that an agreement was concluded on Sept. 22 between the Government of Lithuania and the Treasury Department whereby that country arranged for the funding of its debt of $6,030,000. "Lithuania thus becomes the fourth of the twenty countries who borrowed heavily from this country during the year to place its debt in a definite course of payment, with full provision for interest and sinking fund payments. The others are, in order of the dates of the respective funding agreements, Great Britain, Finland and Hungary, and the total amount of indebtedness so funded is in excess of $4,595,000,000, or 38.8 per cent. of the total of $11,888,000,000 of principal and interest owed by foreign Governments to the United States."

Gulf States Steel Profit.

Net profit of the Gulf States Steel for the third quarter was $176,487, compared with $336,747 in the third quarter of 1923. The nine months' profit was $719,276, compared with $1,310,654 in the same period of last year.

General Asphalt Calls Bonds.

The General Asphalt Company has notified holders of 8 per cent. ten-year sinking fund gold bonds dated Dec. 1, 1920, that these bonds will be redeemed at Bankers Trust Company Dec. 1 at 105 and interest.

MUCH QUIET BUYING OF UTILITY STOCKS

Practice Is Said to Account for Large Part of Recent Speculative Activity.

MERGERS OFTEN RESULT

Purchase of Shares to Obtain Control in Open Market Are Now Frequent.

Quiet buying of public utility stocks in the open market by or for the account of other utility companies has attained prodigious proportions this year. This is agreed by many of those closely associated with the power and light business. In nearly all cases there have followed reports of contemplated mergers which have started large speculative activity in these stocks. The result in many cases intensifies the mystery that surrounded the buying operations.

When Secretary of Commerce Hoover first advocated several years ago the tying up of power properties throughout the country to increase and lower the cost of the varied services to the public and to provide for a greater national defense, it was not generally foreseen that the carrying out of this so-called superpower scheme would be so rapid. Today there is not a public utility property of appreciable size which does not serve a larger territory than that for which the company was originally intended, through connections with other companies in that territory, or through a broader distribution of power from central stations to subsidiary or associated companies.

The process of tying-in or merging these utility units has provided the network basis for the final achievement of a national superpower system. According to some authorities, this national system is expected to be an accomplished fact in the next ten or fifteen years.

A "Scramble" for Properties.

The Government's sanction of this developmental work has created something like a "scramble" for valuable existing properties, the effect of which has been two methods of obtaining them. One is the direct or intercompany negotiation method, by which an offer is made by one utility group or company for treasury or stockholders' shares, and the more baffling method of buying the stocks in the open market with a view to obtaining control quietly.

The latter method has given rise to intense competition between the existing large utility groups, with consequent heavy speculative activity, which in a few instances have shot stock values up to more than double their natural or normal market prices. While this has been a boon to thousands of stockholders, the tendency has been to "overplay" such stocks and sharp reactions have been conspicuous in trading of the last few weeks.

Wall Street has come to recognize that there are two kinds of mergers of utility properties. One is the "open method," characterized by a certain degree of publicity when an offer is accepted or the deal concluded, and the other is "secret," so far as public announcement or revelation of the details are concerned.

Building Public Confidence.

There is a wide difference of opinion as to what extent the investment public or the general public is entitled to full information on merger transactions involving many millions of dollars of the country's power assets that may be involved in individual transactions of this kind. As a rule the division is upon the question of how far the electrical manufacturing industry may be an instrument in the development of "superpower." While the public utility stocks as a class have not as yet fully reflected the developmental trend in the power industry, the same is said to be true of the majority of electrical manufacturing or equipment stocks.

The sharp successive rises in General Electric stock this year has provided an exception, but it is said to be a question just how far the speculation in these shares has been due to General Electric's relations with the power and light business through its utility financial subsidiary, the Electric Bond and Share Company. The General Electric is peculiarly situated in this respect, according to expert observers, as it is known to be the policy of some other electrical equipment companies not to be represented in the affairs of utility corporations even indirectly.

PHASES OF EUROPEAN GRAIN CROP SHORTAGE

Agricultural Department Recites Emergency Measures Taken by the Government.

The weekly bulletin of the Department of Agriculture points out that "prospect of a smaller world supply of bread grains than last year, with consequent higher prices, is causing many European Governments to take steps to protect their own supplies. Italy and France have lowered the import duties on foreign grain and Italy has restricted the exports of grain and grain products. Germany and Poland, which for a time permitted limited exports of grain, are again refusing to issue export licenses.

"These measures indicate considerable concern on the part of Government officials as to the grain situation during the coming Winter, which may conceivably lead to reimposition of milling restrictions and the encouragement of substitution, which in turn will decrease the per capital bread consumption. In any case these restrictions on exports probably will lead to an increased demand for direct imports from overseas into countries like Switzerland, which ordinarily take large quantities of breadstuffs from neighboring countries, although the total amount of grain imported into Europe is not likely to show any material increase."

ATTACHMENT FOR $133,785.

Writ Issued Against Property Held for Lebaudy Heiress.

Supreme Court Justice Davis yesterday granted an attachment for $133,785 against the property of Jacqueline Lebaudy Sudreau, daughter of the late Jacques Lebaudy, "Emperor of the Sahara," in a suit by Emilie Bastide of Paris against the young woman and Mr. and Mrs. Henri Sudreau, Jacqueline's father-in-law and mother. The attachment is directed against property believed to be held for the Lebaudy heiress in Nassau County, where the then Mrs. Lebaudy, in 1919, shot and killed her husband and was acquitted on the ground that she acted in defense of her daughter.

Counsel for Bastide asked for the attachment because the defendants are non-residents. He submitted in proof of the claim radigrams from the plaintiff asserting that the young couple assumed an indebtedness from the elder Sudreaus of 2,441,394 francs. It is alleged that ten drafts accepted on June 6 last were protested when presented on Aug. 31.

The elder Sudreau, who is a private detective, aided Mrs. Lebaudy in recovering property of her first husband. The Mother and daughter later married father and son, but the mother charged subsequently that young Sudreau was seeking her daughter's fortune. A divorce was applied for, but the young people became reconciled.

AUSTRIA TO LOWER ITS DISCOUNT RATE

Advices Received Recently Indicate That Action Is to Be Taken Soon.

The official discount rate of Austria will be lowered in the early future as a result of the easement in that country's financial position, according to official advices received by the Austrian Consulate General in New York from the Foreign Office in Vienna. Considerable interest attached to the report because of the interest of American investors in Austria as a result of their subscriptions a year ago to the $25,000,000 Austrian reconstruction loan.

Dr. George Schmidt, Acting Consul of Austria in New York, summarized the advices sent by the Foreign Offices and made them public for the purpose of dispelling doubts in this country as to the influence of the Castiglioni failure on Austrian business and finance. The report shows the gold reserve of the Austrian National Bank was further increased in October, so that Austrian banknotes in circulation were covered to the extent of 50.6 per cent. On the other hand, the item "Bills discounted" showed a decrease of 500,000,000 paper kronen. Savings deposits have continued to increase, being now three times greater than they were in October of last year. A reduction of 17,000,000 gold kronen was effected in July in the nation's adverse trade balance, which, as of July, stood at 80,000,000 gold kronen. This figure will be further improved, according to the report, in the remaining months of the year, preliminary figures on recent months having shown a steady reduction in the margin of import values over export values. The total number of unemployed in September was 74,000, against 85,000 a year ago.

Considerable doubt prevailed in the Wall Street district as to the status of Austria's business as a result of conflicting reports from interior Europe with regard to the Castiglioni affair and its influences. Reports from outside of Austria have suggested that the country was in a panic, but dispatches from Vienna have placed a different complexion on the situation. A rudely upset securities market was admitted, but quickly, it was said, the situation righted itself and recently security prices have been on the upturn. A continued improvement was reported by the Austrian Foreign Office, and this report was said by bankers to be in line with private advices received by them from their Austrian agents or correspondents.

Fairbanks Morse Income.

The report of the Fairbanks Morse Company for the September quarter shows a total income of $678,589; depreciation and other charges, $221,115; Federal taxes, $52,497, and a net income of $44,977. The surplus after payment of $128,404 in preferred dividends and $239,730 in common dividends amounted to $36,753.

Nunnally Earnings.

The Nunnally Company, for the quarter ended Sept. 30, reports net earnings of $36,794, before depreciation and Federal taxes, against $41,714 in the third quarter of this year.

Santa Cecilia Sugar Report.

The Santa Cecilia Sugar Corporation reports a net loss of $195,868 after depreciation, interest, &c., for the year ended July 31, compared with a net loss of $172,731 in the previous year.

BUSINESS and the "Old Man of the Sea"

"I was its captive, and it ceased not to remind me." So Sinbad the Sailor told of the monster who stuck to him like a leach—who burdened him down—who plagued his progress.

Many Manufacturers and Wholesalers have their "Old Man of the Sea" in the lurking fear—the constant, nagging fear—of big unexpected credit losses.

Credit Insurance

will take this burden off your shoulders. American Credit Insurance will give you complete security and peace of mind. You will be absolutely free from credit worries. Write or phone for full particulars today.

Is depreciation a convenience or a fact?

Twenty years ago the term depreciation was little understood in business. Today it enters into every calculation of cost and profit.

Only a few years ago it was still considered good practice to provide heavy reserves for depreciation when profits were good, and small reserves when profits were low.

This practice makes depreciation reserves an accounting convenience.

There is now a quite general recognition of the fact that depreciation is not an accounting convenience; it is an inescapable property fact.

As a property fact it can be measured only by a thorough and disinterested examination of the property, checked by recorded and long experience with similar properties.

In thus establishing depreciation, as in every other phase of determining property values, An American Appraisal is now generally known as The Authority.

An American Appraisal assures accuracy, disinterestedness and provability in property analysis and valuation.

A generation of experience supports its statements of values, depreciation and depletion.

Its recognized superiority has made it the most widely used appraisal.

BUYING BY EUROPE LIFTS COTTON PRICE

American Markets Follow Early Advance Recorded in Liverpool.

KILLING FROST HITS CROP

Demand Broadens as Day Progresses and Quotation Moves Up 1¼ Cents.

Cotton rose sharply a cent and a quarter yesterday under the most aggressive buying movement witnessed since the early part of the month. After accumulating cotton above 25 cents several weeks ago, the combination of favoring weather in the South and record-breaking receipts from producing sections proved too much for the market and speculative holdings were liquidated to the trade. The recent decline to around 22 cents attracted so general a demand, and at the same time reduced pressure of the marketing movement, that when covering developed yesterday it became less easy to secure contracts. A stampede occurred the last hour when prices were rushed up half a cent and closed at their highest figures of the day, 123 to 131 points over Saturday's level. Spot sales at Southern markets aggregated 55,000 bales, one of the largest day's transactions of the year, at an advance of 75 to 125 points in quotations.

As the Liverpool Exchange had closed Saturday before the Washington report appeared, there was more than the usual interest in the course of the foreign market yesterday. While prices in both New York and New Orleans lost about a quarter of a cent following an official indicated yield of 12,675,000 bales, or about 50,000 more than most traders looked for, a large quantity of cotton was found to be wanted from trade sources during Saturday's slight recession. Instead of meeting the decline on this side, Liverpool advanced during the morning. This steadiness abread brought an opening gain here of 30 to 40 points under the execution of a large number of over-Sunday wire orders. The feature of trading proved to be the comparatively limited degree of selling. Various room operators supplied contracts, but Southern wire houses had very little cotton for sale. Hedging operations have ruled extremely light throughout the past ten days.

European interests bought heavily during the day, which so reduced the supply of contracts that when operators attempted to cover during the last hour prices shot up rapidly. Strength of the market attracted a broadening demand and at times it became difficult to secure necessary cotton. Killing frosts in sections of Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Tennessee over Sunday put a definite end to growth of vegetation in many regions. Heavy rains fell in the Atlantic States.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close	Previous

Cattle Markets at Chicago.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—A deluge of common hogs swamped the market today and prices broke 10 to 50 cents, with underweights and pigs off most. Closing trades were at the lowest of the day. Receipts were 56,000, with a carry-over of 26,000 at the last. Many pigs went over without bids. The top was $10.40; and the average, $9.35. Arrivals of 38,000 lambs and sheep were the second largest of the year and lambs were declined fully 25 cents. The top on natives was $13.75. Cattle market was easy with prices unchanged to 25 cents lower. Yearlings were in good demand and sold up to $12.75. Best heavy steers sold at $10.65.

ANSWERS CRAIG ON BUSES.

Mayor Says He Has Referred Proposal to City Council.

Controller Craig made public yesterday the following letter which he received from Mayor Hylan in reference to the Controller's unexpected suggestion that the Mayor and the Municipal Assembly had it within their power to achieve municipal ownership and operation of bus lines without further appeal to Albany for enabling legislation:

"Oct. 26, 1924.

"Hon. Charles L. Craig, Comptroller, "City of New York.

"Dear Sir:

"I have your letter of Oct. 24, with accompanying draft of bills, for enactment by the Municipal Assembly, intended to vest the city with the power of municipal operation of buses.

"Your letter and enclosures have been transmitted to the corporation counsel for a legal opinion as to the city's rights in this matter under the Home Rule law.

"Yours truly,

"JOHN F. HYLAN, Mayor."

Superior Steel Income.

The Superior Steel Corporation, for the nine months ended Sept. 30, reports net income of $142,708 after charges, equivalent to $1.42 a share earned on the $10,000,000 outstanding common stock.

France

WHEAT RISES AGAIN, NEARLY 4 CENTS UP

Day's Export Sales in Deferred Markets Approximate 3,000,000 Bushels.

CORN SHARES IN THE GAINS

Goes Up Close to 2 Cents, With Oats Trailing and Good Business Ahead in Rye.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—Foreign demand for wheat for deferred shipment continues very active, with estimated sales of 2,500,000 to 3,000,000 bushels, largely of domestic grain. The removal of hedges against part of this business, with free buying by houses with Eastern connections, short covering and reinstating of recently sold-out lines, brought about a sharp advance in prices and the close was 3@3¾c higher.

Winnipeg gained 3¼@3⅝c for the day. News developments were largely in favor of holders, as Liverpool was up 2½@3½d and Buenos Aires was 4¼@5¾c higher at the start, with further complaints of a lack of moisture in the north. Foreign statistics were also bullish, with the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome estimating the world's surplus at 826,000,000 bushels, while import needs are 808,000,000 bushels.

A great deal of bullish news in circulation made the world's situation look stronger and created more buying. That foreigners want our wheat is shown by the continued heavy shipments from exporting countries, which last week were nearly 19,000,000 bushels, against 16,067,000 bushels last year, and making the supplies on ocean passage 61,576,000 bushels, an increase of 6,664,000 bushels over last week, and compared with 4,072,000 bushels on the ocean last year. Foreigners are giving more attention to buying of distant shipments as their nearby requirements appear to have been satisfied.

An increase of 2,409,000 bushels in the visible supply brought the total up to 57,767,000 bushels, compared with 85,-350,000 bushels the previous week and 67,732,000 bushels last year.

Primary points received 4,704,000 bushels for the day; week ago, 4,353,000; last year, 2,220,000. Shipments were 2,570,000 bushels; week ago, 2,977,000; last year, 751,000.

Corn and oats were influenced largely by the action of wheat. Corn gained 1½@1¾ cents and oats 1¼@1⅝ cents, with trade largely of a local character, although there was rather aggressive buying of corn early that looked like short covering.

The visible supply increased 356,000 bushels for the week, and is 8,751,000 bushels against 5,396,000 the previous week and 1,100,000 bushels last year.

Primary receipts today were 804,000 bushels; week ago, 1,000,000; last year, 800,000; and shipments were 594,000 bushels; week ago, 589,000; last year, 380,000.

A local miller reported increased calls for wheat and rye flour for export, with a fair business pending. A Chicago cash handler, after an investigation in Eastern Iowa, says that the Eastern half of the State will not have more than 70 per cent. of last year's crop of corn. Bert Schwarz, after a long stay in Europe, returns very bullish on grains.

COMMODITY PRICES.

Coffee Advances to Record Level —Cotton, Grains and Dairy Products Higher.

There were a number of sharp advances registered in some of the leading cash staples yesterday, the most interesting being that of ⅝ cent, to 21⅝ cents, in coffee. At this point this staple shows a gain of 1 cent in a week, and is a record high for a period of several years. Spot cotton also moved forward buoyantly, at 24.20 cents, showing an advance of 125 points over Saturday's price. Wheat and oats, butter and eggs and lead, copper and tin were others to go higher. Middle West lard, however, was heavy and reacted 30 points to 16.00@16.10 cents. Metals and other provisions were firm.

Following are the cash prices for the principal commodities in the wholesale market at the close of business Monday, a week before and a year ago. Prices are those of the New York cash markets unless otherwise indicated:

PLAYS GOLF AT NIGHT UNDER GIGANTIC LIGHT

Sarazen Makes Innovation as Feature of Illuminating Engineers' Convention.

Fully a thousand persons saw golf played after dark in the light of a 600,000,000-candle power searchlight, called the largest in the world, and other electric illuminants at Briarcliff Lodge, Briarcliff Manor, last night. Gene Sarazen, professional golf champion, conducted the exhibition as a feature of the opening of the eighteenth annual convention of the Illuminating Engineers' Society there yesterday.

A 1,000,000-candle power searchlight was mounted at the first tee on the Briarcliff links, and aimed down the 245-yard fairway to the first green, 100 feet below. The 400,000,000-candle power lamp was on a motor truck in a roadway 200 feet to the side, fifty feet below the tee. All down the course the trees had been illuminated with hidden lamps and reflectors. The ensemble was like a stage setting, and peculiarly beautiful.

The play of the searchlights across the sky in "tuning up" attracted many motorists from Ossining, Mt. Kisco and the Sleepy Hollow Valley. They joined with the convention delegates to preempt every vantage point by the time Sarazen stepped out into the blazing radiance at the first tee. He made the first of some twelve drives and the ball sailed down the course like a silver bullet, remaining in plain sight until it dropped on the descending arc. It "went out," a caddy observed, only to reappear on striking the turf. Then it bounded ahead to a shining lie near the edge of the green.

Although Sarazen drove two or three balls into the rough, where they were lost for the night, enough of his drives rested in a line with the flag to satisfy the promoters that the first advertised attempt to shoot a golf ball at night was a success.

Supreme Court Justice Frank L. Young of Westchester County delivered an address of welcome to the engineers yesterday, and a reception was tendered to President Clarence L. Law and Mrs. Law.

REPLIES TO MENDEN.

Hirshfield Says Refusal of Books Makes B. M. T. Safe From Exposure

David Hirshfield, Commissioner of Accounts, wrote yesterday to W. S. Menden, President of the Brooklyn Manhattan Transit Corporation, acknowledging receipt of Mr. Menden's letter refusing the permission sought by the Commissioner of Accounts, "at the direction of the Mayor," for an examination by Mr. Hirshfield of the books of the B. M. T. The letter said:

"The magnanimous statement by Mr. Dahl that he will give the State Transit Commission full access to the records ing. The traction-owned McAneny State Transit Commissioners, appointed by the traction attorney, Nathan L. Miller, when Governor,, will not hurt their masters, while a city Controller who, either from political motives or because of temperamentally non-accountable reasons, spends his nights scheming how to continuously embarrass Mayor Hylan and his Administration, will do nothing to harm those whose hostility the Mayor has brought upon himself because of his insistence on a square deal to the masses.

"As long as the Commissioner of Accounts is kept from the books and financial records of your corporation Mr. Dahl and his traction and stock comanipulators are safe from exposure."

WINS LONDON HOTEL SUIT.

American Banker's Daughter Gets £850 for Loss of Baggage.

Copyright, 1924, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—Miss Gladys F. Waterbury, daughter of John Waterbury, American banker, was successful in the London courts today in the action she brought against the Hyde Park Hotel. She claimed damages for the loss of baggage which disappeared from the hotel while she was away in Paris.

Evidence was given to the effect that the baggage had been handed over to a man who represented himself as a messenger from Miss Waterbury. He was afterward imprisoned for theft. The hotel denied liability, but the Judge awarded Miss Waterbury £850 with costs.

OPERA'S NEW STARS.

Metropolitan's new conductor, Serafin, is among them. An article in The New York Times Magazine Section next Sunday tells of his career.—Adv.

NEW WORLDS TO CONQUER

LET THOSE WHO KNOW YOU BY REPUTATION—KNOW YOU IN FACT.

EXHIBIT AT THE

NATIONAL MERCHANDISE BUYERS FAIR

GRAND CENTRAL PALACE
FEB. 7th to 14th 1925

There are hundreds of buyers who know your house by reputation—only. They know your name—they don't know your merchandise. They have heard of your line but have never seen it.

You have established a good name. Why don't you capitalize it—to a greater extent than you have? Why not get the business you are now missing only because they haven't seen your line?

Buyers are busy people: prone to follow the beaten paths; besieged by engagements, pressed for time—very likely to see their old friends first and buy where they bought last time. Unless you can show them better reasons in your line,

Here is your opportunity to do just that. Here is your chance to break the ice. They haven't been able to get around to you. You haven't been able to show them. Here, at the Fair, you can get together.

They will be here! Thousands of them, looking for new lines, searching for new goods, hungry for new ideas! Bring on your world-beaters! Send up your best salesmen! Here are new worlds to conquer!

If you don't see and sell them—it is your fault!

The OPPORTUNITY is HERE; MAKE it YOURS!

OPPOSES LETTING LABOR HELP RUN COMPANIES

Samuel McRoberts Says Members of Directorates Should See Problems in Their Entirety.

It is fundamentally unsound to place representatives of labor on the directorate of a corporation, in the opinion of Samuel McRoberts, President of the Metropolitan Trust Company, who spoke yesterday to the representatives of 125 business newspapers. His theme was "Better Business," the keynote address of the annual convention of the Associated Business Papers in the Hotel Astor.

"If you are asked to put representatives of your labor on your Board of Directors," he said, "it ought not to be difficult to see that the suggestion is unsound, for it violates the principle upon which the directors of a corporation are selected.

"Directors decide the financial and business policies, the scope and direction of activities. To be able so to decide they must have the capacity, training and experience to enable them to consider the business as an entirety and from every standpoint. It would be just as unsound to put either a laborer or a capitalist on your directorate who was not thus qualified."

Mr. McRoberts said that it seemed certain that we were now entering upon a period of serious competition in the world's market for all kinds of manufactured goods.

"Even a tariff barrier," he continued, "will not prevent the invasion of the domestic market by foreign manufacturers. These economic conditions will compel a reduction of our manufacturing costs. That will mean readjustment of capital structures where fixed charges are high, lower dividends, the application of the strictest economy and a reversal of the process by which living costs have increased 50 per cent., and by which labor has reached a level 111 per cent. higher than in 1913."

The speaker added that this did not mean that the American manufacturing industry and labor were facing disaster. He thought that American business would be benefited by the success of Europe's program.

Fritz J. Frank, President of the Associated Business Papers, made the address of welcome.

Summer Dress Deliveries.

Requests for early deliveries of Summer dresses for the Palm Beach and California trade are coming in rapidly it is said in some quarters. While most retailers have heretofore deferred showing this merchandise until after the holidays, it is apparent that the openings this year will be much earlier. Bolivias and spools in the high-grade dresses are most in demand, in silks, flannels and sport materials. Few cottons or linens have been bought as yet, it is said. Lace and embroidery will be used more than ever in Spring models. There is little demand for pleated effects so popular a year ago. As for repeat orders for Fall merchandise, most manufacturers report that little or nothing has been done in the past three weeks.

As to Belts and Suspenders.

Despite predictions to the contrary, wide belts are growing in popularity, says a leading manufacturer, who reports that fully 50 per cent. of the total demand is for belts 1¾ inches in width. The more exclusive shops, especially, are calling for the wide variety, both in leather with harness buckle and in silk in club colors. Curiously enough, he adds, the demand for silver buckles for the narrow style keeps up, although he believes that this demand is now at the peak. The silk suspender in bright colors has caught the fancy of a large number of men who never wore the old-fashioned web style in white or gray, he says, and sales are steadily increasing. A novelty with which the same manufacturer is having success is a golf garter, with silk tassel in brilliant colors, patterned after the Scotch garter worn with kilts.

Embroideries in Favor.

The vogue for all-over English eyelet embroideries, on a batiste foundation is greater than ever before, it is said, and manufacturers are showing a wide variety of white and colored merchandise of this character. It is used in the form of panelling, insertion, bands and for tunic blouses, often in combination with Chinese embroidery effects with crepe de chine and georgette. While white and ecru are at present most in demand, it is predicted that solid colors in all shades will be popular. Flouncings up to 38 inches are being utilized for children's frocks.

Toy Manufacturers Optimistic.

Toy manufacturers are optimistic over the prospects of a Fall business which, it is believed, will equal or surpass that of last year. Retailers are said to be facing a shortage of merchandise in this as in other lines, in view of the stump last Spring and Summer, with consequent falling off in manufacture. The bulk of toys as compared with their value makes storage of large reserve stocks impracticable, it is pointed out, and, moreover, the change in popular demand is difficult to foresee. Hence manufacturers are finding it difficult to supply orders now coming in. Mama dolls and structural toys continue leaders, with less demand for expensive novelties.

Demonstrating New Kind of Doll.

Not the least interesting of the window demonstrations now being made here is one on Fifth Avenue, in the Thirties, of a new type of doll that so closely resembles a very young infant as to seem alive. The demonstrating is done by a young colored woman, whose handling of the "baby" does a good deal toward making it lifelike. Most of the onlookers are women and girls, and their comments show that the manufacturer of the doll has touched a responsive chord. The details of the doll's clothing are carefully carried out to aid the illusion, and in molding the head and face much of the "set" beauty of the ordinary type of doll has been sacrificed for accuracy of expression. The result has been the turning out of a baby doll that really is one. The cry of an infant has also been simulated.

Fur Buying Slowing Down.

Although the nearness of election has caused trading in the local fur market to slow down quite a little, there is still a fairly active demand for several articles. The most sought skins at the moment are Russian kitt foxes and wolves. Quite a good business is also being done on fancy dyed squirrels, especially mink-dyed skins. Good Southern muskrats are bought up quickly when they can be had "at a price," and the cheaper varieties of red foxes also are moving. Raccoon skins suitable for coat purposes are still being taken by buyers. The demand for gray fox that sprang up suddenly a little while ago has quieted down again.

To Hold Off on Percales.

Reports that have been current in the dry goods district for some time that the leading printers of percales would not make prices on the goods until after election were confirmed yesterday, at least in part, by an executive of one of the most prominent concerns in the country. The feeling, he said, is that practically nothing of importance will be done in a commercial way this week, and that nothing is to be gained by putting out prices until after election uncertainties have become certainties. In the meantime there is the possibility of higher cotton playing a part in the matter. The rise of yesterday confirmed this position.

Gray Goods Trading Was Small.

The sharp rise in cotton here yesterday put a check on trading in the local gray goods market. The best that sellers of printcloths would offer on 38-inch 68-72s and 38½-inch 64-60s was 9⅝ and 9⅜ cents respectively. In the morning there was some trading in 38½-inch 60-48s at 7¼ cents, but later this figure was reported withdrawn. Sheetings sold in a limited way also, with some trading in the 36-inch goods at 7 cents for 6.10s and 7½ cents for 5.50s. For 39-inch 68-square four-yard sheetings 10¼ cents was the asking price. In the rest of the market very little was done, from all accounts.

More Advances in Woolens.

Approximately 90 per cent. of the men's wear woolen fabrics offered by the American Woolen Company for Spring consumption were advanced again yesterday because of the increasing cost of raw materials. The advances, which became effective at once, are as follows in Department 3A: Sarsanac Mill, 2½ to 5 cents; Tilton, 2½; Waverly, 2½; Norwich, 2½ to 12½; Webster, 2½ to 7½; Assabet, 2½ to 5; Ayer, 2½ to 7½; Foxcroft, 10 to 12½; Sebasticook, 2½; Vassalboro, 2½ to 5; Anderson, 2½; Kennebec, 5; Black River, 7½; Yantic, 2½; Chase, 2½ to 7½; Harland, 2½ to 5; Ray, 2½ to 5½; Housatonic, 5 to 7½; Norcott, 5 to 10; Moosup, 2½ to 10; Oakland, 2½; Lebanon, 5 to 7½, and Mascoma, 2½. In Department 3C, Webster mill fabrics were advanced 7½ cents and Assabet goods 2½ to 20 cents. The advances in Department 7 consisted of rises of 5 cents in the products of the Beoli mill and of 2½ to 10 cents in those of the Globe mill.

Cane Sugar Strike in Cuba Ends.

HAVANA, Cuba, Oct. 27.—End of the strike in the Cuba Cane Sugar Corporation's six large mills in Eastern Cuba and of the sympathetic walkout on the Northern Railways of Cuba was announced today by Ignacio de la Torre, Under-Secretary of the Interior, but it was stated that the Punta Alegre and the Adelaid mills had not reached an agreement. The terms were withheld.

KLAN PREACHER IS JAILED.

Gets Five Years for Conspiracy in Shooting of a Negro.

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Oct. 27.—Convicted of conspiracy in connection with the shooting of Dan Washington, a negro, because of his alleged association with a white woman, the Rev. E. O. Jones, General Kleagle of the Ku Klux Klan here, was sentenced by Judge E. H. Showalter today to serve five years in the State Penitentiary at Moundsville.

J. A. Landis, convicted on a similar charge, was fined $500 and sentenced to serve sixty days in jail. Ivan Poling, another defendant in the case, was fined $500.

The Court granted a sixty-day stay of execution to permit the defense to apply to the Circuit Court for a writ of error.

In sentencing Jones, Judge Showalter said:

"Liberty, regulated by law, is the goal of self-governing people. Liberty without such regulation ends in the worst form of tyranny. Any organization whose principles or teachings are calculated to foment or encourage class prejudice, church prejudice or race prejudice is at variance with the basic principles of our Government. It is un-American. It it un-Christian."

Turning to Jones, the Judge told him he was "a menace to society and should be removed as far therefrom as the penalty of the statute which has been violated will permit."

Hurst, 350 lots between Whitestone and Willets Point, directly north of Bayside, in the Borough of Queens, for a total of $35,885.

Emerson McMillin Auction.

The first day of the auction sale of the household effects of the Emerson McMillin estate at Mahwah, N. J., realized more than $45,000 yesterday. The sale will be continued throughout the week by S. G. Raines until the $800,000 worth of house furnishings is sold.

ATTACKS JUDGMENT.

Says Property Worth Several Millions Was Sold for $1,650.

An allegation that a sugar plantation in Trinidad, British West Indies, was sold for $1,680 in a foreclosure sale although the property is valued at several million dollars, was made in the Supreme Court yesterday by Fritz Luis Boos in a suit brought against him by Gordon Grant & Co., Ltd., to collect here on a judgment for $1,616,070 obtained in the Supreme Court of Trinidad.

Boos alleges that the plaintiff bought in the property for $1,680 after filing the judgment referred to, and then sou ht the plantation for $500,000. He alleges that it is "obnoxious to our justice, and against public policy" to permit the plaintiff to collect the judgment against him under the circumstances.

THE KNICKERBOCKER

The World's Largest Barber Shop

PEOPLE from all over the world come to the Knickerbocker Shop, attracted by the fame of its service and its size. Specifically, there are 42 barbers and 17 manicurists, working two shifts each day, eight of a morning till eleven at night! Just to watch the elaborate hygienic precautions that surround the simplest Terminal operation is to be conscious of a type of service unknown in any other barbering establishment in the world.

"Where the Promise is Performed"

1. The barber washes his hands with germicidal soap
2. He takes a freshly sterilized Rubberset lather brush from a sanitary envelope.
3. He uses only fine white sterilized linen towels.
4. He uses Williams Luxury Shaving Cream.
5. He sterilizes razor and clipper in boiling water before and after use.
6. He uses only genuine tonics and lotions of full strength—no "imitations."
7. He takes a freshly sterilized Rubberset brush and comb from a sanitary envelope.
8. You will see a finished barber—the product of the Terminal Post-Graduate School.
9. Your manicurist sterilizes each instrument in boiling water before using.
10. You will see barber service, in all its departments, brought to the highest perfection—a service you will be unable to forget and unwilling to forego.

LATEST DEALINGS IN REALTY FIELD

Investors Purchase the Professional Building in East Fortieth Street.

WAS HELD AT $1,500,000

Syndicate Adds to Site for Big Park Avenue Project—Tenement Houses Sold.

The Professional Building at 30 East Fortieth Street, between Park and Madison Avenues, was sold yesterday by the Fred T. Dey Company, builders, to the 30 East Fortieth Street Corporation, a group of investors. The building, which is in course of construction, is fourteen stories high and occupies a plot 40 by 100 feet.

The structure was held at $1,500,000 and was sold through Harry V. Fisher, as broker. Recently Miss Alston's House for Private Patients leased the basement, part of the ground floor and ninth, tenth, eleventh, twelfth and thirteenth floors in the building.

Vacant Parcels Sold.

Vacant properties figured prominently in sales reported closed yesterday. On the east side the syndicate known as the 60 East Sixty-fifth Street Corporation, N. J. Hess, President, purchased from the estate of David Seicher a plot of 40-foot frontage at the southwest corner of Park Avenue and Sixty-fifth Street. They now control a plot at this point, 140 by 100 feet.

Plans to cover the 14,000 square feet are being drawn by J. E. R. Carpenter, which call for a twenty-story cooperative studio apartment building, having the necessary elasticity to permit the requirement of apartments from two to twenty rooms. There will be a restaurant on the ground floor for the convenience of tenants.

The building will be erected by Dwight P. Robinson Company, builders, at an approximate expenditure of $4,500,000 and will be ready for occupancy in August, 1925. Douglas L. Elliman & Co. and Gaines Van Nostrand and Morrison negotiated the last purchase. The M. Morgenthau Jr.-Everett M. Selxas Company, Inc., represented the owners.

An Amsterdam Avenue plottage was sold yesterday when Leon S. Altmayer resold for E. Magnun the plot of vacant land on the northwest corner of 184th Street to F. Eckin. Mr. Altmayer was the broker who sold the property a few days ago to the present seller. The property has a frontage of about 75 by 100 feet.

As a site for improvement, George A. Bowman, in conjunction with Fenimore C. Goode, sold for the estate of Alexander Cadoo the vacant property at 63 to 69 West 137th Street, 100 feet east of Lenox Avenue. The plot measures 100 by 99.11 feet. The purchaser intends to erect a six-story walk-up of small suites. The property is assessed at $28,000.

Tenement House Trading.

On the upper west side James H. Cruikshank, the operator, resold to Sarah Price Collie 104 West 134th Street, a five-story and basement triple flat on plot 28.6 by 89 feet between Lenox and Seventh Avenues. Louis W. George was the broker.

Maggie E. Hessin sold the five-story flat with stores, lot 25 by 100, at 1,807 Third Avenue, near Ninety-ninth Street, to Charles Smith, a client of Nehring Brothers. The property was held at $40,000. The broker in the deal was John J. Reynolds.

Smith & Fahn and Silverman & Kantrowich, operators, purchased the five-story apartment house, 508-510 West 162d Street from a client of John R. Davidson. The building is on a plot 40 by 100 feet and shows a rental of about $10,000. It was held at $70,000.

SALES IN WESTCHESTER.

Business Plot in New Rochelle Sold for Improvement.

One of the largest plots remaining undeveloped in the business section of New Rochelle, N. Y., has been sold. The property is 100 feet on Division Street and approximately 200 feet on Huguenot Street, with a like frontage on Westchester Place. There is, in addition, a 15-foot strip, being a right of way, running from Huguenot Street to Westchester Place. The purchaser contemplates making immediate improvements on the property. The seller was represented by Hyams & Hyams, attorneys, of New York City, who also brought about the sale.

Chauncey B. Griffen sold to a client for Mrs. E. Campbell her residence at 58 Moran Place, Hazelhurst Park, New Rochelle. The property consists of a Colonial home and large plot and was held at $28,000.

Stephen J. Stilwell sold the new shingle cottage belonging to John Kean, on Webster Avenue, Harrison, N. Y., to Frederick Davis, who will occupy.

OLD SIWANOY CLUB SOLD.

Jesse Winburn Buys 138 Acres at Mount Vernon, N. Y.

The old Siwanoy Country Club at Mount Vernon in Westchester County, comprising a tract of 138 acres, was sold yesterday by the Hunt estate, after an ownership of 150 years, to Jesse Winburn of New York City. The price paid was over $750,000 or $550 an acre. Mr. Winburn, who at one time controlled street car advertising in Manhattan, will extend the present nine-hole golf course on the property to eighteen holes.

The property is one of the best known holdings in Westchester County and was occupied by the Siwanoy Country Club and later by the Sunningdale Country Club. It is occupied at present by the Mount Vernon Golf Club, whose lease expires in May. The property has large frontages on Columbus and Grand Avenues and was sold through Joseph P. Day, as broker.

PRIVATE HOUSE BUYERS.

Residences on the West Side Are in Demand.

The four-story dwelling at 154 West 121st Street, on a lot 19 by 100 feet, held at $23,000, was sold by Charles Fielder to Julius Sulkes. A. J. Herbst and Ernest T. Bower were the brokers.

Jacob Goodman resold the three-story dwelling at 306 West 140th Street to Blanche Rogers, through Marie Wayne Thompson, as broker.

John C. Foster has contracted for the purchase of the five three-story dwellings at 319-327 West Forty-eighth Street, on plot 90 by 100.5, located just west of Eighth Avenue, from Mabel L. Bennett of Pasadena, Cal.

BUYS SELIGMAN ESTATE.

Morris White to Improve Big Property at Deal Beach, N. J.

The Julia Seligman estate at Deal Beach, N. J., consisting of several hundred acres, has been purchased by Morris White, a manufacturer of leather goods and owner of the Carleton Terrace Hotel here. Mr. White, who was represented by Phillip B. Shapiro, plans to improve the property and his purchase will represent with the improvements an investment of $1,000,000.

The property is said to be the largest estate at Deal Beach and it is one of the landmarks of the section. The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company represented the estate as executor.

$200,000 Loan Placed.

Childs & Humphries placed at 5 per cent. a loan of $200,000 for five years on the twelve-story and basement store and loft building at 62-64 West Forty-fifth Street for Nathan S. Jarvis.

MADISON AVENUE LEASE.

Corporation to Make Extensive Alterations at 555 and 557.

Lydia Hickox has leased to Elledry Realty Corporation the five-story building, on a plot 36.5 by 100, at 555 and 557 Madison Avenue, adjoining the northeast corner of Fifty-fifth Street. The lease is for twenty-one years, with two renewals. Brown, Wheelock: Harris, Vought & Co. were the brokers.

The lessee will make extensive improvements, putting stores on the first and second floors and apartments above. Arthur Weiser has been retained as architect.

Douglas L. Elliman & Co. have leased the store at 559 Madison Avenue, the recently remodeled property of Robert E. Bonner.

The tenant, Vester & Co., will install a shop for the sale of Oriental goods and antiquities. Vester & Co. have for many years operated the most important merchandise house in Jerusalem and are well known in the Orient as the American Colony Store. Brown, Wheelock: Harris, Vought & Co., Inc., represented the owner in the transaction.

Thoens & Flaumacher, Inc., have leased for the 470 Fourth Avenue Corporation to Cuppies & Leon Company, publishers of juvenile books, the seventh floor in the building at 470 to 478 Fourth Avenue for a term of years. White-Goodman represented the owners.

The same brokers have leased for the Waldorf Realty Company, John S. Forgeston, President, to the Caruso Spaghetti Place, Inc., the store and basement at 38 and 40 West Thirty-third Street for a long term of years; leased for Burroughs Welcome & Co., U. S. A., Inc., to LaSalle Extension University, Chicago, the entire sixth floor in the building at 9 and 11 East Forty-first Street for a term of years for its executive offices.

CORONA-FLUSHING AUCTION.

Lots Brought $156,525 at Saturday's Sale.

At the continuation sale of Corona-Flushing lots last Saturday by Joseph P. Day $156,525 was realized, making a grand total to date of $903,350 after the fifth session of the sale. All the remaining lots comprised in this Degnon tract will be closed out at the two final sessions to be held next Saturday, Nov. 1 and election day, Tuesday, Nov. 4, on the premises.

The largest buyer at Saturday's sale was W. & L. Realty Company of Manhattan, who purchased more than 170 lots on and near Roosevelt Avenue, Coman Street and Polk Avenue, for which they paid an average of $300. Adolph Gretschel, who was present and bought at all previous sessions, also purchased about thirty-two lots at Saturday's sale on Thirty-fourth Avenue, between 127th Place and 127th Street. A block front on Roosevelt Avenue, between Morris and Gilroy Avenues, went for $950 each, with those backing up on Gunther Street going at $300. Charles F. Fluemacher of Manhattan bought nine lots on Polk Avenue running through to Willets Point Boulevard. Willis Samuel Rosen, Bronx, paid $300 for four lots on Edison Street near Gilroy Avenue.

THE BRONX MARKET.

Private Dwellings and Vacant Plots Sold.

Jack Pollack sold the two-family brick dwelling, 25 by 100 feet, at 1,668 Townsend Avenue. Schwab & Co. were the brokers.

Anthony F. Eufemia sold for Rebecca Popper a vacant plot on the west side of Fish Avenue, seventy-seven feet south of Gunhill Road.

J. Clarence Davies, Inc., sold for Elmer D. Coulter the vacant lot 20 by 100 feet, at the southeast corner of Jerome Avenue and 204th Street.

H. Hammitt and J. Gallagher sold for A. Goldberg to E. Gallagher the one-family dwelling at 2,202 Cedar Avenue, held at $16,000.

The King Terra Holding Corporation, represented by William F. Kurs and George Goldblatt Company, has sold for the Cooley Auto Sales Company 337 East 149th Street, a three-story business building, 25 by 80. The property was held at $45,000.

Physician Buys in Yorkville.

Dr. Alexander Neshamkin is buying from the Bermar Realty Corporation the new nine-story apartment house at 111 to 115 East Eighty-ninth Street. The structure occupies a plot 83.9 by 100.8, located between Park and Lexington Avenues.

In part payment Dr. Neshamkin gives the property at the northwest corner of Hicks and Orange Streets, Brooklyn, measuring 100.8 by 101. The Eighty-ninth Street structure, which was erected a couple of years ago by the Bermar Realty Corporation, composed of Joseph Berger and Samuel Markel, carries a mortgage of $547,000 and figured in the exchange at $650,000. The Brooklyn property was valued at $346,800 and carries a mortgage of $293,800.

Real Estate Notes.

George A. Bowman was the broker who consummated a lease between Bing & Bing, tenant, and Jennie E. Thorley, landlord, for the porperty at the southwest corner of Eighty-third Street and Central Park West. The lease extends for 105 years. The total amount involved was $2,000,000.

Stephen Yates of Flushing, L. I., was elected President at the concluding session of the convention of the New York State Association of Realty Boards at Briarcliff Lodge on Saturday.

Real estate men were the luncheon guests of the City Housing Corporation at the Uptown Club yesterday.

Long Island City Sale.

The Roman-Callman Company has sold for Henry Scharnberger, Inc., the service station building just completed on the south side of the bridge approach, just west of Van Dam Street and Queens Boulevard, with a frontage on Thomson Avenue, Long Island City. The purchasers are the A. B. W. Sales Company, Inc., metropolitan distributers of Clydesdale trucks, which will move from its present Long Island City location and occupy the Thomson Avenue frontage of the building.

Hastings Acreage Sold.

George A. Bowman sold to Katharine Kelly, for a client of Joseph P. Day, a parcel on Broadway, Hastings-on-the-Hudson, adjacent to the Longue Vue Restaurant, comprising approximately four and one-half acres. The property was held at $22,000.

Trading in Brooklyn.

The Pyle-Gray Real Estate Company, in conjunction with Judson H. Paige, sold 17 East Nineteenth Street, a two-story dwelling, on a plot 25 by 99, for the Welco Holdings, Inc., to a client, who will occupy.

$50,000 Heights Loan.

Hewson, Wolfe & Co. have secured a first mortgage of $50,000 for ten years on the business building at the northeast corner of St. Nicholas Avenue and 155th Street. This property is owned by the Bronx County Construction Company, Charles S. Levy, President.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—The Atlantic Coast disturbance was central Monday night over Eastern North Carolina and moving north-northeastward. It has been attended by several inches within the last twenty-four hours in Georgia, the Carolinas, Virginia, Maryland, West Virginia and Eastern Tennessee. A disturbance of wide extent was central over Alberta and moving eastward, and it has been attended by rains in the Northern Plateau region and in the Pacific States from Central California northward. Pressure was high Monday night in the vicinity of Bermuda and from the lake region southward to the Gulf Coast. The temperature was lower Monday in the North Pacific States and the Northern Plateau region, and it changed but little in other parts of the country.

The coast disturbance will continue to move north-northeastward and it will be attended by rain Tuesday in portions of New England, the Middle Atlantic States and Southern New York, otherwise the weather will be generally fair Tuesday and Wednesday east of the Mississippi River, except for somewhat lower temperature Tuesday in Southern New England and Southern New York; there will be little change in temperature during the next two days.

CONVERT-WISE WEATHER CONDITIONS.

In the following record of observations at United States Weather Bureau stations yesterday the temperatures given are the highest during the twelve hours from 8 A. M. to 8 P. M., and the lowest during the preceding twelve hours from 8 P. M. to 8 A. M.; the barometer reading and condition of weather are those recorded at 8 P. M., and the rainfall is for the twenty-four hours ended at 8 P. M.

Rare
Winter Playgrounds
New Pleasures, New Scenes in the Orient and Round the World

There's fascination, charm, color, gaiety in Oriental and foreign lands.

They offer strange, new experiences, new delights—a winter of unceasing interest and activity.

Thousands go each year to see horse racing in China and India. It's an old sport amid new surroundings—just one of a multitude of gay things to do.

Polo in India calls a sport-loving throng.

You shop in the rarest of bazaars for gorgeously beautiful silks, batiks, brass, ivory and silver. It's fun to bargain with the native merchants who always accede in price to aggressive persuasion.

And you can reach all these foreign lands easily and comfortably aboard the palatial President Liners of the Dollar Steamship Line.

They touch at 21 interesting world ports every two weeks. Liberal stopover privileges are offered at every port of call.

See the lands you desire to see as you circle the globe on these fine liners. Spend your winter in fresh, new activities.

You can go Round the World in fine, first-class accommodations on one of these liners for as little as $11.37 per day.

Fortnightly sailings from New York.

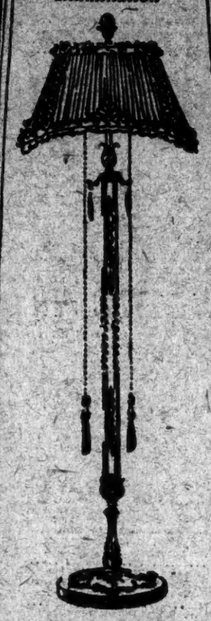
Lightolier
Lamps Lighting Fixtures and Decorative Illumination



THIS FLOOR LAMP, with its hand-wrought standard of exclusive design and its veneered oval marble base, marks a fashionable note. The shade, too, is a new Lightolier design and may be had in a variety of colors . . . $112.50

LIGHTOLIER, being manufacturers as well as retailers, quote prices that are not low on occasions, but are low at all times. The quiet restfulness of Lightolier galleries is in itself an inspiration to visitors. Thus the few extra minutes to the Prince Street Station of the B. M. T. will more than repay you in new home decorative ideas alone.

TYPICAL of the many beautiful table lamps to be found at Lightolier is this one of genuine pottery to be had in either blue or black. The silk shade comes in a choice of colors to harmonize. In combination with an end table at $9.75, or it may be purchased separately for $21.50

THE PERFECT hostess's perfection will be enhanced if she serves her guest from a marble-topped walnut coffee table that can be had here in a variety of shapes.

READING LAMPS that are a joy to behold and an inspiration to weavers of dreams or sewers of seams are here.

FOR THE correct and tasteful decoration of the popular French commode we recommend this imported girandole with its colorful Dresden china figures, flowers and hand-wrought leaves. It is but one of a large assortment at Lightolier, at prices well below those found elsewhere.

ADD THE name Lightolier to your shopping list today and you will be amply rewarded by the discovery of the ideal place for purchasing lamps and incidental pieces of furniture, whether they be for gifts or for odd nooks and corners of your own home.
